McCarthy Drummed Off Stage By Indians

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Travel Industry Minister Grace McCarthy had to leave a public stage here Friday when chanting and drumbeating by about 100 local native Indians drowned out her promotion of the Captain Cook bicentennial.

McCarthy was delivering a multi-media presentation about the celebration of Cook's voyage along the West Coast before about 200 citizens when the Indians marched into the school auditorium.

The minister gave up attempts to address the audience, the lights were dimmed and a slide presentation began.

The audience sat in silence throughout the demonstration.

When the slide presentation began, the Indians — young and old — walked into the foyer and the doors to the auditorium were locked preventing their re-entry.

The Indians continued chanting and beating on drums in the foyer, where Captain Cook promotional buttons and leaflets were ripped up and strewn about.

One middle-aged Indian woman surveying the tattered leaflets said: "This is what they did to our land."

McCarthy appologized for the disturbance after the slide presentation, delivered a brief address, and left by a back door,

She said in an interview later that the demonstration didn't reflect the feelings of the majority of the province's native people.

The ministry of tourism is not going to rewrite history for the sake of one small dissatisfied group, she added.

In an interview today, George Watts, chairman of the West Coast District Council of Native Indians, said the demonstration was a protest of the provincial government's position on aboriginal land claims.

The demonstration, which lasted about an hour, almost all of it in the foyer, had no visible leaders and the Indians wouldn't comment on the reasons behind it.

Some West Coast Indian groups and members of the New Democratic Party have condemned the notion of celebrating a white man's discovery of land which had been inhabited for centuries by the Indian people.

Cook also has been criticized as a spreader of venereal disease to native populations and as the advance guard of colonialism.

McCarthy opened a tourism seminar here this morning without incident. The seminar, aimed at businessmen, provided information on attracting and holding the tourist trade.

What Crashes? — Lang

OTTAWA (FP) — A Conservative MP has been told by Transport minister Otto Lang to stop asking questions about northern air safety because the inquiries "simply cause worry to people."

Lang told the Commons Friday that the air safety record in northern Canada "compares favorably" to similar areas in other countries.

The minister admonished MP Dan McKenzie (Winnipeg South Centre) for reminding the Commons that there had been 24 deaths in northern Ontario aircraft accidents between 1975 and mid-1977.

McKenzie, along with NDP MP Cyril Symes (Sault St. Marie), has been pressing the government for months to set up an inquiry into air safety in the north.

Perfect Banana Republic . . . But for the Weather

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canada has become a submissive colony of the United States, both economically and politically, and Canadian governments rule with the "advice and consent" of Americans, says the lead article in the June issue of Penthouse magazine.

"Only the weather prevents us from being a perfect banana republic," according to Toronto writer Walter Stewart, former managing editor of Maclean's who is described by Penthouse as a "journalist-patriot."

In his bleak assessment of the Canadian condition, Stewart says that Canada has lost its sovereignty to the "attache-bearing brigades" of U.S. businessmen with their stock options, expense accounts and dry martinis.

Canadian foreign policy is largely determined in Washington, he argues, and Canadian nationalists have become pariahs in their own nation.

Stewart cites examples, none of them new, of American parent firms barring their subsidaries in Canada from trading with Cuba; of U.S. labor union leaders ordering a ruinous strike by Toronto newspaper printers, and the cut-rate sale of Canadian natural gas to the U.S. in long-term contracts.

Referring to the U.S. stranglehold on the Canadian economy, he says that $616,000 in Canadian funds is drained off every hour of every day to pay foreign investors.

As for the $10 billion Alaska pipeline deal signed last month, Stewart insists that it will do nothing for Canada but damage its environment, upset its native peoples, and distort its capital markets.

Canadians are accused of "cupidity and stupidity" in handing over control of the country to Americans.

The article, titled Say Uncle! The American Colonization of Canada, comes at a time when Canada-U.S. relations are being seen here as better than ever before, and when Americans are reading more and more about their neighbors to the north.

Stewart writes only briefly about the possible separation of Quebec. He makes the point that French-Canadians are turning against Ottawa because "they are unwilling to leave the defence of their language and culture to a country that is manifestly unable to defend itself."

This argument, however, ignores the lavish attention that the Parti Quebecois government itself is pouring on Americans, with ministerial visits, wooing for U.S. investment, and the expansion of the network of Quebec tourist and trade offices throughout the U.S..

A-G STUMBLES ON BAT VAN

Oak Bay police have tripped up Attorney-General Garde Gardom who has been insisting there are enough policemen to operate the province's BATmobiles.

On Friday the A-G wasn't going along with complaints from police spokesmen in Vancouver and on Vancouver Island that the vans often sit idle because of manpower shortages.

He said he isn't aware of any instance in which the vans aren't used.

The BATmobile was assigned to Oak Bay this weekend, but didn't nab a single impaired driver. Didn't even come up with a 24-hour roadside suspension.

The reason?

It never left the police yard because there weren't enough policemen to man the unit.

Tanker Split In North Sea

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (Reuter)— A Greek tanker, Eleni V, split in two today in the North Sea after being in a collision with a French bulk carrier, Roseline, which reported much oil pollution in the area.

Thirty-five of the 39 crewmen from the 12,600-ton Eleni V were transferred to the 16,000-ton Roseline and the remaining four men were ready to be picked up, messages received by Lloyds Shipping Agency reveal.

The tanker was loaded with heavy fuel oil and British coast guard and government officials were trying to estimate the amount of spillage from the sunken fore section. The stern section was being towed out to sea.

Lifeboat workers from nearby Gorleston said there was a slick measuring 200 by 100 metres six miles off the eastern England coast.

The British trade department said it had chartered two oil-spraying ships for dispersing the slick. Tides and a slight wind were believed to be pushing the slick away from the English coast.

Volcano Spews

MANILA (Reuter) — Thousands of people were being evacuated today from the foot of one of the Philippines most-active volcanoes which has been spewing red hot lava since Thursday.

No Pullout By S.A. — Angola

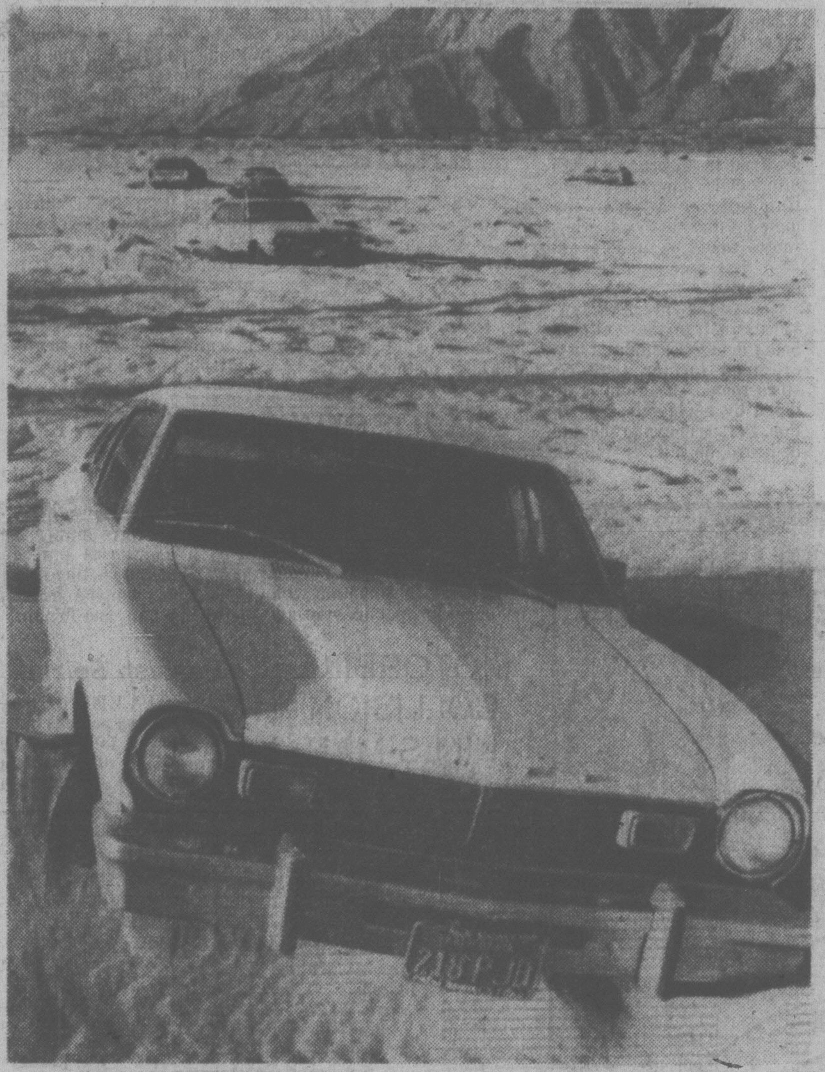
UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Angola charged in the Security Council late Friday that South African troops which raided its territory Thursday still are there and are being reinforced.

Angolan Ambassador Elisio De Figueiredo told the council, called into session to consider charges by his government of South African "aggression," that the claim the troops were withdrawn after a limited action is a myth.

The troops show no sign of withdrawing, the latest information received from Angola shows, Figueireido said.

However, South Africa said in a message to the western members of the council late Friday that its troops struck at guerrilla bases in Angola in response to urgent appeals for protection by Namibia, or South-West Africa, leaders.

The message said that border violations by "terrorists" increased dangerously despite South African efforts to obtain a peaceful solution to the Namibian question



ABANDONED CARS lie outside city limits of Palm Springs, Calif., after being sandblasted Friday evening by winds of up to 130 km/h. The violent storm made driving so difficult and dangerous that 14 motorists had to be rescued by the highway patrol. Highway was at points almost obliterated by sand.

Patient Deterrent Fee Urged for Medicare

VANCOUVER (CP) — Patients should pay a deterrent fee before they see a doctor in order to cut unnecessary use of the medical system, Dr. Eddison Sinanan, president of the British Columbia Society of Eyes, Ears, Nose and Throat Specialists, said Friday.

Sinanan said in an interview that although medicare provides an outwardly free public service it is supported by taxes and is inefficient.

People go to doctors with trivial complaints, so doctors are overworked and have insufficient time to provide proper care for those in need, he said.

Sinanan was attending the annual meeting of the B.C. Oto-Ophthalmological Society.

The meeting was told doctors should pay more attention to the human needs of dying patients.

"Death is not the enemy of the physician; death is a phenomenon of living. But what is the quality of life for an incurable cancer patient," said Dr. Daniel Miller, chief of head and neck oncology clinic at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute, Boston, Mass.

Miller, who is also consultant surgeon at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary and associate clinical professor at Harvard University, said only recently are medical schools beginning to teach students how to care for the dying.

Older physicians may shun the dying patient because of a feeling of shame and guilt at their own professional helplessness, said Miller.

Guerrillas Ignore UN

The Guardian

TYRE — Palestinian guerrillas are returning in substantial numbers to areas of southern Lebanon evacuated by the Israeli army. United Nations peacekeeping forces — under-strength, underequipped and demoralized by unclear orders from New York — are unable and unwilling to stop them.

The main area of infiltration is the coastal plain south of Tyre, from which the Israeli army withdrew last week. A sub-tropical undergrowth and orange and lemon groves furnish excellent cover.

French and Senegalese troops are attempting to patrol the area, the French on the outskirts of Tyre, the Senegalese between them and the northernmost Israeli lines.

Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, met Friday with the U.N. commander General Emmanuel Erskine. He no doubt reiterated that, in the PLO view, there is nothing in U.N. resolution 425, which authorized the peacekeeping force, to prohibit the guerrillas from returning to their old positions. At the same time, however, angered by last week's Palestinian attacks on U.N. troops, Arafat is very anxious — for the sake of his reputation both in the world at large and among the war-weary inhabitants of southern Lebanon — to achieve this with a minimum of bloodshed.

The original order to U.N. troops was to stop all infiltration. This was how Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim interpreted his mandate. But in practice — and with reluctant acquiescence from above — the troops are bowing to actions which, if unchecked, will ultimately make nonsense of that order. It is a classical case of the international community rushing in to solve a problem without furnishing the coherent political will or the physical muscle to do it.

A company of 40 or 50 guerrillas were taking their siesta in the undergrowth a mere 300 or 400 metres from a Senegalese road block. They had apparently filtered through the French lines in ones and twos. They had brought their small arms with them, or unearthed those that they had hidden as they retreated before the Israeli advance.

IPSWICH, RANGERS

LONDON (Reuter) — A goal by midfield man Roger Osborne 13 minutes from the end earned the English Football Association (FA) Cup for Ipswich in its first appearance in the final at Wembley today.

Ipswich's 1-0 win over favored Arsenal, playing in its ninth final, was the result of composed football which won control of the midfield and kept its London opponent struggling throughout.

In Glasgow today, Rangers survived a hesitant start to score a 2-1 victory over Aberdeen in the Scottish Football Association Cup final.

Moro Search Frantic

ROME (UPI) — Anti-terrorist squads threw a vast dragnet over central Italy today, breaking into hundreds of abandoned homes, throwing up new roadblocks and detaining at least 25 persons in a desperate hunt for kidnapped ex-premier Aldo Moro.

Moro's family refused to confirm reports they had received a handwritten letter from the five-time premier bidding them an emotional farewell.

Police and army troops broke down the doors of hundreds of homes and set up dozens of new roadblocks around Rome in an eleventh hour search for Moro and his Red Brigades kidnappers, who announced Friday they were "executing" him because their demands for the release of 13 jailed terrorists had been rejected.

Army helicopters and coast guard speed boats scoured the inlets and countryside around the coastal town of Terracina, where an anonymous telephone tip said Moro could be found.

At least 25 persons, most members of ultra-leftwing student groups, were detained for questioning but there were no new arrests.

U.S. Court Bans Canadian Fishboats

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has issued a temporary injunction that forbids Canadian boats from fishing within coastal waters off the western United States.

U.S. federal authorities argued that the order would strain relations between the two countries.

Judge Donald Voorhees issued the temporary injunction Friday, ordering the U.S. federal government to stop Canadian vessels from salmon-fishing off the West Coast.

Judge Voorhees stayed his order for seven days to allow time for an appeal.

Edward Evans, northwest regional counsel for the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, said the U.S. government plans to ask the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for an emergency hearing on the decision.

Canadian fishing boats have been allowed to fish within U.S. waters since the early 1970s by reciprocal agreement between the executive branches of both governments, Evans said.

An agreement has been drafted between the two governments, Evans said, but has not yet been ratified by Congress.

The suit was brought against the commerce and the U.S. state department by the Washington Trollers Association and the Quileute Indian Tribe.

The groups argued that Canadians were violating U.S. statutes by fishing within the 200-mile limit. The statutes could only be overturned, the plaintiffs argued, by congressional action.

The U.S. government argued that although congressional approval of the treaty was required, the government retained its right to use discretion in enforcing the law, Evans said.

"It ill-behooves the federal government to come in here and enforce treaties, which it has done, and not enforce statutes," Voorhees said in his decision Friday.

The federal government argued that the decision would hurt other negotiations between the two countries such as talks about off-shore drilling on both coasts.

The agreement could allow Canadian boats to fish further down the Washington coast than in previous years, Evans said.

If ratified, the Canadians could fish the Washington Coast down to Copalis Beach—about 100 kilometres north of the Oregon border—if the Canadian government cordoned off an area south of Vancouver Island and did not fish it.

HYDRO BUS UNION ACCEPTS CONTRACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 3,500 members of the Amalgamated Transit Union employed by British Columbia Hydro voted 67.6 per cent in favor of accepting a new contract with the Crown corporation, the union announced Friday.

The contract, retroactive to Sept. 1, 1977, gives drivers, maintenance workers and mechanics in Vancouver and Victoria regions a 10 per cent wage increase over 20 months, and expires April 1, 1979.

The union agreed to give up exclusive control of the spareboard, the complicated procedure of scheduling drivers.

But the ATU will retain some control over policing the operation of the spareboard and the allocation of overtime on a seniority basis.

Hydro employees in the Office and Technical Employees Union and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers earlier approved new contracts with the corporation.

Child Seat Belts Fail Tests

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Warren Allmand Friday released partial results of crash tests on eight children's car seats sold in Canada, saying that all but one failed to meet government regulations.

But the government did not announce any plans to withdraw some 350,000 seats currently on the market and suggested that "some refinement of test methods may be in order."

In a cautiously-worded release, Allmand was quoted as saying that "even if car seats are improperly installed, children still receive better protection than if no car seats is used at all."

The department stressed that the car seats failed only one part of the crash tests, those simulating an impact from the side. All the seats passed tests simulating frontal collisions.

None of the seats broke in the tests but in all but one seat, a test dummy installed in the car seat moved more than the 15 inches the regulations allow in side collisions.

Department officials say they are stressing that the seats are not unsafe simply because they do not meet the regulations. The release said a new standard may be considered.

Since 1972, all seats sold in Canada must meet standards set down in the Hazardous Products Act. The standards were revised in 1974, taking effect in 1975.

But Allmand indicated Friday his department has done no compliance testing since 1975 and has relied only on statements by manufacturers certifying compliance with the regulations.

"As soon as he was advised of the results of the tests done for the department, the minister asked manufacturers to provide data on tests done for them as a basis for their statements of compliance," the release from the department said.

The tests, carried out in January at the Buffalo, N.Y. laboratories of Calspan Corporation, involve stapping the child-size dummy into the car seat which has been anchored to a regular automobile seat.

It is then propelled along a sled and stopped quickly with the dummy facing forward and again with the seat facing sideways to simulate head-on and side collisions.

The seats must not show significant structural damage in the tests and the dummy must not move beyond certain limits. This is to ensure a child does not hit part of the car interior in a crash. None of the seats showed structural damage.

The department release did not give detailed results of the tests but results obtained by The Canadian Press indicate that only the General Motors Love Seat passed the lateral tests. The dummy moved 11.5 inches, well within the 15-inch limit.

The Dorel Trav-L-Guard and Safe-T-Ryder, the only seats manufactured in Canada and which hold about 85 per cent of the market, both failed to meet the regulation. The Dummy moved 15.9 inches and 19.1 inches respectively in the lateral tests.

Other results by brand name were: Strollee, 22.1 inches; Kantwet Model 590, 18.4 inches; Kantwet Model 985, 17.7 inches; Swyngomatic, 15.3 inches; and Peterson, 17 inches.

"Only 15 per cent of actual crashes involve impacts directly to the sides of vehicles," the department said. "Thirty-two per cent are head-on, nine per cent involve rear impacts and the remaining 44 per cent are angular impacts at various places around the vehicle."

The release quoted Allmand as saying the best way to protect children from injuries resulting from side crashes is to place the child's car seat in the rear seating position.

"In this way there would be less likelihood of violent head contact with the inside of the door," the department said.

The department also stressed the importance of installing the seats according to manufacturer's directions.

Costly Study

An environmental study of the proposed McMicking Point sewer outfall is likely to cost almost as much as the outfall itself, and even after construction is completed the studies may show that the whole project should be scrapped.

A special committee concerned with monitoring the proposed 600-foot outfall into Enterprise Channel has been told that the studies could cost the Capital Region District as much as $560,000. The cost of the outfall itself has been estimated at $600,000.

Sooke regional director Charles Perkins noted that at the end of three years the Pollution Control Branch could cancel its permit and close down the outfall.

University of Victoria biologist Dr. Derek Ellis, who will co-ordinate the monitoring task, said much of the material produced by the study could provide answers to questions being asked at other outfall sites. But he estimated at least half the cost would be exclusively of benefit to McMicking.

The committee tabled the matter for a detailed breakdown of study costs.

Law Court Rapped

The lack of proper interview facilities at the Law Courts building on Burdett is a disgrace, the head of the Victoria Bar Association said Friday.

Dean Wilson said he was assured in February when provincial courtrooms went into full operation in the building that three interview rooms would be made available. But nothing has been done since.

He said the only place lawyers can interview clients being held in custody is in a cramped former janitor's store room. The room is divided by a plexiglass partition. Persons have to shout to be heard, he said.

Mexico Quakes

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A moderate earthquake occurred in northern Mexico on Friday and was felt in parts of southern California and Arizona, the U.S. Geological Survey reported. There were no reports of damage.

Inquest Adjourned

An inquest into the deaths of three persons killed in a house fire in Victoria has been adjourned to May 18.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ordered the adjournment after learning it will take another 10 days before lab tests are completed on the victims, 31-year-old Patrick Jackson, his 20-year-old common-law wife Catherine Dick, and their infant son, Anthony.

The three died in an early morning fire April 30 that gutted a house at 840 Bay.

Observatory Open

To commemorate the 60th anniversary of the commissioning of its 1.85-meter telescope, the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain will be open for public viewing from sunset (8:35 p.m.) to midnight this evening only.

Normal Saturday night visiting hours this summer are from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. In September the visiting hours go back to a winter schedule, between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m.

MOTORBIKE COLLISION KILLS MAN

NANAIMO — A 25-year-old Port Alberni man died in hospital here Friday after he was thrown from his motorcycle into the path of a car about 12 kilometers north of Qualicum Beach.

Police said Gerald Arthur Bezanson was travelling with another motorcycle when the two cycles collided.

New Governor Rite May 18

Brig. Henry Bell-Irving of Vancouver will be sworn in as B.C.'s 23rd lieutenant-governor on May 18 at 11.30 a.m. at Goverment House.

The ceremony will be conducted by Chief Justice J.L. Farris.

Bell-Irving succeeds Walter Owen who has served since March, 1973.

Hashish Seized

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP said two persons have been charged following the seizure Friday of more than 18 pounds of liquid hashish from a city apartment.

A free test for smokers who want to quit smoking

This test is free! It is offered to you by the Anti-Tobacco Propaganda Centre. You can do it at home. It is an easy no-risk test. You will find out if you can eliminate your wish to smoke.

You will be the one to judge.

It is a small aromatic plant based tablet. It does not make the taste of a cigarette unbearable. You will be able to smoke as usual. But will you want to? You will soon find out.

To receive this test (absolutely free), simply send, as soon as possible, an envelope with your name and address to the Anti-Tobacco Propaganda Centre, Dept. A42 4221 St. Catherine St. W., Suite 220, Montreal, Que. H3Z 2Y9.

If your request is among the first 500 to arrive, you will also receive a small gift.

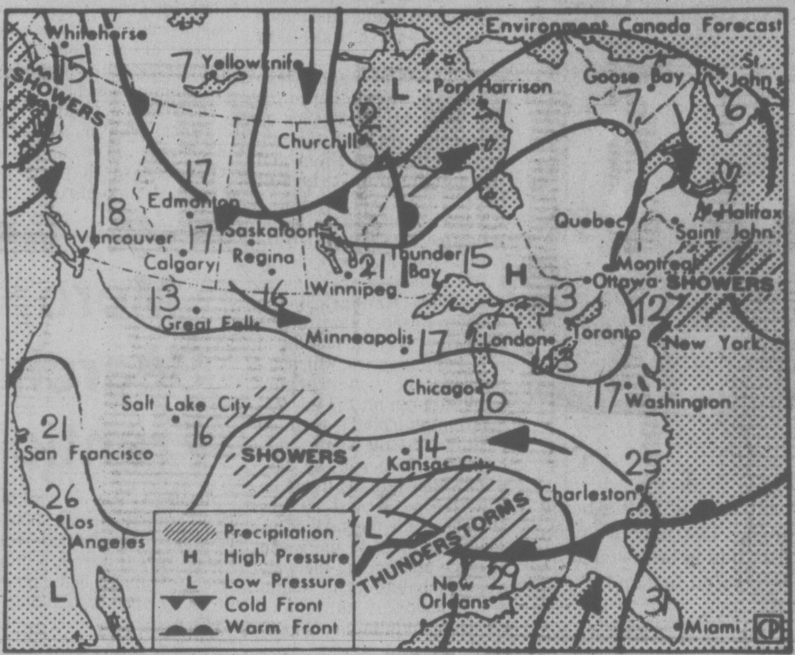

Map valid until noon Sunday

A massive ridge of high pressure remains firmly entrenched over the province today. The ridge holds the promise of sunny skies for most communities throughout the weekend. On the north coast, however, increasing cloudiness is in store as bits and pieces of cloud drift in from a weakening Pacific disturbance. Temperatures will climb a degree or two higher today and again on Sunday giving values just above the normal for this time of year.

Slow Arms Race, Brezhnev Warns

Times News Services

BONN — Thermonuclear war may engulf the world unless the East-West arms race is halted, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev has warned.

The Soviet leader made the remark and termed disarmament the world's "most pressing political question" during a 2½-hour talk Friday with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, Brezhnev aides said.

They said Brezhnev and Schmidt expressed "strong interest" in reaching a "positive conclusion" of East-West disarmament talks on reducing troops in Europe and U.S.-Soviet strategic weapons.

The 71-year-old Russian leader, who ends a four-day visit to Bonn Sunday, also repeated his offer for a joint U.S.-Soviet pact renouncing production of the neutron bomb.

The bomb kills by high doses oy radiation rather than by explosions and was developed for use against Russian tanks in Central Europe. If produced, the bomb would be deployed in West Germany.

After the second day of a four-day German-Soviet summit, spokesmen for both sides indicated little progress was made on questions dealing with Berlin, which the Germans view as a key measure of Soviet good will.

There were also some German words of caution with respect to trends in trade between the two European powers, a subject that is of central interest to the Kremlin.

Though both leaders have stressed the great improvement in Soviet-German relationbs in recent years, the overriding importance of detente to the peoples of Central and Eastern Europe, and have generally attempted to create a good mood for these talks. The differences, especially on disarmament are being made clear publicly and there is no sign yet of any change in positions.

In a luncheon address, Schmidt stressed what are both German and NATO concerns about the disparity in Warsaw Pact military strength arrayed against the West in terms of both ground armies and intermediate-range missiles targeted on Europe. A balance of forces was necessary for political-military stability, he said.

22 Years For Avedon Pretender

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A man who impersonated fashion photographer Richard Avedon to swindle women in Vancouver and a number of U.S. centres was sentenced to 22 years in prison Friday for assault with intent to commit rape.

Oscar Kendall, 33, was arrested Sept. 13 after being recognized in a Washington bar.

Police said Kendall had been posing as Avedon, a widely-known fashion photographer, for four years in the U.S. and Canada.

They accused him of promising women he would make them models, then take their money and sometimes assault or rape them.

Soviet Union Racist - Carter

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — President Jimmy Carter, calling the Soviet Union a racist regime, says he has warned the Russians many times that to "maintain peace throughout the world" they must watch their step in Africa.

But Carter did not say what he would do if the Russians do not heed the warning.

"The Soviets know very clearly how deeply I feel about this," the U.S. president said. "I have communicated directly with (Soviet President Leonid) Brezhnev through private sealed messages."

Carter made his comments at a town meeting in Spokane, Wash., on Friday as he concluded a four-state tour to the western United States. The president returned to Washington late Friday night.

The president told his audience of 1,750 that Cuban troops have been used by the Russians to fight in African conflicts and said he has communicated his concern about this to Moscow "in the strongest possible terms."

LEBANESE BATTLE

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanese Moslems and Christians traded tank, mortar and bazooka fire in southeastern Beirut today, leaving four persons dead and 25 wounded, police said.

But Syrian tanks and artillery positions intervened with heavy barrages and stopped the fighting as the Christians and Moslems accused each other of shooting first.

A Dangerous Ruling

It was a one-week wonder of a controversy, but the uproar of the past few days in Ottawa over a circular issued by the income tax department telling charitable organizations to refrain from all "political activity" seems so very typical of how clumsy and inept the federal Liberal administration has become.

Information circular 78-3 was mailed out to charitable organizations in February. It told them in plain language to cease any and all forms of political activity (defined as anything designed to "influence the policy-making process of any level of government") if they wished to preserve their tax-exempt status.

Typically, the circular is still unavailable to the public in Victoria — months after it was first issued by Revenue Canada in Ottawa.

But judging from from news reports of the circular and the debate it touched off in the House of Commons, the circular was nothing less than a complete gag order designed to shut up agencies which may have irritated the government in the past, but whose work was supported by many, many Canadians.

The explanation for circular 78-3 is confused and curious. Former National Revenue Minister Monique Begin says she asked for a new interpretation of "political activity" in the Income Tax Act, because women's groups had complained to her that they were being denied tax-exempt status because they fought for women's rights.

The curent Revenue Minister, Sen. Joe Guay, says he has asked his civil servants to "review and clarify the bulletin now that there's a controversy over this thing."

Fine, but where was Guay when the circular was issued in February? Doesn't he read these things before they go out? Wouldn't he have been told of such a sensitive subject? Apparently not. The national revenue portfolio has been a revolving door; Guay held the job for barely seven months before he was shuffled off to his reward in the Senate. The fact that such a dangerous ruling could be sent out over his name without his being aware of it demonstrates how sloppy the government has become, an example of how the non-elected, responsible-to-no-one civil service has moved into the vacuum.

While the affected organizations will welcome the government's quick switch in the face of determined opposition, we are alarmed that such a dumb statement of policy could come out of our expensive, talented federal administration in the first place. If it is illustrative of how the bureaucracy thinks, the country is in trouble.

Defining political activity, the original ruling from the taxmen gave as an example "an organization formed to promote temperance by securing legislation to reduce the consumption of alcohol (even though the courts have held otherwise that the promotion of temperance otherwise is a charitable object)." A charitable organization may, according to the ruling, present a brief to a parliamentary committee or royal commission "providing it does not undertake a program to promote its recommendations." Organizations may talk to MPs, if they do not "attempt to influence legislation."

Words fail to describe this stupid, naive, 19th century attitude. Charitable organizations have moved far beyond being passive hand-wringers, quiet doers of good deeds. Many have moved to an activist stance; expressing one's opinion in the belief that common sense will prevail unaided is no longer good enough, if it ever was.

The interpretation is narrow and pinch-minded, typical of the bureaucratic dislike of gadfly organizations which sometimes make life difficult for public administrators. But without groups like Oxfam or the Anglican Synod or the Sierra Club pushing and prodding the great elephantine mass of government in Ottawa to change its foreign aid program or adopt a better northern development policy or protect wildlife and wilderness Canada would be a poorer place.

It is savagely ironic that if the groups proscribed by Revenue Canada called themselves political parties there would be no problem with the taxman. Liberals, Tories, New Democrats and Social Crediters almost every day are influencing policy and pressuring the government, helped by tax-deductible donations from public-spirited citizens.

Perhaps you feel the National Association to Save Indigent Gentlefolk does a better job of protecting your interests than one of the political parties. Perhaps you'd like to make a donation to ensure that it has funds to carry on the cause, influencing policy and pressuring the government to see that NASIG members are not overlooked by the government. By anyone's definition, a charitable organization. But it would not qualify for tax-exempt status. It would have to work twice as hard to raise funds to carry on its good work as would a political party. Substitute Oxfam or any one of dozens of charitable organizations in Canada for the fictional NASIG and the huge implications of this new interpretation of the tax laws become clearer.

The politicians have taken care of themselves. Donations to recognized federal parties are tax deductible. Now they should remedy this anachronistic defect in the country's tax laws and ensure that Canada's charitable organizations may continue their work unhindered.

Sun Day

A quick idea for any readers who are looking for something a little different to do this weekend: drop down on Sunday to the playing fields of Beacon Hill Park for the Celebration of the Sun festival.

Although the solar heating systems, windmills, wood-burning stoves and seaweed-as-food displays may seem far out, they may be a taste of the future. After all, already the ideas are respectable enough that the federal government is one of the sponsors of the festival.

Contests, Family Nights Mark May Family Month

It is ironic that the ministry of human resources made its suggestion about charging low-income people for family counselling in the month of May since this is Family Month in British Columbia.

Although it has gone largely unheralded by governments, May is when a number of church groups, service clubs and others are making a special effort to promote family life, to encourage family activities and to look at ways to help families stay together.

In Victoria, the effort is being co-ordinated by the local branch of the B.C. Council of the Family, a fledgling group that has been bringing people together here for only about four months. The province-wide council is a little older, having been formed as an offshoot of a series of conferences on the family, begun as a joint effort by the churches and the provincial government in the days of the NDP.

Head of the local branch is Bill Buckley, the owner of a limousine service, who was not involved with the original conferences but joined the group "because I thought family life was so important."

Buckley and many of the others involved are admitted idealists, firm in their belief that improving the quality of families is the root solution to many of our social problems such as crime and juvenile delinquency, alcoholism and drug abuse. It's a fact, Buckley said firmly, that very few children who come from healthy, happy families with good communication patterns get into trouble at school or in the community.

The only question that then remains to be answered is: how can a volunteer group like the council best help families? To date, the Victoria branch's goal has been to reach as many families as possible with a few of their ideas.

That means, Buckley agreed, that most of their current efforts are probably directed towards making already adequate families better and maybe bringing a few marginal families into the adequate area. They have not yet begun to develop programs that might help the really inadequate, multi-problem families that now probably produce the most social problems. That will come later.

To mark Family Month, the Victoria branch is sponsoring three projects: a series of contests for schoolchildren, a proposal to churches that they each try to hold some sort of family event for their congregations during May, and a proposal to every family in Victoria that it should start a regular "family night," probably every week.

It is the last proposal that most excites Buckley. The idea, as he explains it, is that a family should choose one night a week when all family members would sacrifice other commitments. They might go on outings as a group, share activities at home, or just use the evening to talk about things that are on their mind.

"Many families today just don't seem to have any time together," he said. "Everyone's always busy with something else." A family night provides the time during which lines of communication can be opened up and also shows each member of the family that the others think the family is important and have a commitment to it.

The aim of the contests is to encourage children to think about families, both their own and other people's, on a level appropriate for their ages. For primary youngsters, it involves drawing; for the middle levels, an essay contest and for senior students, a photography contest.

Prizes have been provided by local businesses, but Buckley said he was disappointed by the reaction of many of the larger stores. One department store told him the branch's programs "can't fit into our priorities." Mostly, he said, it was smaller businesses who were willing to donate.

For the longer term, the branch has a number of ideas on the drawing board. It would like to encourage family-oriented businesses, such as some restaurants and entertainment establishments, to offer discounts for families. It would like to encourage marriage preparation courses to help young people who are about to start families. And it would like to begin to help the inadequate families by working in family counselling.

It is, Buckley says, extremely difficult to judge the effectiveness of any of the work. "It's preventive work. You can't tell what might have happened to a family if they hadn't been given just a little extra awareness and help." It might be 20 or 25 years before you realize that the children of today are themselves starting better families as the result of the help their families are given now.

But he concludes: "If you make everybody think about their family for just two minutes during Family Month, you can't help but have done some good." He's undoubtedly right. Perhaps all our readers will think for a few minutes about their family right now. — B.McL.

More on the Poverty War

OTTAWA — Of all the reasons why we have made so little progress toward reducing inequalities of income among Canadians, the most important probably is one the least commented on. For fear of seeming chauvinist, the experts pretend not to notice the unequal role of women.

In play is a classic confrontation between opposed Good Things: equality of women and equality of incomes. We cannot, it seems, have both. To put the case simply, the wives of the well-to-do, when they work, tend to do well themselves.

In 1975, according to the Economic Council, "secondary earners," that is both spouses and live-in children, contributed $8,000 to the total after-tax income of the top 20 per cent of Canadian families, but added only $1,400 to the income of the 20 per cent of families in the middle income range. (Comparisons with the bottom one-fifth of "family units" cannot be made since most of these are single individuals unassisted by "secondary earners.")

Not What They Seem

Since 1971, the contributions of "secondary earners" to the total incomes of the best-off families have almost doubled (an increase of $3,600), but have added just $400 more to the income of middle-income families.

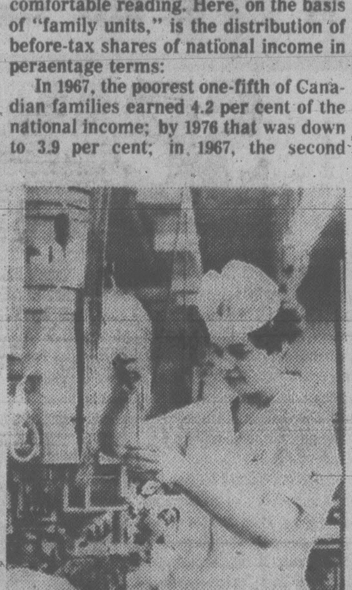
Income inequalities, about which we are hearing so much these days, are not, therefore, necessarily what they seem to be. The inequalities exist all right, but for reasons more complex than the facile accusation that our politicians have preached one thing and practised quite another, either by rigging the tax system so that it takes almost as much from the poor as from the rich (as it does) or by implementing programs like unemployment insurance which give at least as much to the well-off as to those in real financial need.

A recent column which argued that Prime Minister Trudeau is essentially correct in his claim that poverty in Canada has been cut in half in the past 10 years, inspired some interesting reactions. Some readers said, in effect: "At last, the other side of the story." Others accused me of "being gullible," or, the sharpest barb of all, of "selling out."

My argument, I admit, is nuanced. On the one hand, we have done far less to reduce poverty and to equalize incomes than we thought we were doing during all those years, through the late 1960s and early 1970s, when governments threw so much money at these problems. On the other hand, we have accomplished more than it is now fashionable to believe.

Certainly, the statistics make for uncomfortable reading. Here, on the basis of "family units," is the distribution of before-tax shares of national income in peraentage terms:

In 1967, the poorest one-fifth of Canadian families earned 4.2 per cent of the national income; by 1976 that was down to 3.9 per cent; in 1967, the second one-fifth earned 11.4 per cent; in 1976 that was down to 10.2 per cent. The middle one-fifth earned 17.8 per cent in 1967, 17.2 per cent in 1976. The fourth one-fifth earned 24.6 per cent in 1967; 24.8 per cent in 1976, and the share of the top one-fifth had increased from 42.0 per cent to 44.0 per cent from 1967 to 1976.



WOMEN AT WORK
. . . widened income gap

Over the past decade, it seems, we have paved a road to unequal incomes with good intentions and with money. Indeed, back to 1951, the relative income shares are unchanged.

The absolute income gap has actually widened; in terms of dollars of equal value, the top-to-bottom gap was $6,900 in 1951, but is $18,000 today.

Should we, therefore, hang our heads in shame? No, we can lift our chins just a little. Comparisons based on cash incomes alone (earnings plus social security payments) are always deceptive. Two examples:

☐ A 1977 Statistics Canada study raised the share of the bottom one-fifth to 4.5 per cent and lowered that of the top one-fifth to 41.7 per cent by making an allowance for the equivalent cash value of medical and educational services.

☐ A 1977 health and welfare department study revised the share of the bottom one-fifth to 5.8 per cent and cut back that of the top one-fifth to 39.4 per cent by adding in some non-cash income e.g., owner-occupied houses and some under-reported cash income.

The changes in percentages seem small. The changes in real living standards, though, are considerable.

Even to have kept incomes from becoming more unequal is an accomplishment. During the past decade, most natural societal forces have pushed us in the direction of increased inequality. We have, therefore, although having to run faster, kept in the same place.

Women, Students

The mass entry of women into the labor force is probably the most powerful social pressure causing income gaps to widen. The "bulge" in the numbers of young people is another one — since statisticians can only count by numbers, many college students are classed in the bottom one-fifth of income earners on the basis of their summer work pittances.

A third factor is early retirement. Many more Canadians now are exchanging salaies for the low-cash incomes of pensions, but are compensated in part by increased in-kind income that is made available to the retired such as subsidized drugs, public transportation and entertainment.

The conclusions? Probably incomes are less unequal than we are being led to believe. Certainly no one really knows just how unequal real incomes are. Before any more anti-poverty and income-redistribution programs are started, or present ones cut back, and before any more rhetoric gets thrown at the subject, the least that government should do is to find out for the first time what it is is that it is really trying to do.

Does a Good Job

I would like to correct the misconception given in the letter written by Phyllis Chamberlin recently (Slur on Fernwood, Times, April 22).

In Mr. Haegart's statement to city council he stated that the culture of our younger generation is different from ours. Phyllis must realize that news items are often misquoted or their intent not brought out.

As many in our community are aware, Mr. Haegart is one of the leading lights at the youth hostel, so how can he not support young people?

He is also our worthy president and I for one feel that he is doing a fine job. He was only asking for what many of us feel, "a place of our own in the sun." — Elenor Millar, Secretary, Fernwood Autumn Glo Society.

Trident Protest

May 20-23 people will be gathering in Washington state to "open up" the Trident base. The following morning those willing to risk a jail sentence will enter the gates with the arriving workers; other groups will participate from a legally safe position outside the gate.

The large group will be divided into regional affinity groups. People attending the demonstration from Vancouver Island are expected to attend an introductory training workshop on non-violence and an affinity group meeting.

Dr. William Epstein, a noted authority on disarmament, was quoted as saying he does not think the special session on disarmament at the UN will be very effective, since the big powers are not willing to be serious about disarming.

This means that the ordinary person, you and I, have to take responsibility for what happens to this planet earth. If we speak with one voice and act in unison, we will be given the strength to stop the dreadful Trident monster, which is a first-strike weapon capable of destruction that would make the devastation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki look small.

To those who would say "why don't you protest the Russian arms build-up?" I reply I do protest, and we hear of more and more Russian people protesting.

The film Holocaust showed what can happen when we meekly line up for extermination.

Anyone wishing to participate in the May 22 Coalition to stop Trident, please call David 382-0201 or Geoff 382-1867 (evenings best). — Ms. Berta Schmidt, 765 Arden Road.

Phone Phraud

Derek Sidenius's article Phone Fraud (Times, May 1) was excellent except for one minor detail — now well over 30,000 Times readers know exactly what to do if they are in a larcenous frame of mind and they feel like making a buckshee long distance phone call.

Sure the phone companies are "prepared to live with the loss" — they just pass it on to the consumer, so after that primer let's hope that our phone bills don't skyrocket. — Ruby A. Pearson, 2085 Avondale Road.

Editor's Note: B.C. Tel volunteered the information in the article. Many details of other methods of phone fraud mentioned in the interview the Times reporter deliberately left out. The company itself had no complaints about the story.

A Fine Idea?

I read an article recently in which Ald. Robin Blencoe advocated a 10 per cent discount for senior citizens on all purchases made in Victoria. As a local retail merchant I think that this is a fine idea. Victoria has a senior population of about 20 per cent which would represent a cost to the merchants of about two per cent of net sales per year, providing of course that the practice wasn't abused, e.g., senior citizens buying for the younger members of the family. Of course I would expect Mr. Blencoe to publicly endorse a similar cut of two per cent per year by the non-business segment of Victoria, maybe starting with the union he is closest to. If however, Mr. Blencoe will not make such a statement, then we will have to assume that he is just grandstanding for the media, a habit that seems to be common to political animals of all persuasions. — F. Whitfield, Victoria.

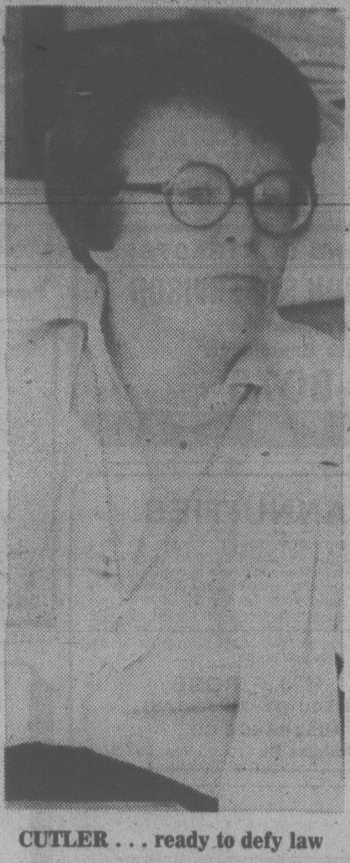
Angry Publisher Fights Quebec Language Bill

By WILLIAM FRENCH
The Globe and Mail

As if Rene Levesque hasn't enough to worry about, with Claude Ryan breathing down his neck, now he has May Cutler on his tail. Mrs. Cutler, the most feisty and fearsome of all Canadian book publishers, victor of memorable battles with politicians and bureaucrats from Ottawa to the Yukon, is angry about Quebec's proposed language law, Bill 101. And when Mrs. Cutler is angry, prudent men have learned to run for cover, preferably to the nearest bunker.

As president of Tundra Books in Montreal, Mrs. Cutler is particularly upset about the parts of Bill 101 that apply to English-language book publishers. When the law takes effect in July, these publishers will be subject to a lot of niggling restrictions on the way they do business. The most contentious clauses — which are bothering a lot of other English-language publishers too — decree that publishers must print their semi-annual catalogues in French, regardless of whether there is any demand for them (they may also print them in English, but not bilingually) and must restrict bookstore posters to French, even though they are selling English-language books to English Canadian readers.

If an English-language catalogue is sent to someone who did not specifically request it, the publisher can be fined up to $1,000 for a first offence and up to $5,000 for subsequent transgressions.



CUTLER . . . ready to defy law

Mrs. Cutler vehemently objects, and has written to Premier Levesque to say so. "I must inform you," she said in her letter, "that if Bill 101 is passed containing these provisions, then Tundra Books must openly defy them . . . Tundra Books will continue to conduct its business exactly as it has always done. It will continue to publish books in any language or combination of languages it decides. It will also publish its catalogue in any language or languages it decides, and it will send out such material to whomever it chooses. If under the provisions of this law Tundra Books is fined, it will not pay such fine."

She added that a book publisher has a moral obligation to oppose any attempt by governments to interfere with the written word through laws, licences and fines: "Such an attempt is not in keeping with North American standards of press freedom. I therefore urge you and your cabinet to review this aspect of Bill 101 immediately and to remove these offending clauses."

Tundra was established in 1967 and has since published many books, particularly children's books, that have won international awards, including those by William Kurelek.

There has been no response from Levesque, but Mrs. Cutler's threat to defy the law may give him pause. There is some doubt about the constitutionality of a law that prohibits the use of one of the two official languages, and a court test could be interesting. The Canadian Book Publishers Council, which commissioned the initial investigation into the implications of Bill 101, issued a statement last week in which it too raised the constitutional question. "We view with grave concern any areas of Bill 101 which seem to apply a prohibition against individuals whose first, or only, language is English, from using that language," the statement said. "The promotion of an English-language (book) in the French language to an English-speaking Quebec populace negates the right of all Canadians to communicate . . . in their mother tongue."

The Council does not object to those parts of Bill 101 that will require bilingual invoices, shipping labels and so on. But its members are now contemplating their next move in opposing those parts of the bill that insist on French only. Mrs. Cutler may have beaten them to the draw.

Meanwhile, there are signs that language tensions are causing some strange aberrations at Queen's Park, if the experience of Vancovuer novelist Jan Drabek is typical. Drabek recently wrote a short fable for children for inclusion in a Grade 7 reader to be published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston in Toronto. The story, called How Bernard Became The Quietest Beaver in Canada, is an inoffensive send-up of our sometimes overly sensitive preoccupation with the language question. It involves a talking beaver which lives in a norther wilderness area straddling the Ontario-Quebec border. The beaver has learned to speak English, but when the area is turned into a national park, he's informed by the warden that if he wants to stay, he'll have to learn French too. He tries, but can't get his teeth around the French words. His wife suggests the solution: give up English too. If he can't speak any language, then he won't have to be bilingual.

Drabek's story had been accepted by the publisher and was set in type. Then he was informed by an editor at Holt, Rinehart and Winston that they wouldn't be using it after all. Someone in the Ontario Department of Education objected to the story, and the book would not be approved for school use if it were left in. The editor was apologetic; the story was amusing and handled the language problem lightly and tactfully, but the publisher had no alternative but to omit it.

For Drabek, who says he is flabbergasted by the banning of his story, the incident has ominous overtones. "I remember as a kid in Nazi-occupied Czechoslovakia our teachers were forbidden to mention any instance of Czech-German conflict," he says. "Since most of that country's story is concerned with survival while surrounded with German speaking people, history had to be dropped from the curriculum. I wonder what will have to be dropped from the Ontario curriculum — the study of beavers or bilingualsim?"

Drabek is right to be concerned, of course. A country without a sense of humor is hardly worth saving.

The Truth We Don't Want to Know

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE
Toronto Star

Do you know about the following, or do you care?

That an all-star hockey forward gets shock treatment for depression.

That one of the game's gentlest players recently beat up his wife.

That one player was traded because he has a drug problem.

That another missed several games because his wife carved him up with a butcher knife.

These tidbits, according to Roy MacGregor, writing in Maclean's, are well known to sportswriters, but have never been reported. Why? Because the scribes are either cosseted by the owners or afraid of being punched out by the players.

MacGregor is steamed up about this. "The hear-see-say-nothing syndrome of too much sportswriting is so hidebound by its long tradition that sports — whether seen as a game or entertainment, or what it is, a business — has fallen far behind the critical and investigative work being done in other fields," he says.

And a good thing, too, say I. I don't want to hear anything about players' private lives. I just want them to go on kicking the dirt and allowing that:

"Well, yes, Dave, I find it a lot different in the NHL than back in junior. The game's a lot faster and the guys hit harder . . ."

Or: "You know me, Al, I never make predictions. We're going to go out there and we're , well, we're just going to play football."

More than they are entertainment, or a business, sports are an enduring fantasy, depending for their existence and prosperity on a willing suspension of disbelief by the fans.

For sports to thrive, millions must go to bed every night pretending to themselves that it really matters who wins the Stanley Cup, the Grey Cup or the Memorial Cup. In their daily talk around the office they have to act as though they know what "seeded" means in relation to tennis, or what Howard Cosell is talking about when he mentions a pitcher's ERA.

Serious chronicling of sports, let alone anything as inappropriate as "investigative reporting" would be an affront to the nation's wholly proper notion that professional athletes are not men and women but gods who descend from the heavens every Saturday to bring joy and contentment to us huddled mortals, the only joy and contentment most of us can ever expect to find on earth.

Ring Lardner, the greatest of all baseball writers, always treated the players he travelled with in the '20s as a special breed — not dumb, exactly, but not exactly brainy, either — about whom it would have been cruel and almost obscene to tell the hard truth.

Lardner invented a droll style that filtered the athlete's real nature, removing the grit, rounding the edges, turning Nebraska plow-boys into natural sages and big city bullies into lovable cut-ups. The Lardner style has become standard in sports writing, hallowed as a tradition as Latin prayers are, or were, in the Catholic Church.

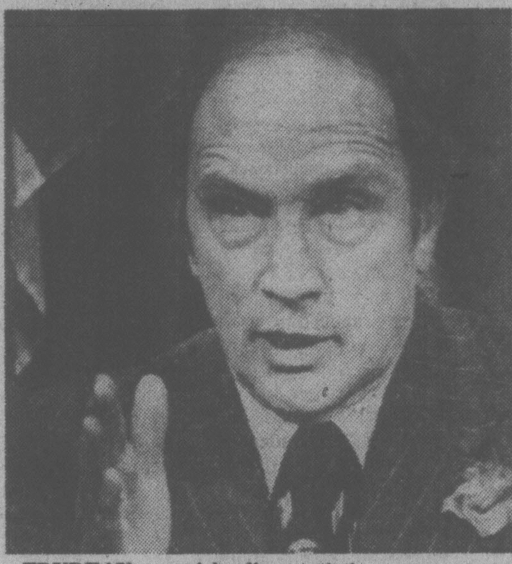
The importance of the universal sports fantasy to the mental health and domestic tranquility of society cannot be exaggerated. Take away our second cars if you must, drain off our pittance in unjust taxation, insult and harass us, but leave us with our dream of excellence, our memory of innocence, our only true pleasure.

Trudeau's 'Ready-made' Answer

MONTREAL LE DEVOIR
An Editorial

Since he agreed to put aside some of his individuality for political reasons, Pierre Trudeau has adopted one of the most detestable electoral practices, that of the ready-made answer.

Each time he is asked about the Just Society of 1968, he answers with the same highly disputable and simplistic statistic about the number of people living below the poverty line in Canada.



TRUDEAU . . . misleading statistics on poverty

Trudeau states that the number of people who lived below the poverty line — as defined by the Economic Council of Canada — was 19.6 per cent in 1968, the year he took power. He says that that figure, even taking inflation into account, is below 10 per cent this year.

His calculation can be explained in the following way: In 1961, Statistics Canada adopted the criterion used by the Economic Council of Canada as a measuring stick of "low income." It classed among the poor those who spent 70 per cent or more of their income on essential services such as food, shelter and clothing.

However, at the beginning of the 1970s, Statistics Canada decided to revise that criterion, given the general increase in the standard of living and the fact that "poverty" in a country is relative to the available wealth, rather than an absolute. People defined as having low income then became those who spent at least 62 per cent of their income on essential goods.

Without taking this revision into account, we realize that 19.8 per cent of Canadians lived under the poverty level in 1967. This compares to 10.5 per cent in 1976, using preliminary statistics, the most recent ones to be officially published. However, the revised statistic put the proportion at 13 per cent.

To judge the state of equity and justice in a society, the "poverty line" method is one of the most disputable as long as it is artificial and arbitrary.

What do not deceive, however, are recently published studies on the distribution of incomes in Canada. These studies show, one after another, that the proportion of the most underprivileged in Canada has not budged for dozens of years. They also show that government plans — both federal and provincial — more often than not have regressive rather than positive effects as regards the situation of the poor among us.

One of the most interesting statistics discloses that the 20 per cent of Canadians who have the lowest incomes together take in only four per cent of the total national income, compared with about 42 per cent for the 20 per cent of Canadians with the highest revenues.

These statistics — also taken from Statistics Canada — have not budged in more than 20 years and, in fact, the gap has had a slight tendency to widen.

Confronted with these figures, Trudeau replied recently that the idea of a "Just Society" did not mean that people "should have approximately equal revenue or that their situation should be about equal," but rather that it was a matter of providing for "equality of opportunity."

Trudeau's ready-made answers will no doubt succeed less in bringing him votes than in sending dangerously off to sleep the conscience of a people always ready to find that they are already doing too much for the unemployed, for those who benefit from social measures and for other underprivileged people.

Hummingbird Conundrum

You'll search high and low but you won't find Allen's Hummingbird on any Canadian list of birds; the bird has just never been seen here. But, in the past month, several enthusiastic Victoria birders have been doing their utmost to remedy this sad state of affairs and get a new bird added to both the Canadian and British Columbia lists.

Unfortunately, if they depend simply on seeing the birds in the wild, their efforts may be doomed from the beginning.

The sudden interest in this tiny little fellow that seldom gets much farther north than California stems from reports that have been coming into Victoria's Rare Bird Alert since early in April of rufous-colored hummingbirds with green backs. Gwen and Tom Briggs saw one near Florence Lake; Vic Goodwill, another, near Prospect Lake; and Mr. and Mrs. John Holt still another, at their home on William Head Road. The latter has been a regular customer at the Holt's feeder for nearly a month.

Rufous-colored hummingbirds with green backs are worthy of attention. Our common summer hummingbird, the Rufous Hummingbird — in full, adult male plumage — has a rich rufous back, from head to tail. An adult male Allen's, on the other hand, will have a patch of rufous on his nape, another on his rump, and an emerald green "saddle" between.

It is this green saddle that has the local birders on their toes. But if it was only a matter of green on the back against no green on the back, the problem would be solved. Unfortunately, it isn't that easy.

Since the females of both species are indistinguishable in the field we can forget them forthwith. Sorry ladies, that's not male chauvinism. That's life!

The flies in the ointment are the male Rufous Hummingbirds. It seems that not all of them achieve a full rufous back for their first nesting season but arrive for their nuptials showing various amounts of green on the back. How quickly they achieve the full rufous back seems to depend on diet. So, green on the back isn't necessarily diagnostic.

But there's another clue — courtship behavior. And if you thought green, or no green, on the back was confusing, stay with me; it gets even worse.

According to the most frequently used birding reference in these parts — Birds of North America by the troika of Robbins, Bruun and Zim — male Rufous Hummingbirds, performing before the female, go through an oval courtship flight, while a male Allen's courtship flight involves steep dives and shallow, darting, arcs before the female. Both accompany these flights with various sounds, some vocal, some made by the rush of air through the wings.

Well, you might think from these descriptions that, once again, the problem was solved. Not so. Of all the people I talked to about the courtship flight of the Rufous Hummingbird, the Holts were the only ones who had ever seen it. Most who have seen a Rufous Hummingbird courting describe something that has elements of the Allen's display, including dives and swaying arcs — often called the pendulum flight.

The trouble with the courtship displays of hummingbirds is that they are so difficult to see, particularly from the beginning. Mostly, when we do eventually find the darting male after hearing the noise he's making, we see only part of the display. And, without seeing the whole performance, it is almost impossible to be sure which species is displaying.

So, where does that leave us? In a lot of doubt, I guess. If Allen's Hummingbird is ever going to be identified for certain here, it's going to have to be with the bird in hand. Only then can the subtle, but diagnostic, differences in the tail feathers be seen and only then will we be able to say for sure, it's an Allen's.

In the meantime there's no harm in trying. After all, wasn't it under similar circumstances that another Californian — Anna's Hummingbird — showed up here several years ago? And look at Anna's now — a bona fide member of the local landed gentry, both winter and summer.

But Anna's Hummingbird entry into our bird record was easy compared to trying to get Allen's Hummingbird in. Anna's, unlike Allen's, couldn't be confused with anything else!

Large Pipe Pushes Costs

EDMONTON (CP) — Foothills Pipe Lines (Yukon) says the cost of the Canadian portion of the Alaskan pipeline will increase significantly if the pipeline diametre is increased.

The National Energy Board recently recommended the larger diamater for the pipeline to increase capacity at Whitehorse, where the proposed Dempster pipeline ultimately may join the system.

The pipeline will run from Whitehorse to Caroline, Alta., near Red Deer.

Foothills initially estimated costs at $3.9 billion but said they would rise to about $4.4 billion, said company president Robert Blair.

No construction will begin until at least 1980 and it will not begin until 1981 in the Yukon, said Blair. Before contracts could be negotiated with North Slope producers, the wellhead price of Alaskan gas must be established.

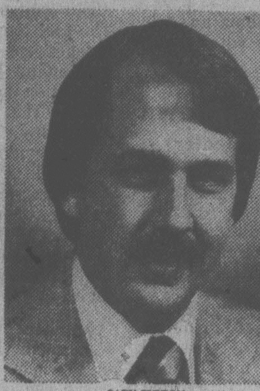
HAYHURST ADVERTISING APPOINTMENTS

CAM TURNER



GARY FULTON

Kenneth McK. Wright, Senior Vice-President and Western Manager of Hayhurst Advertising, is pleased to announce the appointment of Cam Turner and Gary Fulton as Account Directors.

Mr. Turner, who is an Honours B.A. Business Administration from the University of Western Ontario, joined the Agency in Toronto in 1964 where he gained extensive experience servicing a varied group of large package goods accounts. Subsequently in 1973, he joined the Vancouver office where he assumed responsibility for the provision of a wide range of communication and marketing services for a number of important client accounts.

Mr. Fulton joined Hayhurst in 1973 following service with another national advertising agency. A graduate B.A. from San Jose State College, he has been directly involved in the development and execution of numerous successful marketing, advertising and communications programs on behalf of Hayhurst clients.

The appointments to the senior positions of Account Directors are in keeping with the Agency's policy of continually maximizing its ability to provide the best possible advertising counsel for all clients. The appointments also mark the continuing growth of the Agency that is now celebrating its Fiftieth anniversary year.

F.H. Hayhurst Co. Limited, one of Canada's major national advertising agencies was established in 1928. The company maintains offices in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal and provides a wide range of marketing, advertising and communication services to leading Canadian and U.S. companies.

A Gutsy Story Smothered in Sentiment

'Julia' Reviewed by Lorraine Locherty

One chapter from Lillian Hellman's autobiography Pentimento is not enough to sustain a whole movie, especially the way it's treated by director Fred Zinneman.

In Julia, he puts Hellman's youthful memories of her friendship with an heiress turned Nazi resistance-fighter up on a pedestal. Julia could have been a gutsy adventure film, but is too maudlin to be exciting. It gushes with a lot of sentiment and little substance.

Zinneman seems awed by the incredible relationship between Hellman, played by Jane Fonda, and Julia, portrayed by Vanessa Redgrave. He has air-brushed his subjects with a soft filmy coating of nobility and righteousness that doesn't do justice to the hard-driving Hellman or the tough Julia. If Zinneman had put more emphasis on the suspense of the situation and daring of the women he would have had a great film.

Zinneman falls into the same trap that catches other male directors of pictures about women: romanticism. The fact that women can be independent, bold and have meaningful friendships is a revelation that he over-glamorizes. The result is soppy and sappy. The same problem is evident to a greater degree in Paul Mazursky's An Unmarried Woman and to a lesser degree in Herbert Ross' The Turning Point, both so-called "women's" movies that were directed by men.

Another problem is Jane Fonda, who lacks credibility in the role of Hellman because she is too privileged, too beautiful, too graceful and too gentile to be the small, unattractive, belligerent and Jewish Hellman. Fonda is no longer at war with the world and it shows. Even though she chain smokes and downs endless fifths of whiskey in an effort to emulate Hellman, it's not believable.

At one point her lover-mentor, writer Dashiell Hammett (played with just the right touch of ennui by Jason Robards) tells her she's a bulldog. Jane Fonda could never be a bulldog, she's more like a greyhound: fast and willowy. And Hellman clearly idolizes Julia because of her great beauty as well as her altruism. That's understandable because Hellman is ugly; but in the movie Fonda is more beautiful than Redgrave, so it doesn't make any sense. Both Robards and Redgrave have small parts, but they make the most of them and deserve their supporting Oscars.

Friendship between two women is the central theme and it overshadows the action. Hellman walks on the beach a lot, writes, suddenly becomes a famous playwright and recalls her memories of Julia.

There are plenty of flashbacks of the two of them as teenagers in ribbons and curls — very pretty but signifying little. Then they both grow up and go their separate ways, Hellman to become a tormented writer and Julia to spend her fortune helping oppressed peoples.

Eventually her great love for Julia leads Hellman to jeopardize her life. She agrees to be a courier for $50,000 of the heiress' money that will be used to free political prisoners in Germany. This part of the plot is full of suspense-building possibilities that never materialize. The audience is always waiting for something to happen, but very little does.

Chile Backs Down

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — The Chilean government Friday rescinded an expulsion order against a U.S. journalist, a French nun and seven foreign priests alleged to have taken part in illegal May Day demonstrations. Foreign Minister Hernan Cubillos said the journalist, Ronald Moreau of Newsweek magazine, was merely doing his job when he was arrested. He said the government was giving the benefit of the doubt to the priests and nun, who said they were just passing by when arrested.

Art Shows Compete for Attention

BY AUDREY JOHNSON

The constant increase in the colony of professional and otherwise highly qualified artists now resident here has brought the situation to a point where, relative to its size, Victoria has one of the largest concentrations of productive artists in Canada.

There are probably more than twice the number of small private galleries operating compared to what existed five years ago.

Across this desk a decade ago, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria releases were about the only news of art shows that appeared. Today it is very different, with at least once or twice a month, a veritable eruption of new shows clamoring for attention.

Attention in the shape of reviews of shows is unfortunately difficult to arrange at the present time, partly because a highly knowledgable and journalistically able person must be ready and willing to take on a challenging and often thorny job.

In any event, critiques are prized mostly as additions to artists' curricula vitae, are probably largely taken with a grain of salt, infrequently respected, and do not for certain even provide a major impetus for people to visit any given show. Nevertheless, the size of Victoria's art colony does undoubtedly warrant attention on a little more of an equal basis with that given the other arts in this city.

Among private galleries, The Maples, on the corner of West Saanich and Keating Cross Road, is one of the most vigorous and versatile. On Sunday, May 14, an exhibition of porcelain and stoneware by Art Brendon will open. This artist's work is frequently shown in Vancouver, Banff and Calgary although his home base is at Maples.

The coming show is his first solo exhibition and he regards it with a mixture of reticence and confidence. Toronto-born, Brendon attended the Kootenay School of Art at Nelson and studied with Walter Dexter, a master potter now working in Victoria. Later he spent about 18 months in England visiting various potteries and trying to shed the art school influences and mentality.

Studying subsequently in Vancouver while working as a commercial artist, he was confronted with the inevitable choice of giving up his amibition to be a "serious" craftsman in favor of commercial work. He chose commitment to fine craftsmanship and secured an apprenticeship in Medicine Hat with well-known potters John Porter and Luke Lindo.

Brendon taught pottery courses at Camosun College in 1974 but in 1975 turned to pottery as his sole occupation. His work now, he says, is tending more toward the sculptural. He has little interest in glaze chemistry, believing that the glaze is mainly an enhancement of a pot's innate form. Innovative glazing cannot disguise sloppy or trite form, he says, no matter how adeptly it is applied.

The coming exhibition will contain little purely functional work. There will be porcelain-and-plexiglass constructions, wall plates with rugged stoneware applique, grouped pieces, sets of tiles — unashamedly decorative works. Some unusual hybrids will reveal porcelain and stoneware as a single unit.

The opening of the show will take place at 1 p.m., May 14. It will continue on view through May 28.

Seventy-seven utopian paintings depicting the joyful life of the peasant community in County Hu of Shensi Province, China, are among the new exhibitions to be opened this month at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss. They represent a new socialist art in that they are painted by amateurs, members of the new labor force, and not by some master craftsman paid by the state for his special skills in draftsmanship. The exhibit includes works by many of the artists who exhibited at the Peking Art Museum in 1973.

These remarkable gouache paintings are being circulated through the National Gallery of Canada to four centres across the country by permission of the People's Republic of China. The exhibition opens May 25 and runs through June 18.

A notable member of UVic's visual arts department went on sabbatical last year and the results of his work during the period are currently on view at the Victoria Art Gallery where they will remain through May 21. John Dobereiner rented a studio in New York while away from UVic to continue work on the shaped canvas series that has absorbed him for the last few years. Before returning to Victoria his white canvases of stretched aircraft fabric, based on hexagonal cubic forms, were shown at the co-operative Pleiades Gallery in New York.

His current show, which officially opened this week, expresses his interest in the visual play between two and three dimensions through a series of flat wall works in unpainted plywood based on the hexagon as isometric cube "drawing". Although flat, the works have apparent optical depth, an illusion reinforced by careful alignment of the wood grain.

Another show soon to open at the Gallery (May 17) has the intriguing title, Small is Beautiful, and, as might be guessed, deals primarily with the art of the miniature painter but also contains examples of the decorative arts in miniature, particularly Japanese Netsuke, Inro and Lacquer. Examples of work by such artists as Rembrandt van Rijn, James Whistler and Auguste Renoir are included.

Another show of pottery will feature Ron Tribe, acknowledged to be among the finest West Coast ceramic sculptors. It will take place at The Potters' Wheel, Nootka Court, from May 8 to 20, with a preview Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. The artist will be in attendance at the preview.

Tribe's past experience and interest in painting, architecture and the theatre, has found expression in pure, clean contemporary structures in clay reminiscent of artists such as Henry Moore, Gustav Kempf and Arthur Erickson. Influence of the paintings of Toni Onley is reflected in his use of rich browns, wheat and oyster bieges accented with shadings of turquoise and greens.

Karibu Gallery, upstairs at 565 Johnson, is another active private gallery that specializes in showing the work of resident artists. Opening there Monday will be an exhibition by Victoria artist Jean Settle. Born and raised on Vancouver Island, Ms. Settle is a self-taught artist.

Strong social concerns give rise to a number of her canvasses and human interaction remains the prime focus of expression. She works mainly in oils, acrylics and water colors. In recent years she has earned her living from the restoration of older homes, but she hopes to become a full-time artist in the near future.

Hours for viewing at Karibu are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

'I Give You Gift of Brotherhood'

What does Xa-Awthen mean? It means "Four" in the coast native tongue. And what is Four? The word in this context refers to a native Indian custom of repeating a phrase or action four times to stress its importance.

And Four is the name of a play. Chief Dan George illuminates it in the narration that introduces Xa-Awthen to an audience: "We prepared for the spirits for four days and four nights. We told our children stories four times so they would not forget. And in a world where white men fight with white, where yellow men fight with white, and where the black man fights with white — I give you the gift of Brotherhood."

Xa-Awthen is a wholly native Indian production which will be one of the highlights of B.C.'s first all-native extravaganza premiering at Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre, May 13, and at the McPherson Playhouse here, May 15.

Xa-Awthen itself is not a premiere. It was previously presented in Vancouver in 1970 when it was enthusiastically acclaimed by the media and by audiences who demanded, and got, several repeat performances. It is as much a ceremony as a play and is staged by a gifted group of young Indians from North Vancouver. It consists of light, image and sound, presenting a brief journey into the Indian past through tableaux, poems and song. The words are those of British Columbia author-poet Glen Kristjan.

Besides Chief George as narrator and principal arranger, there are other special people and groups involved in this many-faceted production of dance, theatre and music which portrays 100 years of native culture — the Kwakiutl Dancers, for instance. In addition the program looks at the Polynesian tradition as it penetrated this part of the Pacific Rim, with representative culture of the islands of Samoa and Hawaii.

The Native Talent Society of B.C., a non-profit organization, is sponsoring these concerts to enable talented native artists to gain experience and exposure while offering the public an opportunity to enjoy the cultural heritage of the native people.

'Tis Time For Love

What could be a more appealing and appropriate theme for the youthful romanticism of spring and early summer than love? To say nothing of an apple tree!

The Four Seasons Musical Theatre Society has adopted both themes for its first venture on to a major city stage. At McPherson Playhouse, Thursday through Saturday, and again May 18 - 20, the Society will present two back-to-back entertainments — "Love" and "The Apple Tree".

The program offers the tuneful musical, The Diary of Adam and Eve, based on a story by Mark Twain, and pairs it with a potpouri of mostly witty and lighthearted songs about love by such incomparables as Cole Porter, George Gerhwin and Rogers and Hart.

Music, book and lyrics of The Apple Tree are by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, the team that created the record-smashing Fiddler on the Roof. It had a long run on Broadway starring Alan Alda and Barbara Harris and was a hit in Toronto with Tom Kneebone and Dinah Christie as Adam and Eve.

The Victoria premiere has Ralph Cole as Adam with Janie Woods Morris as Eve and John Heath as The Shake. The founding director of Bastion Theatre, Peter Mannering, has directed this unusual and charming piece, with Alan Magee as musical director. Cole is known throughout the West as a leading performer with Kaleidoscope Theatre; Janie was an original member and frequent lead player of the Four Seasons company, as well as giving an outstanding performance in the Dulcinea role in Man of La Mancha for the Victoria Operatic Society a few seasons ago.

Heath is one of the best known Victoria actor-directors, being a Bastion company member of several seasons. His last assignments were Girl in the Freudian Slip for Bastion and The Beggar's Opera for the VanIsle Opera Society. His contributions to the Four Seasons have previously been with the summer Gilbert and Sullivan mini-repertory series.

On this occasion, in addition to slithering around Eden, he has created the "Love" part of the production with Magee making the musical arrangements and Sylvia Hosie, well known Victoria dancer-choreographer and former Feux Follet principal, creating and directing the dances.

All performances begin at 8 p.m. and tickets are now on sale at the McPherson box office.

HALCYON DAYS among lush verdure of Eden will soon end for Adam (Ralph Cole) and Eve (Janie Woods Morris), but it's a sometimes funny but ultimately poignant love story according to the charming short musical, The Apple Tree.

LEVINSON . . . at Art Gallery

Musical Notebook

Recital Sunday by City Soprano

A Sunday recital by a former Rose Bowl winner, soprano Carla Levinson, will take place at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, starting at 3 p.m. Mrs. Levinson will be assisted at the piano by Stephanie Soulsby and there will be other assisting instrumentalists.

The program consists of songs by Mozart and Wolf; seven Quatrains by contemporary Canadian composer Papineau-Couture; and Scottish and Welsh folk songs arranged by Haydn, including All Through the Night and My Love She's But a Lassie Yet.

Duo guitarists Dennis Olsen and Alan Hume will be heard in recital at Craigdarroch Castle next Friday at 8 p.m. Presented by the Conservatory of Music, the program will feature works by Santorsola, Bach, Ponce, Sor, de Valla and Brower.

Admission to the faculty recital is $2, students and senior citizens, $1.

The 45-piece Greater Victoria Concert Band is presenting a "Maytime Musicale" Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in McPherson Playhouse. Conducted by George Dunn, the band has grown in size and popularity in the past few months and was well received in its recent concert in which it joined with the well known mainland ensemble, the Delta Community Band.

Guest performers for the concert this Sunday are the Dixieland Band, KSB Brass Five, Coppertones stage band, reviving swing music from the '40s, and the Totem Tones, a humorous barbershop quartet. The evening is to provide a wide variety of music to suit many tastes.

Choir in Concert

Concluding its 1977-78 season Sunday at McPherson Playhouse, the Victoria Musical Art Society will present the A Capella Singers in a concert program ranging from the madrigals of Morley to 20th century art songs and selections from Brigadoon.

Dr. Ian Bradley conducts the 30-member female voice choir which grew out of the now disbanded Saanich Oratorio Choir. It is one of the few women's choral groups in Western Canada. Now in their third season, the Singers have firmly established themselves on the local musical scene. Dr. Bradley, a member of the University of Victoria faculty of Music-Education, has published two of a series of four textbooks on Canadian composers for use in schools throughout Canada. His special interest in Canadian music is reflected in the presence on the program in the 20th century group of songs by Bernard Naylor and Godfrey Ridout.

English composers Roger Quilter and Armstrong Gibbs are represented, also Hungarians Bartok and Kodaly and others. Accompanist for the choir is Ursula Thomas. Assisting are the Oak Bay Secondary School Brass Quintet and Mount Douglas Secondary Clarinet Choir, which will each provide a group of numbers.

The concert begins at 2:30 p.m. and will be followed by a reception in the upper foyer to which the audience is invited.

Theatre Students on Road

A troupe of undergraduate theatre students from the University of Victoria, bolstered by some faculty members, are now on the road in a tour which will mark the first co-operative theatre project to take UVic to the interior of British Columbia.

First stop, Friday, was Nelson. The eight-member troupe will tour seven communities in all, presenting a full-length play around which a series of workshops has been planned. The students will be performing The Collected Works of Billy the Kid, a controversial play by the Canadian writer, Michael Ondaatje. Following each performance the workshops will take place. These will involve members of the cast and be led by tour director Bindon Kinghorn.

"This is the start of the theatre department's efforts to bring university programs to the province," Kinghorn explains. Dr. Murray Edwards (Continuing Education) is co-ordinating the tour with the assistance of Jack Anderson, arts co-ordinator for community education at Selkirk College.

From Nelson the troupe will travel to Kaslo, Trail, Nakusp, Grand Forks and Midway. Giles Hogya and Kazimierz Piesowocki will lead workshops in Nelson today and Sunday. Kinghorn will conduct workshops after each performance, on the play and problems involved in mounting such a production. There will also be discussion on any aspect that participants are interested in, says Kinghorn. Performances will be in facilities ranging from an 800-seat auditorium to a community hall seating 40 people.

The play is directed by John Krich and was chosen, he says, primarily because it is "an excellent work by a Canadian playwright." Also, it does not involve an elaborate set which would be expensive to transport.

Michael Bianchin, a third-year student from Kamloops, plays the title role. Others in the troupe are David Wallace, Kristen Eaton, Peter Smith, Katharine Watson, Victor Bohlman and Paul Van Deursen. The play will be presented at a festival in Nanaimo in June and will be seen as one of four plays featured in the Phoenix Summer Theatre repertory on campus.

Not Fancy, Just Good

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia '76ers wowed the fans with a pre-game dunk show and then flexed their awesome muscles when play began. But the underdog Washington Bullets, playing a team game which even the '76ers recognized, scored a 123-108 victory Friday night and took a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association semi-final.

"We may not all be 6-9 or slam-dunk champions," said Washington's Bob Dandridge, who outscored Julius Erving 30-12, "but we execute the fundamentals, even though we don't do it with a flare."

In the other semi-final at Denver, David Thompson hit three crucial jumpshots in the final three minutes and the Nuggets beat Seattle SuperSonics 116-107 in the opening game of their best-of-seven set.

Denver is the host for the second game Sunday, with the next two contests scheduled for Seattle. The Philadelphia-Washington series continues Sunday in Landover, Md.

Erving, who refused to use a sore right hand as an excuse for his 4-for-14 shooting, laid it on the line for his Philadelphia team-mates after a game in which 71 personals and three technicals were called.

"They're playing the team concept," said Erving, "and we're doing the one-on-one stuff. With the depth we have, we can win the series if get our act together."

George McGinnis topped Philadelphia with 16 points in 24 minutes before fouling out. Washington's Elvin Hayes also scored 16 points and outrebounded McGinnis 12-7.

The '76ers shot only 37.8 percent while being outscored 48-34 in field goals, but dropped in 40 of 55 free throws. Even without centre Wes Unseld, who missed his second game with a sprained ankle, the Bullets were outrebounded only 48-44.

At Denver, the SuperSonics fell behind by as much as 13 points early in the second half but kept things close by scoring 47 points from the free throw line.

After Seattle guard Gus Williams connected on a pair of free throws with 3:37 left to cut Denver's lead to 102-98, Thompson soared high for a 16-foot jumper.

Thompson was called for goaltending at the opposite end of the court, but then hit two straight field goals and tacked on a free throw when he was fouled on the last basket. It gave the Nuggets a 109-100 edge with 1:34 left.

Seconds later, Bobby Wilkerson took a lead pass from Thompson and hit a stuff shot. Another basket and free throw by Wilkerson helped pad Denver's lead to 114-103 with 31 seconds on the clock.

Denver centre Dan Issel, who scored eight of the Nuggets first 12 points in opening up the big third quarter lead, paced Denver with 25 points despite picking up his fourth foul midway through the quarter and his fifth foul with six minutes to play.

Thompson recovered from a poor shooting first half to finish with 23 points and Anthony Roberts had 22.

Seattle centre Marvin Webster had a game-high 28 points.

Whalers Close In On Berth in Final

QUEBEC (CP) — Coach Harry Neale said a team effort Friday gaved his New England Whalers a 7-3 victory over Quebec Nordiques in World Hockey Association semi-final playoff action.

The New England triumph puts them one game away from wrapping up the series when the teams meet in Springfield, Mass., Sunday. The Whalers have won three games, two of them in Quebec City, while the Nordiques' lone win was in Springfield.

"We're going to be rolling on Sunday," said coach Neale. "We don't want to come back here."

But he said that as far as he is concerned the series is not over. "Quebec haq gone on three-game losing streaks and come back," Neale said, adding: "They beat us before on home ice in this series.

Dave Keon led the Whalers to the win with two goals and an assist. Other New England scorers were Alan Hangsleben, Mark Howe, Mike Rogers, Mike Antonovich and Larry Pleau.

Quebec's three goals all came on power plays, with high-scorers Marc Tardif and Real Cloutier getting the first two.

Rookie Alain Cote got the other Quebec goal, his first of the series.

DRAVEURS TEST PETES IN OPENER

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Coach Michel Bergeron is cautiously optimistic leading his Trois-Rivieres Draveurs into the opening game tonight of the three-team Memorial Cup tournament for the Canadian major junior hockey championship against Peterborough Petes.

"All three teams won their leagues and I guess all three deserve to be here," said Bergeron, whose Draveurs captured the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League final series in four consecutive games against Montreal Juniors.

New Westminster Bruins, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, surprised most observers by making it to the final three after a sputtering season.

New Westminster opens defence of its title against Peterborough at Sudbury on Sunday.

Will NHL Draw Second Best?

PRAGUE (CP) — There's a good chance that when the National Hockey League all-stars play a three-game series against the Soviet Union all-stars next February, they'll be meeting a team that was no better than second at the world championship.

If the Czechoslovakians play as well against the Russians tonight as they did in beating Canada 5-0 on Thursday, they should be well on their way to a third consecutive world title.

Some folks here are a bit miffed because it's always the Russians who are invited to these two-country confrontations. And if it were just a matter of the best of the NHL against the best of Europe, it would be natural to invite the Czechoslovakians.

But that overlooks the big point. The Czechoslovakians are the good guys in the eyes of North American fans. The Russians are the bad guys.

Beating the Czechs just hasn't got the exquisite satisfaction of doing it to the Soviet Union. And Czech fans themselves seem to have something of the same attitude.

They love to see their team beat Canada because they know that the Canadians are the originators of the game. It's something like beating England in soccer.

But, judging by audience reaction at games here, there is a lot of affection for Canadian players. They're besieged by autograph-hunters. They're applauded from time to time, even in games against Czechoslovakia, when they perform some bit of artistry on the ice.

For example, goalkeeper Dan Bouchard earned their admiration for his remarkable work in keeping the score from mounting in Thursday's game. True, there was some derisive whistling when the Canadians tried to bodycheck their opponents into submission but it was mild to what happens when the Russians are playing. When the Soviet team was beating Sweden 6-1, the Russian cheering section was drowned out by whistles every time they tried to make themselves heard. And tonight, uhen the Russians and the Czechoslovakians play, it will be an ear-bending experience.

Since hatred sells tickets, it's not likely the Czechoslovakians will ever displace the Russians in one of those head-to-head series. And the Swedes, who would also like a piece of the action, are also destined to be outsiders.

And so, with the papers signed on Thursday, the Russians will play the NHL all-stars, probably in New York's Madison Square Garden, next Feb. 8, 10 and 11. In return for that, the NHL will send a team of its Central and American Hockey League players plus some young NHLers to the Izvestia Cup tournament in Moscow at Christmas. And the Russians will send a strong club team to North America fmr six games, two against NHL clubs, and the remainder against CHL and AHL teams.

In Friday's action at the world tournament, the United States won its first game in six starts, beating East Germany 7-3, while West Germany defeated Finland 5-3.

Finland's loss meant tht Canada is assured of a berth in the championship round.

Canada, with a 3-2 record, resumes play today against Sweden, 4-1, while the Czechoslovakia-Soviet Union game features a matchup of the two unbeaten teams.

Harvey Bennett and Mike Eaves led the U.S. with two goals each against East Germany in a game that included a bench-clearing brawl when Pat Westrum of the U.S. was struck across the face with a stick.

Erich Kuehnackl scored three goals to lead West Germany over the Finns.

Rose Eyes Musial Mark

By The Associated Press

Pete Rose hit the 3,000-hit mark Friday and then set his sights on catching Stan Musial.

"I'm going to get 3,630 hits. I've already got my mind set on it," Rose said after becoming the 13th player in major league history to reach the lofty 3,000-hit plateau.

Musial is third on baseball's all-time hit list with 3,630, most in the National League.

Friday night's other NL action was overshadowed by Rose's achievement, but Los Angeles Dodgers downed Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2, Philadelphia Phillies beat New York Mets 9-4, San Diego Padres edged St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 and Atlanta Braves beat Houston Astros 5-2. San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs were rained out.

It didn't have quite the impact of Babe Ruth calling his shot in the World Series, especially since Rose's Cincinnati Reds lost to Montreal Expos 4-3, but the 37-year-old third baseman predicted what was coming when he asked home plate umpire Jerry Dale to check the baseball before coming to bat in the fifth inning.

"I knew it was going to be in the Hall of Fame and I wanted to be able to read Chub Feeney's name on it," Rose said, referring to the NL president. "I told Jerry, 'Get me a good ball because I'm going to get a knock.'"

Rose then jumped on a fast ball from Steve Rogers and lined a clean single to left field for the 3,000th hit. Two innings earlier he got No. 2,999 with a high chopper that Rogers was unable to handle.

The almost 38,000 fans were standing even before Rose, a local boy, came to the plate at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium in the fifth inning. And when he singled, they stood and cheered for a full five minutes.

Rose's two hits weren't enough to beat the Expos, though. His team-mates managed only four other hits off Rogers, including home runs by Johnny Bench and Dan Driessen, and 10 of them struck out.

Vistas Will Start Against Top Club

Vancouver Island Vistas will step out against the best when they make their debut in the Pacific Northwest Soccer League Sunday in Centennial Stadium at the University of Victoria.

Comprised of players selected from Vancouver Island Soccer League squads, Vistas will go against North Vancouver Pegasus, currently holding down first place with three straight victories. Sunday's match starts at 2:15 p.m.

Coach Brian Hughes and manager George Paul of Vistas have blended veterans and promising young players in assembling their opening-game roster, which will not include members of Victoria Athletics since the A's are involved this weekend in Province Cup action.

Ted van Waies of UVic will start in goal with Gord Reading as the backup netminder and Mike Hardy of Gorge will be at right back with Nanaimo's Ray Telford flanking him on the left.

Ian Bridge, who played in Britain last season, and UVic's Dan Lomas will handle the centre-back positions. Midfielders are Mark Robb of Gorge and Victoria West's Steve Forsland and Garnet Moen.

Starting fowards will be selected from Rob Williams (Vic West), Don Attig (Nanaimo), John Liere (UVic), Pat Smith (Duncan) and Steve Farrell (Royals). Hampered by injuries and doubtful starters are John McGuire and Bob Duncan.

IAN CARRIES BURDEN

By Canadian Press

With the prolonged absence of Swedish star Borje Salming from the lineup of Toronto Maple Leafs, Ian Turnbull has been carrying a heavy load during the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs.

Turnbull, who once played junior hockey for Montreal Junior Canadiens, finds himself at the top of the playoff scoring race with six goals and 10 assists for 16 points.

Montreal coach Scotty Bowman has been impressed with the work of the 24-year-old defenceman, but says his Canadiens will have to cut down on the room Turnbull has been getting when the Toronto-Montreal best-of-seven semi-final series resumes in Toronto tonight with Montreal leading 2-0.

"You can't give him open ice and let him skate unmolested," said Bowman. "When he gets the puck you've got to check him."

It is likely Turnbull will be carrying the load for the Leafs a little while longer because the word on Salming was not good Friday.

"Although the sight in Borje's right eye is 95 per cent of normal, we cannot take chances, because another blow now could do serious damage," Dr. Michael Easterbrook said after examining Salming.

All of which means that Salming is through for the season, although Easterbrook hotly denied the defenceman's career is over.

The game will be televised on the CBC network (channels 2 and 6 in Victoria), starting at 5 p.m. PDT.

The other semi-final series between Boston Bruins and Philadelphia Flyers resumes Sunday.

Boston leads that series 2-0 but Philadelphia will have home-ice advantage for the next two games, Sunday night and Tuesday, and Flyers coach Fred Shero was looking forward to a return to Boston.

ANOTHER GLANCE AT NEW BUDGETS

Manager Harvey Stevenson plans to have another good look at all newcomers when Victoria Budgets play Abbotsford Merchants in a four-game, senior "A" men's exhibition softball series at Royal Athletic Park this weekend.

Teams meet in a doubleheader that starts at 7 tonight and again Sunday afternoon, starting at 1 p.m.

Six newcomers bidding for positions with the defending Canadian champions — pitchers Larry Cole and Dave Wilson and fielders Randy Benn, Alden Govenlock, Rob Caldwell and Dennis Eckert — all showed to good advantage in last weekend's sweep over Port Alberni Athletics.

The series with Abbotsford will be Budgets' final preseason tuneup before getting into regular Northwest Major League play at Tacoma next weekend.

Fivepinners Chase Titles

Up-Island bowlers will be making a strong bid for titles during fivepin events in the 15th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs Sunday at Town and Country Lanes.

Women's and men's rolloffs, each a three-game scratch series, start at 1 p.m.

A total of 15 fivepinners from outside the Victoria area, mostly from Chemainus Bowlarena, qualified for the fivepin rolloffs during the annual, 26-week, Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest while 12 qualified for the tenpin rolloffs, held last Sunday at Mayfair. More than one-quarter of the combined fivepin and tenpin qualifiers in the contest bowled on lanes north of the Malahat.

Qualifying at Chemainus for the fivepin rolloffs were Brian Smith, Dennis Longley, Joe Ledoux, Leo Kossey, Dave Lambert, Muriel Ordano, Sylvia Jackson, Lou Wicker, Marva Joyes, Evelyn Scholefield, Cindy Margetish and Verna Guymer.

Chris Alphonse and Marg Bullen qualified at Duncan Lanes and Betty Mancell rolled her qualifying series at Youbou Community Bowling Alleys.

Winners of the rolloff titles will receive Times Trophies and any champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times will also collect a bonus award of $150.

Three Share Lead In Nelson Classic

DALLAS (AP) — Steve Melnyk has taken a short cut to pep up his sagging game. He is spending the week at Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom's house overlooking the 11th tee at the Preston Golf Club.

"The mayor told my wife (Debby) to whack me up the side of my head and forget putting," said Melnyk, who was one of three golfers tied for the 36-hole lead in the $200,000 Byron Nelson Classic.

Melnyk shot an erratic 69 that included three bogeys and four birdies, the last on the 18th hole, to share the lead with Tom Watson, a two-time winner already this season, and Jim Dent, all at four-under-par 136.

Watson fired a flawless three-under 67 over the windswept course while Dent, who shot 65 Thursday, cruised home at one-over 71 over the par-70 course.

"I've played Preston Trail 20 or 30 times and it helped me out there reading some of the putts," said Melnyk. "I played the course back in 1970 when I was working for a company in Dallas. It's a comfortable feeling on this course — like I'm home. I'd rather win here than just about anywhere I can think of."

Ironically, Melnyk's longest birdie putt of the day, a 20-footer, was on the par-three 11th, not far from Folsom's home.

Watson birdied three holes on the front nine and remarked: "I'm not happy with the way I'm striking the ball but I'm happy with the way I'm scoring."

Jay Haas, playing what he called "one of the best rounds of golf I ever played," was a shot off the pace after a four-under 66 which included five birdies and one bogey. Haas was joined at 137 by Ed Sneed who shot a 67.

Gary Player, who has won three out of the last four PGA tournaments, made the cut after an opening-round 75 with a 69.

"I played the same as I did when I shot 65 but I spent all day saving par," said Dent. "I got it up and down twice out of bunkers.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., shot a 73 Friday and was tied with 10 others at 145, just making the cut for today's third round.

Cranston, Butt Lead Seniors

It was the most for the hosts Friday as members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association opened a new season of competition with their "spring opening" tournament at Victoria Golf Club.

Contestants from the host club collected two of the three major awards as Ray Cranston fired a par 70 to earn over-all gross honors and the Victoria squad of Cranston, Harold Morrow, George Bigelow and Bob Bonar posted a collective gross score of 318 to walk away with the team award.

Bigelow, with a 74, was second to Cranston in the race for the C. F. Smith Rose Bowl and the Royal Colwood team followed Victoria in competition for the Life Members Trophy, nine strokes off the pace. Gorge Vale (332) placed third with Glen Meadows fourth at 335.

Tom Butt of Salt Spring captured the Larry McCooey Rose Bowl as the over-all handicap leader, finishing with a net 65. Colwood's Clyde Clarke also posted a net 65, but lost out in a countback.

Leaders in each handicap division:

6-12 handicap, low gross: Noel Filmer (Nan) 75, Vic Painter (RC) 76; 6-12, low net: Tony McLachlan (GM) 67, George Barnes (CH) 68; 13-15 handicap, low gross: Phil Eldridge (RC) 80, Dick White (RC) 80; 13-15, low net: Jim Walker (RC) 67, Gordie Rennie (GM) 68; 16-18 handicap, low gross: Harold Price (RC) 84, Sid Chappell (CH) 84; 16-18, low net: Harry Tobin (GM) 66, Al Speight (GM) 68; 19-20 handicap, low gross: Wilf Latournier (U) 87, Dale Hawkshaw (V) 88; 19-20, low net: Bob Bonar (V) 70, Wilf Grant (U) 71; 21-24 handicap, low gross: James Tedlie (GM) 92, John Brown (GM) 94; 21-24, low net: Joe Zdan (GV) 71, Jay Ingram (RC) 73.

Jan Four Under And Two on Top

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Australian Jan Stephenson, despite consecutive bogies on the back side, put together a four-under-par 68 Friday for a two-stroke lead after the first round of the Women's International golf tournament.

In second place at 70 was Pam Higgins, followed by four golfers tied at 71—Carol Mann, Debbie Austin, Donna Caponi Young and Geralyn Britz.

Swirling winds caused some grief among the 68 players on the Devil's Elbow Course at Moss Creek Plantation. But the breezes were gentle compared with the gale Thursday which caused first-round play to be delayed 24 hours. The final round in the 72-hole tournament will be held Monday, a day later than scheduled. The winner will take home $12,000 of the $80,000 total prize money.

Stephenson birdied the first, fifth, 10th and 11th holes before her first bogie on the 12th. She rammed her second putt five feet past the hole on the 13th and three-putted for another bogie.

Coming in with even-par 72s were Mary Mills, Laura Baugh and Nancy Lopez, this year's leading money winner with more than $50,000 and the only pro to win two tournaments thus far in 1978.

A pair of amateurs from Fonthill, Ont., were well off the pace after Friday's round. Cathy Sherk had nines of 38-41 for 79, while Marlene Streit was another stroke back after a round of 40-40—80.

Elks, A's Prevail

The first inning was the key in the Stuffy McGinnis and Heywood Avenue Men's Softball Leagues Friday night.

At Central Park, Elks scored three runs in the first and went on from there to defeat Juan de Fuca Builders 7-1 in Stuffy McGinnis action, while at Heywood, Victoria Athletics scored four runs in the first and needed them all plus two more to finally dispose of Capital Builders 6-5.

Alf Hass batted in three runs, two in the first inning, with a single, plus a home run in the sixth, and Mike Lee hit a two-run homer in the fifth for Elks.

Ernie Holness was the winning pitcher. He allowed six hits including a home run by Pat Duncan in the third. Ken Gordon was the loser.

At Heywood, Capital Builders rallied from a 5-1 deficit to score four runs in the sixth to tie the score against the A's. Larry McKinnon scored the tie-breaking run for the A's in the eighth. He beat out an infield hit, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on a singles by Ryan and Bernie Talbot.

Bernie Talbot had three hits and batted in two runs for the winners. Jim Miller was the winning pitcher and Dave Hughes the loser. Vic Gee had a home run and a double to knock in three runs for Capitals.

Prairie Inn defeated Harvey's Sporting Goods 3-2 in a Sidney Men's League game at Sanscha Park. The winning scored on a passed ball in the seventh inning. Jim Bowden was the winning pitcher and Dick Michaud the loser.

Ontario Racing Resumes

TORONTO (CP) — Racing resumes today at Ontario Jockey Club tracks after a joint agreement on a new purse structure was reached Friday afternoon between the horsemen and OJC.

"We're back in action," OJC publicist Bruce Walker said. "We'll have full cards Saturday at both Woodbine and Greenwood."

A joint statement from the OJC, the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association and the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association, said agreement had been reached on a purse structure covering 1978 and 1979.

The aggregate purse distribution in 1978 will be 47 per cent of The Jockey Club share of 9½ per cent of each $1 bet at the tracks plus 35 per cent of the breakage. Breakage is money left after the OJC pays off its bets to the lowest 10 cents. That means a $6.47 payoff by the parimutuels would leave seven cents in breakage.

NO SUBDIVISION FOR KAHL LAND

Esquimalt MLA Lyle Kahl and his wife Donna won't be able to subdivide their Oak Bay property, the B.C. Supreme Court ruled this week.

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger dismissed a petition by the couple, which sought to overturn the rejection by municipal approving officer Geoffrey White of the subdivision at 1383 St. Patrick Street because it would affect the established amenities of neighboring properties.

Eleven of 16 neighboring property owners opposed the creation of a new lot, saying it would harm the park-like environment of the area.

The judge said the subdivision and construction of a house would involve destruction of trees.

"I think the approving officer was justified in regarding the trees as an established amenity even if they are on private property," he said.

"While it may be that the municipality could not stop the petitioners from cutting down the trees standing on their lot, no one has suggested that there is the slightest possibility that the petitioners would wilfully cut them down."

He said there was no suggestion the approving officer did not act in good faith or that he discriminated against the Kahls and there was no basis for saying he erred in law.

Judge Awards City Couple $76,520

A Victoria couple was awarded $76,520 damages in B.C. Supreme Court Friday because of a traffic accident more than four years ago.

David John Minty, 27, was awarded $71,520 by Mr. Justice Thomas Berger and his wife, Peggy, was awarded $5,000. Defendant in the action heard this week in court was Maurice Paul Smith of Victoria.

The accident occurred Oct. 27, 1973, at the intersection of Trans-Canada Highway and Koksilah Road just south of Duncan.

Minty claimed that Smith was driving without lights and began a left turn and entered the lane for southbound traffic in which Minty was travelling. Smith denied this, saying Minty drifted into the left-turn lane for northbound traffic in which Smith was travelling.

Berger, after reviewing the evidence, said Smith was driving without lights and was not paying attention to oncoming traffic and was negligent. He said there was no contributory negligence by Minty.

Minty suffered cuts and a broken hip which has resulted in him being unable to play rugby anymore and cut short a career goal of inventory management of recreation areas and has had to work indoors as a draftsman.

Berger awarded him $10,000 for past income loss, $31,520 for future wage loss and $30,000 for pain and suffering.

Minty was represented in court by Jeff Green. Robert Johnston represented Smith.

Lawyer Appointed

Vancouver lawyer David A. Freeman has been appointed a member of the Universities Council of British Columbia for a three-year term beginning May 1, the ministry of education said Friday.

Freeman is a former member of the University of B.C. senate and is a director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the ministry news release said.

Brooks Denies Charge

Recreation and conservation deputy minister Lloyd Brooks denied Friday he told his staff to drop their memberships in conservation organizations.

"I suggested to staff the danger of belonging to organizations which assume a consistent confrontation stance against government policies," he said. "I said this because the staff could find itself in a conflict of interest situation."

He added that he never mentioned the Sierra Club in his memo circulated in the recreationand conservation ministry.

Brooks was replying to a Sierra Club charge that he had overstepped his authority by threatening employeees with dismissal for belonging to legitimate organizations which may from time to time criticize the government.

"There was no question of telling staff hot to participate in the activities of organizations interested in conservation," he said.

Judges To Rotate Duties

Attorney-General Garde Gardom announced Friday the adoption of a new policy of rotation for administrative judges of the provincial court of British Columbia.

Gardom said the new system provides for the rotation of administrative judges every three years and chief and associate judges every five years.

The minister announced the resignation of Chief Judge Lawrence Brahan as first step in implementing the new policy and named Associate Chief Judge Lawrence S. Goulet as his replacement.

Brahan, who has headed the provincial court system since 1972, was an advocate of the new policy and now will turn his full attention to family court duties in Victoria, said Gardom.

Parents Fight For Principal At McKenzie

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Gary Tuttle is an elementary school principal with a king-sized dilemma.

Tuttle has been transferred from McKenzie to another undisclosed school in the district. He made no move to stop the transfer, but now finds the parents and children don't want him to leave.

"I'm in a real bind. It's tough," Tuttle said Friday.

Although flattered by so much support, he said the transfer is an administrative decision he doesn't plan to appeal.

However, parents of McKenzie students want to keep him and are going to put up a good fight.

One concerned mother tacked a petition protesting the transfer on the wall of a neighborhood grocery store. It has already gathered four pages of signatures, she said.

"Mr. Tuttle was flabbergasted to find out he had so much support," said Patricia Warburton, the petition originator.

She says the entire school supports the petition and parents have sent a flood of letters to trustees protesting the district's decision to move Tuttle.

"There'll be a stampede at the school board office Monday night," Mrs. Warburton said.

Parents plan a full-scale attempt to reverse the transfer, she said.

School board chairman Susan Brice said Friday Tuttle is in an embarrassing situation.

"It appears Mr. Tuttle is not displeased with the course of events," Brice said about his transfer.

Brice said she could not comment on the details of the transfer until the two-week appeal period ends Monday.

All principals in the district who are being transferred to other schools have two weeks to send a written appeal to the board.

Transfers are an annual occurrence in the district, but declining enrolment and recent school closures are contributing to the numbers of staff being moved this year.

Brice said she sympathized with the parents of Mckenzie students who don't want to lose a good principal.

But she said parents shouldn't deprive any principal of the right to new experiences.

"They don't have the right to interfere with the career plans of any principal," Brice said.

Tuttle has been principal at McKenzie two years, acting principal three years and vice-principal at the school a number of years before that, Brice said.

She said she has received protest letters from parents of McKenzie students.

She can't understand why parents are so hostile to the move.

"I understand it's terribly important to people right now, but allegiances do pass quickly," said Brice.

Parents should calm down in a few weeks when they meet the new principal and realize he is just as competent as Tuttle, she said.

But Mrs. Warburton says the parents oppose the incoming principal because he hasn't taught in an elementary school for more than 20 years.

Warburton said she heard from a reliable source that the new principal plans to retire in three years. (His name has not been disclosed.)

She also said Tuttle indicated to her in a conversation Thursday that he doesn't want to leave McKenzie after all.

"He told me he'd think it over and call me back," she said.

According to Brice, Tuttle still has a few days to appeal the transfer.

HOME OR ABROAD? Lower air charter fares are designed to lure more Canadians to enjoy the tourist delights of their own country, but many Victorians continue to head for Hawaii, California, Europe and other faraway places with strange-sounding names. Here, client Connie Wasmuth gets a briefing on Canadian travel opportunities from Sandy Hill, of Ask Mr. Foster.

SEE-CANADA-FIRST PITCH DRAGS

Following the Leaders

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

If patriotism means holidaying in Canada instead of travelling abroad, many Victorians are about as gung-ho loyal as Prime Minister Trudeau, Joe Clark, Ed Broadbent and other federal MPs who have blithely ignored Finance Minister Jean Chretien's see-Canada-first advice.

A random survey by the Times of local travel agents indicates no overwhelming response to the federal government's promotion campaigns and incentives in the way of special in-Canada charter fares.

Typical of the comments was this one from Bill Ferguson, manager of Totem Travel: "I wouldn't say they're beating down the door, although there is a slight increase in Canadian travel."

Ferguson said this increase doesn't appear to be making inroads in the traditional popularity of overseas holidays, as advanced bookings for Europe are up at least 25 per cent over 1977.

Those Victorians who are opting for a Canadian holiday generally seem to be taking advantage of the lower air charter fares to visit relatives in Eastern Canada, he said, with Ontario in its usual top spot.

Andy Blaney, of Blaney's Travel Service Ltd., agreed that Europe and the U.S. are still firm favorites.

"I think most people are going to the areas and the destinations where they get the best possible arrangements for the least amount of money," he said.

"They're still travelling to U.S. destinations, despite the unfavorable exchange rate, because the cost of living is so much lower."

Blaney said the lower air charter fares are boosting internal travel, but clients are not making a choice between home and abroad.

Jean Henderson, of Eaton's Travel, said although air fares within Canada have dropped, hotel rates haven't come down to match and that is still a major deterrent for budget-conscious tourists.

She said that even allowing for the exchange rate it's still less expensive to rent a motorhome for a European touring holiday than it is in Canada.

"I have clients who want to fly to Halifax, Nova Scotia, and I've made inquiries about renting a motorhome for them but the cost is just ridiculous," she added.

Jerry Cooper, of Ask Mr. Foster Travel Service, noted that Victoria residents prepared to make a booking 45 days in advance get a good deal flying to Toronto, for example.

For only $31 more than the regular one-way fare ($203) they can fly there and back on a ticket good for four weeks.

She finds a fair number are taking advantage of the charter fares to visit relatives, but there's no significant increase in the package-type holiday which includes hotels.

"On the whole I think the program by the government has made Canadians aware that they can get these lower fares," she said. "And a lot of those who are responding are people who wouldn't otherwise be travelling."

All agents interviewed agreed that factors determining choice of holiday have little or nothing to do with patriotic considerations, and while many Victorians are ready and willing to travel within Canada, they could care less about bolstering the sagging economy.

50 Volunteer Homes

More than 50 Victoria families are willing to make their homes available to tourists this summer, Ken King, past president of the Visitors Information Centre, said Friday.

The accommodation committee he heads is looking for at least 200 homes.

In addition to the 50 already located, about 30 apartment units will be available, King added. The apartment building will be finished in early June and the contractor has indicated he will make the suites available for short-term rentals over the summer.

"These are fully furnished units and will be very helpful," King said.

Talks are going on with municipal councils in hopes of obtaining campsites.

The accommodation committee has been directed to locate and co-ordinate housing for the expected overflow of tourists in July and August.

When hotels are full, tourists will be directed to homes from the list approved by the committee.

Saanich Obtains Writs Against Tax Defaulters

Saanich municipality Friday followed through on its threat to sue delinquent taxpayers by obtaining B.C. Supreme Court writs against 10 property owners who owe a total of about $117,000 in overdue taxes.

Most of those on the list are involved in property development.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Dave Paterson said the action is designed to lighten the tax burden on the average homeowner.

By the end of last year the municipality was still owed more than $1 million in back taxes. By late February the amount was down to $872,000, about 55 per cent higher than at the same time in 1977.

This had been whittled to about $290,000 owed by 18 major defaulters a few weeks ago when Saanich issued notices informing them writs would be served if the bills weren't settled.

Named are: Michael C. Williams, owing $15,733; Longhorn Enterprises Ltd. ($19,809); G. PLan Properties Ltd. ($11,186); Longhorn Steakhouses Ltd. ($13,137); Aske Construction Ltd. ($13,561); Vista Homes Ltd. ($14,174); Garr Management Ltd. ($14,473); Selkirk Developments Ltd. ($5,225); Ralph S. Shepherd ($6,925); Kreiger, Stricker and Co. Ltd. ($5,422).

Earlier this year, Paterson said the failure of some segments of the business community to pay their taxes on time was placing an unfair burden on the average homeowner.

He said the amount of unpaid taxes is an indication of the state of the economy in Greater Victoria, reflecting a serious shortage of money in the private sector.

'Declarations Don't Cost Hell of a Lot'

Words, words, words.

Thousands of them — maybe even millions — will be spoken in schools throughout the area next week. But not many will be to thank Victoria officials for their support.

Pity. But you'd think when a once-in-a-decade thing like the Canadian Student Debating Federation's National Seminar is held here, city officialdom would be keen to offer a little financial as well as vocal help.

But not so.

Debating champions from every province arrive on the Island today, rest up a little Sunday with the help of a boat trip and a salmon bake, and compete in the national finals in some eight or so high schools next week.

Theme of the various debates is Employment Opportunities for Young People, a topical one indeed, and the keynote speaker at Monday's opening day ceremony at the University of Victoria is David Anderson, former leader of the B.C. Liberal Party. (The official opening will be at 10 a.m. in the McLaurin Building and the public is welcome.)

B.C. is being represented in the national seminar by Nathalie Cooke (who will debate in French) and Linda Mary Greene, both of Norfolk House School; Ian Gardner and Pat Costello of St. Michael's University School; Mike Reid of Prince George Secondary School; Duncan McDuff of Mt. Boucherie School in Kelowna and Simon van Norden of Eric Hamber School in Vancouver.

Top debater in the recent provincial eliminations, Gina Wilkinson of Norfolk House, is not eligible to compete as she took part in the nationals last year. Gina has just returned from the United Nations Model Assembly in Saskatoon.

Chris Harker would like a little more than just vocal help from city officialdom

"She played the part of a PLO delegate and was voted the most outstanding speaker there," says teacher Chris Harker, who with Rosemary Penn of Norfolk House is coordinating the national seminar. "Gina won a three-week trip to the United Nations in New York but had to turn it down because she's in a play."

Harker, who teaches at the new Stellys School, was president for the last two years of the Debate and Speech Association of B.C. and is now vice-president. He is delighted with the way arrangements for the seminar have gone but criticizes Victoria officials for their failure to recognize the worth of such a national venture to the city.

"This is the seventh year the seminar has been held and the first time ever for both Victoria and B.C.," Chris explains. "We have requested funds from everyone — and some bodies have responded much better than others.

"The provincial government is paying for a big part of our banquet Friday night at Holyrood House.

"But out of the school boards only those of Sooke and Saanich have given us assistance, with things like a free bus for the day."

Victoria school board has kept its hands tucked firmly in its pockets and it has been joined in its miserliness by City Hall.

"The municipalities of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt have all given us donations to help us meet our costs," Chris explains. "Oak Bay for example gave us $500 and we expected the City of Victoria to at least match that. But they have given us nothing. We got a letter back from City Hall saying 'Sorry, but we can't help you out this year.' "

Yet the ridiculous thing about that is that this is the only time in a decade this will happen in B.C.

"And, when it's B.C.'s turn to host the seminar again in 10 years' time, it's highly unlikely it will be in Victoria," Chris points out.

What kind of money are we talking about?

Well, not counting the expenses involved in getting all the debaters from the other provinces here (which is the responsibility of the parent body), it's going to cost a mere $14,000 to stage the seminar in Victoria.

"We've had the equivalent of $6,000 donated in services such as free boat rides, free meals and free passes to things," Chris explains. "As well, our finance committee has raised another $6,000, so we're only a couple of thousand dollars short."

City Hall isn't ignoring the seminar completely. It just isn't making with the handouts.

"The mayor is declaring next Thursday and Friday 'Debate Days' in Victoria — but that's not costing a hell of a lot," Chris adds with a grin.

"We're bringing 110 people into Victoria for a week. If they like it, they'll come back again later with their wives and husbands.

"We're bringing young people here who are very aware of what's going on in the world — we'd like to think the City would be a little aware, too, and would support us."

'Clean' N-Weapons Still Long Way Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. nuclear scientists are years away from producing a "clean" tactical nuclear bomb that would destroy targets with intense blast and heat without poisoning the environment with lingering radiation.

Scientists are working on the concept, using devices that are far from actual weapons.

But sources say the scientists have gone a long way toward mastering the key process that would result in total combustion of nuclear materials in an explosion.

Older nuclear bombs and warheads now ready for combat use would leave considerable amounts of nuclear materials unburned, producing radioactivity that would contaminate wide areas for many years. For that reason, they are considered "dirty."

As part of an effort to replace these weapons of the early 1960s, research on a proposed reduced residual radiation (RRR) nuclear weapon has been under way for several years. It was discussed last month by energy department officials at a House of Representatives subcommittee hearing.

The energy department develops and manufactures a variety of nuclear weapons for the armed services. Nuclear weapons are tailored for differing missions, so their characteristics vary widely.

Military officials say the RRR bomb would be dropped by air force and navy tactical fighter-bombers and exploded at ground level. The bomb is designed for targets—airfields and railway yards, for example—which can be crippled most effectively by blast and heat.

Another possible mission would be to block mountain passes and delay an enemy advance.

Along with heavy blast and heat in the vicinity of the explosion, these bombs would produce what is called "prompt radiation," which scientists say would disappear quickly.

In contrast, the neutron warhead carried by a Lance missile or field artillery shell would emit heavy doses of radiation to achieve its main objective—stopping enemy tank columns by penetrating their steel armor plate and disabling or killing their crews.

Lava chunks create strange beauty

Adventure on bewitched islands

Travel Tips

By STAN DELAPLANE

Chic stewardesses on our jet-prop Electra from Guayaquil are playing gin rummy, with rumpled piles of Ecuadorian sucres stacked next to them, as we catch our first glimpse of these fabled islands.

Centuries ago Spanish navigators named them Las Islas Encantadas, the bewitched islands.

They are fantastically warped chunks of lava — red, brown and black — flung up from the sea, smack on the equator, millions of years ago.

Steamy Guayaquil is 600 miles behind us, to the east, on Ecuador's mainland.

No tropical paradise this. No coco palms on the islands — 13 main ones, 6 smaller and dozens of rocks. Where there is any vegetation at all, it is cactus and dry, thorny bushes and trees.

A "strange Cyclopean scene," wrote Charles Darwin in his journal when he and the three-masted bark Beagle sailed into the Galapagos 143 years ago.

For five weeks the 26-year-old naturalist hauled ashore on the lava-strewn islands, studying and collecting specimens of bizarre plants and animals, most of them found no where else in the world.

Out of the Galapagos came, years later, the monumental Origin of the Species, a daring challenge to the biblical story of creation.

Here in the Galapagos modern biology was born. For Darwin the archipelego was "a little world in itself."

So it is for us. Fifty-six modern-day voyagers, following in Darwin's footsteps.

We land on Baltra Island, at the heart of the archipelego, in dazzling sunshine. Offshore, the M/V Bucanero, our home for the next week, is riding at anchor in incredibly beautiful water, turquoise and ultramarine. You can see down to the white sandy bottom.

A cooling sea breeze is blowing, strong enough to whip a Panama hat into the water as our launch tools out to the Bucanero.

She's 263 feet, stem to stern. Blue-and-white hull, white superstructure. Sleeps 80 passengers in 40 cabins, carries a crew of 56.

This is the rainy season. It lasts from January to June. But except for some clouds clinging to volcano tops, the sky is a brilliant blue. Balmy day. Temperature in the low 20's. The cold south polar waters of the Humboldt current sweep through the Galapagos, keeping the mercury down.

The Bucanero's officers, all Ecuadorian, in spanking white uniforms, stand by to greet us as we climb aboard, the sea now sloshing high against the ship's starboard landing. We haul anchor as soon as the ship-to-ship shuttle, called a panga, brings aboard the last of our cruisemates.

Settling into cabins on four decks are a contingent of Ecuadorians with Holy Week vacations: Guayaquil businessmen and their wives, an archeologist couple, several vivacious conchitas who are secretaries. The rest of the passengers are Americans.

Lilburn Hettick is 62, tall, bird-thin and pulls her hair back in a bun. She's from Bartlesville, Oklahoma, married to a retired Phillips petroleum man. Her passion is shells. She has tramped the shores of North America, Central America and Europe collecting shells. Now she's in South America to do the same, though she won't be able to take any shells away from the Galapagos: That sort of thing is strictly prohibited.

And, naturally, we have a jet set family from New York. Both the husband and wife on the prowl for fresh amorous adventures.

We head for tiny Bartolome Island for our first real taste of the Galapagos' natural wonders. It's dominated by a dark brown volcano, and most of the rest of the island is cinder cones, lava fields and basaltic crags. But there is a narrow neck of land with white sand beaches.

This Bartolome landing is wet. The moon is nearly full and the tides are running high. Alberto, our boatman, throttles the launch through the pounding surf, throws out a drag anchor and lets us pile over the side into hip-deep water. Just like the pirates of the old Spanish Main splashing ashore.

The sun is sinking now and tension grows as the surf lashes harder ashore and a rescue panga heaves between rows of incoming breakers. Strong chances it may swamp too.

The setting sun turns the volcanic crags at the edge of our cove a golden bronze. An elegant yacht is marvelously silhouetted in the distance.

The rescue panga makes two more difficult runs. In the equatorial darkness, the last of us sodden beachcombers scramble back aboard the Bucanero.

Hot showers. Dress for dinner. White duds.

Trays of pisco sours are passed around. Sauce for the beginning of the shipboard mating game.

We cha-cha-cha in the dining room long past midnight.

Top Writers Gather

Outstanding essay writers from secondary schools around the province are here this weekend for a two-day workshop at the University of Victoria.

The occasion is the 12th annual B.C. Humanities and Science Syposium, sponsored jointly by UVic and B.C. Tel.

This year 150 faculty members helped select 28 winning papers on such topics as violence in sports and the existence of a sixth sense in humans.

The writers of the winning papers have been invited to attend the symposium, expenses paid, to present their work.

Also invited are the teachers of students with winning papers and 80 students who submitted papers of high standards.

A multi-media workshop conducted by UVic educational technologist Geoffrey Potter is a new feature of the symposium this year.

A writer's workshop will also be presented by Uvic creative writing professor and author William Valgardson.

Students will be taken on a tour of the university and hear addresses by university professors who are exerts in their fields.

Lord maintains heritage by going commercial

By PHILIP HOWARD

LONDON — Twenty-five years ago, Beaulieu Palace House and Abbey in Hampshire, on the south coast of England, were first opened to the public. Since then, an amateur upper-class cottage industry has grown into big business with an annual turnover of nearly $3 million.

The stately home business pioneered at Beaulieu is recognized by the British government and tourist board as a valuable and now professional national asset.

Lord Montagu has shown the way for his peers to adjust to changing times and preserve their heritage by going commercial.

When he succeeded to his estate in 1951 at the age of 25, what with the duties expected of a landowner during his life and those extracted from him after his death, land really had ceased to be either a profit or a pleasure. Edward Montagu however, had a stubborn determination to persist in the place that had been his family's home since 1538. So he opened a motor museum with six vintage cars in the front hall of Palace House.

It was a touchingly amateur business. A village woman sold the tickets. There was discussion of whether they could afford coconut matting to protect the floors of the principal rooms. The press showed pictures of Lord Montagu scrubbing his floors, and headlined the story Old Crook's are on show at King John's Abbey.

Today it is a different story. Lord Montagu now runs the biggest industry in the district, employing 350 people at the height of the season. The six old crooks have become the most comprehensive motor museum complex in the world, housed in spectacular modern buildings, that are one of the few successes of new Elizabethan architecture.

Only the Tower of London attracts more visitors. Nearly 750,000 people a year travel to Beaulieu to view motor cars, and the Abbey ruins.

Beaulieu moved up the ranks in 1959, when it introduced professional management, paying its managing director as much as any other big company. In 1972 it invested $3.4 million in building the new motor museum, so segregating the old buildings from the new attractions, which had previously been much too close to them.

Today critics no longer sneer at Lord Montagu for vulgarizing his inheritance. Where all around him have been losing theirs, he has saved his inheritance by turning it from a social sinecure into a business enterprise.

He has doubled his talents by exploiting them brilliantly. In addition, he has introduced such valuable but non-profit-making activities as the finest library of motoring in the world, and the Countryside Education Trust, which helps children from the cities to understand the countryside around Beaulieu.

Beaulieu's silver jubilee was celebrated with a festival of English music, jazz and fireworks reminiscent of the jazz concerts of the early days, and a party for the staff, some of whom, like the head gardener, have been there since it all started.

Lord Montagu says: "Our business is to enlighten and interest and entertain; to provide a fascinating and respectable day out for the British people as well as tourists. The secret of opening your house to the public is to make people feel welcome. I would miss the crowds if they went away.

"The most gratifying thing about the last 25 years is that we have managed to preserve and improve Beaulieu as the family home; and at the same time that stately homes of England have been recognized as making an important contribution to the tourist industry, and thus to the economy."

Ancient voices echo in Acropolis

By BETTY PEACH

ATHENS — There is more to Athens than the Acropolis. But after the Acropolis, everything in the area pales.

The steep-sided hill rises majestically above the city. It dominates its surroundings as it did when it was the fortified seat of government and religion 2,500 years ago.

The Acropolis is an aesthetic and emotional experience to be savored quietly. It begins slowly and develops to overwhelming proportions.

THE APPROACH is along a wide, stone-paved path through an olive grove. Schoolchildren in sapphire blue uniforms picnic at the edge, awaiting their turn to climb the steep steps.

Past the broad steps and through a narrow toll gate, a strange feeling of moving back in time takes over. War-damaged remains of the Propylaea, the grand gate, tower above. Honey-hued columns slice an uncommonly blue sky.

TOURISTS in jeans and message-bearing T-shirts blur and are replaced by men in togas and sandals, women in draped, blowing gowns, hair elaborately curled and coiffed.

Here are worn remains of narrow treads they climbed to worship in the shrines of Athena. These same stone steps felt the sandals of great men of the Golden age of Greece — men who created the first Western civilization.

To my blurred vision, it seems Plato pauses beside a gnarled tree to look up at the small temple of Athena Nike, then back toward the noisy town below. Socrates walks near. The ghost of Aristotle, surrounded by earnest young men, ascends the hill. Is that Aristophanes grinning there? His comedies appear in the amphitheatre of Herod Atticus at the foot of the hill.

A SHRILL—VOICED child races past and the spell is broken. Togas fade. Jeans return.

At the top of the climb, with the brilliance of the incomparable Parthenon dominating the bare ground, it is not difficult to conjure the togas again. Indistinct images that may be Xenophon, Demosthenes or Sophocles move among the rows of classic columns, disregarding time.

Guards of the majestic Parthenon keep visitors outside. They stop the jeans, not the togas.

Remains of elaborate friezes may be studied only from the foot of the steps. Binoculars are helpful.

Wartime romance still blooming

He left his heart in San Diego

ON THE GO

SAN DIEGO — Forget San Francisco — I left my heart in San Diego.

The love affair began innocently enough during the Second World War. I was a "boot," a 17-year-old sailor, and by the time I shipped out I was hopelessly hooked by scenes of small fishing boats and gentle, rolling hills.

I remember riding the ferry to Coronado Island and seeing the city's lights mirrored in the bay.

San Diego was alive and lusty. Sailors and marines crowded its bars and streets one day and shipped out the next, some never to return. San Diego would be the last city they would ever see. . .

RETURNING these long years later has rekindled old desires. It's like catching a glimpse of some half-forgotten flame and wondering, would the love have endured? Perhaps.

Somewhere down along the coast possibly I would have found a peaceful cove and that would have been my base. After this I would set out to explore the city's marinas and its harbor, the manmade islands and the hills which frame it all.

WELL, nothing remains the same. And so I wasn't surprised to learn that San Diego has become California's second biggest city. Still, in many respects it hasn't changed that much.

The air remains clear and the streets appear freshly scrubbed; great navy vessels still move through the harbor, towering above small fishing boats.

I rented a car and drove uphill to San Diego's famous zoo, looking in on pygmy chimps from Africa, koalas from Australia, long-billed kiwis from New Zealand, golden marmosets, Indian rhinos and the okapi from the Congo, altogether more than 5,000 specimens representing the world's largest collection of wild animals.

SEVERAL times an hour visitors board open-sided buses that leave the zoo station on journeys through verdant valleys and forested hillsides. Others ride the sky cable lift, looking down on lions and monkeys and other creatures that peer back from the bush.

Beyond the city, 30 miles to the northeast, hundreds of other animals prowl through San Diego's Wild Animal Park. Riding monorails, visitors catch glimpses of addax and antelope, gazelles, gnus, impalas, zebras, buffalo, ring-tailed lemurs, iguanas, gorillas and the fierce Komodo Dragon from Indonesia.

BUT I WAS speaking earlier of the area near Balboa Park; I remember vividly living there in the early days of the Second World War. Because the base was overrun, some of us were transferred to the park to sleep in buildings that earlier housed a huge exposition. The night was filled with the roar of lions and the screech of birds. We were the "zoo boots."

On liberty, we'd go to La Jolla. In a world undergoing constant change, La Jolla remains refreshingly unspoiled. The other afternoon I stopped for lunch at a cliffside restaurant and later watched the surfers at Windansea, La Jolla's finest beach.

WAVES filled small coves and mists rose up as the water collided with the rocks, and artists stood on the cliffs with their easels, capturing scenes of hips and surfers.

La Jolla took life as an art colony shortly after the turn of the century when Anna Held, wife of composer Max Heinrich, succumbed to its loveliness by opening Green Dragon Colony, a cluster of galleries overlooking a breathtaking cove.

EVEN TODAY artists continue their pilgrimages. While they set up easels, tourists bid for pictures already hanging in small coastal galleries. Others come to surf or to just laze in the sun. They look in on the Scripps Institute of Oceanography and attend the races at fashionable Del mar.

It is a mystery to those living in La Jolla why anyone would run off to the French or Italian rivieras when they can visit La Jolla instead.

Because of its near-perfect weather, La Jolla attracts both artist and visitor. Indeed, the entire San Diego area offers the world's finest weather, which isn't an exaggeration. In a poll taken several years ago, meteorologists declared that San Diego is the "only area in the United States with perfect weather."

SELDOM is it uncomfortably warm, even during July and August. Sometimes the fog rolls in at night but usually it's gone by noon.

With more than 25,000 hotel and motel rooms, San Diego is better prepared to entertain visitors than dozens of other cities I can name.

There is for example the Little America Westgate. Several years ago Esquire magazine described it as "one of the world's great hotels."

ESQUIRE rhapsodized: "Here is a complete anachronism and a denial of all the principles of hotel accounting — a modern hotel designed along the lines of the classical European hotel palaces de grand luxe."

A bit flowery perhaps, but true. No two rooms are alike; indeed, no two wastebaskets are alike (several were handcrafted from gold and silver leaf.)

Rooms and salons are filled with treasures seldom seen outside a museum: antiques from castles and chateux, Aubusson and Beauvais tapestries, rugs from Iran, French and Italian and Oriental porcelain, Louis XV mirrors, hand-cut baccarat crystal chandeliers.

AND THEN there is Hotel del Coronado with its cupolas and hand-carved pillars and gingerbread siding. The Del is a step backward into the 19th century but with 20th-century service. It was at the Del that the Duke of Windsor met Wally Simpson, the woman for whom he gave up the throne of Britain. Although a modern 200-room wing adjoins the Del, I prefer the richness of the old hotel with its magnificent dining rooms and metal lift.

BETWEEN Coronado and San Diego, hundreds of ships crowd the bay: navy aircraft carriers, tuna seiners and sleek yachts. Fresh-caught seafood is served nightly in scores of excellent restaurants, one of the finest being Anthony's Star of the Sea on Harbor Drive.

Others dine at the Atlantis in Mission Bay or at Lubach's, Old Trieste, The Bungalow, Bali Ha'i on Shelter Island and Mr. A's.

AT MR. A'S diners watch jets on their approach to the city. Nowhere this side of Hong Kong is there a more exciting scene: during the day and well into the night a procession of commercial airliners nose through a canyon of tall buildings to set down at Lindbergh Field.

Nor is there a more exciting aquatic playground than Mission Bay, a 46,000-acre waterlogged park with nearly 30 miles of beaches and half a dozen excellent hotels.

Ten minutes from downtown San Diego, Mission Bay provides golf and tennis, sailing and swimming, plus free public ramps for boaters.

SMALL islands poke up out of the lagoon and picnic tables overlook the bay, and nearby at Sea World visitors watch a sea circus featuring dolphins, elephant seals, whales and penguins, the entire "company" performing in a huge lagoon surrounded by gardens and graceful palms.

Beyond here other visitors explore Spanish missions, Mt. Palomar, the Embarcadero, Old Town and bases operated by the navy and marine corps.

With nearly 70 golf courses, San Diego offers more links per capita than any other city in the United States (one of the classics held each year is the Andy Williams Open at Torrey Pines).

CULTURAL events are provided as well by San Diego entrepreneurs. A national Shakespeare festival is presented during summertime and opera is featured beneath the stars at Balboa Park Bowl.

And then there is San Diego's nearest neighbor, Tijuana. Between Tijuana and the U.S. town of San Ysidro is the busiest border in the world (38 million crossings a year!).

While occasionally accused of being tacky, TJ is never dull. Nightclubs line venida de la Revolucion as do stores stocked with Japanese silks, Mexican leather, Paris fashions and Italian knits, all of which brings up a question: why travel all the way to Europe to shop when TJ's so much nearer?

No one ever got jet lag crossing a border this close to home.

Still room at the top

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tired of the same old summer resort? A package tour, described as the first commercial charter to the North Pole, still has vacancies.

Its organizer, Las Vegas travel writer and adventurer Jack Wheeler, says the May 13-20 tour will land passengers on the polar ice cap 500 miles from land, and then take them to an Eskimo village for dog sledding and a chance to sleep in an igloo.

The tour, priced under $4,000, also includes a visit to Lake Hazen, the northernmost lake in the world, and to the magnetic North Pole, 1,000 miles from the geographic North Pole, on Canada's Bathurst Island.

A representative for Wheeler's company, Wheeler Adventures, said a woman from Massachusetts and another from Texas have reserved space on the May polar tour. An April tour got to the pole but couldn't land because of seasonal ice haze. A June 9-16 tour already is sold out, the Wheeler representative said.

The trip begins at Edmonton, and stops at the northern Canadian outpost of Resolute before proceeding to the North Pole.

Korea: Land of Morning Calm

Window on 43 centuries of history

By PHILIP SOUSA

"A hundred hearings cannot match a single glance."
— Old Korean Proverb

PUSAN, Republic of Korea — Even a quick look at the Land of Morning Calm and you can grasp the accuracy of the old saying.

Whatever you may have heard or read about the place will fall short of what your eyes will perceive. And most if not all of what you see here today will impress you favorably.

Too, this rare and rewarding experience will be yours whether you're making your first visit to this ancient land or embarked on a sentimental journey from the perspective gained as a private stationed here during the bleak days of the early 1950s.

A few hours after I arrived in this sunny port city of 2.5 million people I ran into one such former GI, John Barry, a friend I had not seen since our college days.

"It's amazing how this country has changed since I was here," he said. "And mostly for the better."

Our meeting took place at one of the many inexpensive restaurants that vie for room with small shops and boutiques in the crowded and colorful streets of Jungang Boulevard, one of Pusan's very modern and broad arteries.

During our conversation we agreed on at least two items:

Seoul, the bustling capital which is one of the world's 10 largest cities, is well worth a visit, if nothing else, to observe a mostly successful marriage of Western technology and centuries-old traditions and attitudes. But it is hardly the place to discover that this is the land of Morning Calm.

To glimpse at least briefly the unmatched calm beauty that is the Republic of Korea you have to hit the road, get out of Seoul. And that's easy and inexpensively done because here you find the finest road, bus and rail networks in Asia.

Moreover, I share the belief of many of my travel-writing colleagues that this is the least expensive country in the Orient.

Few tourists and moderate, if not bargain, prices — a happy state of affairs in these days of mass travel and high travel costs.

But there's more.

Though exchange rates fluctuate, the local currency, the won (pronounced as one), is pegged to the American dollar and thus so far has not escalated in value as has, among others, the Japanese yen. In simpler terms: Your greenbacks here can buy a lot more than they do practically anywhere else in Asia.

And what is there worth purchasing?

Exquisite lacquerware inlaid with mother-of-pearl, wood carvings, high-quality white and yellow bronzeware, magnificent silk brocades; Koryo celadons and other superb reproductions of old art treasures (it is illegal to take originals out of the country), ceramics, Oriental antiques, and an abundance of amethyst and quartz jewelry, topaz and other gems. Clothes, both for men and women, are also good buys. To this you should add folk-art products, of which the finely executed dolls are perhaps the most popular with visitors.

A word on how to shop. Except at the major department stores here and in Seoul and at the government-sponsored tourists' shopping centres, you are expected to follow the time-honored Korean custom of bargaining.

As mentioned earlier, it is worth spending a few days in the capital. Seoul is busy and booming. But its palaces, such as Kyongbok, Changduk and Doksu, and the outstanding National Museum, are quiet and revealing windows on Korea's 43 centuries of history.

Still standing in testimony to the country's long past are the city's Great South and East gates, built 100 years before Columbus set sail for the New World.

The places, the shopping, the nightclubs and the famous resort-cum-gambling at Walker Hill will tax your schedule in Seoul. But don't limit your Korean experience to the capital. Make room in your itinerary for the day-long trip to Pusan.

You can travel here from the capital in just under five hours on an excellent express train or in just 90 minutes by air. But either way you'll miss the anciet Silla Dynasty capital of Kyongju.

Scattered around a beautifully landscaped mountain park, the many monuments left by the 56 Silla kings who ruled Korea from 57 BC to 935 AD form the country's richest repository of cultural riches. You can reach Kyongju by bus from Seoul or, as I did it, on the Seoul Pusan express as far as Taegu, then an hour-long, non-stop bus ride to Kyongju on the impressive Seoul-Pusan Expressway, and a short cab ride to the old capital's site at the edge of the present town.

EUROPE.
GO CP AIR CHARTER CLASS.
NONSTOP 747 TO AMSTERDAM.

Advantages.
- ■ Enjoy scheduled nonstop 747 service from Vancouver.
- ■ Fly the shorter Polar route to Amsterdam.
- ■ Amsterdam is the gateway to Northern Europe.
- ■ Easy access to other countries.
- ■ Choose from many return flights, instead of just one.
- ■ Infants travel with you for free.
- ■ Savings of $83 to $211 off the applicable Charter Class fares for children 2 through 11 accompanying you.
- ■ Children preboard with you.
- ■ CP Air's famous in-flight service all the way.
- ■ Going, enjoy hot dinner and Continental breakfast.
- ■ Coming back, enjoy hot lunch and refreshments.
- ■ CP Air offices throughout Europe to serve you.
- ■ Expert CP Air ground handling on arrival and departure.
- ■ Save money by combining these special low-cost fares with a wide variety of tour packages. Including Fly/Drive Europe tours.

For example, a family of 2 adults, 1 teenager and 1 child could fly CP Air Charter Class to Amsterdam on August 1, pick up a Fiat 127 2-door or other compact car, then take off on a scenic 22-day motor tour to Vienna and back for $2,400. Regular airfare for the same family of 4 from Vancouver to Vienna and a car rental for the same 22 days would cost $2,754. That's a $354 saving. (Similar savings on Fly/Drive tours to Paris, Munich, Copenhagen and many other European cities.

Mind and Man lecture topic

Christian Scientist Joseph G. Heard will lecture on Mind and Man Sunday at 3 p.m. in Oak Bay Junior Secondary School.

In his lecture Heard suggests it is the intelligent, inspiring prayers of individuals that will do most to heal society's problems. He also stresses the important example set by Jesus Christ who prayed 'I and my Father are one." Heard sees this as evidence of the Master's clear realization that effective intelligence comes from God.

"Our part," Heard explains, "is to discover the powerful idea that man is God's complete likeness. That man is not fragmentary, unsatisfied, incomplete. That man expresses God. That man is spiritual, not animal."

Heard suggests this recognition of man's close spiritual identification with God enables people to apply God-inspired intelligence to the effective resolution of problems such as pollution, inadequate food supplies and disease.

Heard

"This," he adds, "brings into our experience a great richness of enduring values that make our lives really meaningful."

A former Florida lawyer and Navy chaplain during the Korean War, Heard was educated at the University of Miami, the University of Pennslyvania and Harvard University. Prior to becoming a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, he headed the youth activities of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

Professor O. Herbert Mowrer, an American psychologist, in one of his books tells about his taking to a Protestant church service a young Polish psychologist who was visiting the U.S.A. The visitor was "something of a Communist," and he had never before attended such a service. After leaving the church the Pole was pensively silent for a few minutes. Then, very seriously, he asked his host, "And what are all these people going to do now?"

That question should be asked about all of us who go to church regularly. What are we going to do when we return to the busy world? Does our worshipping have much to do with what we make of our lives, with what we do and think in ordinary life? Or does our worship tend to be an exercise in escape and evasion?

Christianity denies its biblical foundations when it tries to function as a Sunday-only religion, when it would be simply a perserve of piety in which its people can find refuge from the world.

We must not draw false distinctions between the sacred and the secular.

We Christians must build bridges between faith and the world, between the sacred and the secular—bridges capable of carrying heavy two-way traffic. But we must be careful to maintain a firm bridgehead on the faith side.

Openness toward the secular does not require that we trim and tidy our faith so that it does not clash with any of the currently fashionable secularisms. There is something ludicrous in trying to remove from Christianity everything which this secularist and that sceptic may challenge—and then presume to call the soppy residue "real Christianity."

But Christian faith must be responsive to the world and its concerns. Christian faith is primarily about our human existence under God, human existence in the here-and-now world and in its aspirations and destiny—and not merely about pious niceties and genteel respectabilities.

Christian faith, at its deepest levels, has to do with the meaning and purpose of our lives. It is faith which can defy the chaos and the confusions of any moment of time because its foundations are in what is above and beyond the here-and-now.

But Christian faith has its effective reality only in its creative initiatives toward the world: it is not a matter of redeeming persons out of the world but of redeeming persons in the world. It is both a Sunday-morning faith and a Monday-morning faith.

Twelve church choirs to sing

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Twelve choirs will join today at 3:30 p.m. at Christ Church Anglican cathedral in a festival service titled The City compiled by the precentor of Coventry cathedral in England.

Most Rev. Godfrey Gower, retired archbishop of New Westminster, is chairman of the B.C. branch of the Royal School of Church Music, which seeks to help church choirs improve.

The 12 choirs come from churches and schols on Vancouver Island and the Mainland. Readers will be Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, dean of the cathedral, Rev. D. R. Chassels, Rev. James McCallum and July Bradshaw. Conductor is Patrick Wedd, oganist of Vancouver Cathedral.

This years' Interfaith Service is Sunday, May 14 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral. Theme is Family Rights in Our Canadian Mosaic.

Bishop Remi De Roo and the 40-voice choir from Pearson College of the Pacific will participate in the service.

Emmanuel Baptist church, 2121 Cedar Hill Cross Road, will be holding a commissioning service for overseas missionaries at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The missionaries, who come from many Canadian centres, will be going to India, Africa and Bolivia on behalf of the Canadian Baptist Church.

Among the eight who will be present at Monday's service will be Ingrid White, of 3800 Hobbs in Victoria, a qualified teacher who took her training in this city.

Others are: June Marr, John and Martha Easter, Willard and Beverly Warnock and Randy and Elizabeth Legassie.

A canvas will be conducted Sunday in the Sidney and North Saanich areas to raise funds for Canadian Bible Society for Bible Society Sunday.

Rev. Brian Page, for many years rector of St. Barnabas, returns to Victoria this month to minister at St. Dunstan's Anglican church, Gordon Head. Recently, Page has been theologian in residence at Hythorpe Hall, England.

Rev. W. J. Lunny, rector of St. Dunstan's, will be on study leave this summer at Oriel College, Oxford.

The Vocal Jazz Ensemble of the University of Washington will perform at the 11 a.m. service of First United Church on Sunday, the last of its first Canadian tour.

The group, of 20 vocalists accompanied by an instrumental quartet, all students at the university, has a repetoire that includes swing, latin, blues, gospel and jazz-rock numbers.

The first patronal festival for the new Victoria parish of St. Athanasius, the first in Canada to form under the banner of the traditionalist Anglican Church in North America, takes place Sunday at 2 p.m. in Grace Lutheran Church, Fort St.

Their patron saint, St. Athanasius, famed as the defender of orthodoxy in the troubled fourth century, fought almost alone against a hostile ecclesiastical establishment. Banished on five separate occasions, his life was saved by the skin of his teeth. He was greatly loved by his people in Egypt, who coined the phrase Athanasius contra mundum (Athanasius against the world). The creed which was named in his honor summarizes the orthodox faith of the undivided Catholic Church.

Father Roland Palmer of Toronto, the former superior of SSJE (the Cowley Fathers) will be the preacher. Well known for his books, hymns and missions, he is sometimes called the father of the Canadian Prayer Book. He will be glad to meet old friends informally after the Mass.

Victoria Alliance Church, 1792 Townley, will show the 1978 film Pilgrim's Progress Sunday at 7 p.m.

The book by John Bunyan, upon which the film is based, is second only to the Bible in number of copies sold. It was written 300 years ago during Bunyan's imprisonment for failing to conform to the establishment of his day. This immortal classic speaks as clearly and meaningfully to today's generation as it did in Bunyan's time.

The film follows the pilgrim through the Slough of Despond, over the Hill of Difficulty, past Vanity Fair. Along the way he meets men like Pliable, Mr. Obstinate, Mr. Worldly Wise, Evangelist, Mr. Interpreter, and, constantly plotting to keep Christian from reaching the Celestial City, Apollyn.

The film is an abreviated adaptation but the 72 minutes will be well spent as you travel with the pilgrim. Pastor Orlin Craig and the congregation invite the public to attend.

Academy singers eager to visit

The 35-member mixed youth choir and band of Auburn Adventist Academy, Auburn, Wash., will present a concert of sacred music at the Seventh-day Adventist Church, 983 Pandora, on May 13 at 11 a.m.

Their program consists of a wide range of classical, standard and contemporary choir music.

Mrs. Carl Jorgensen has directed the choir and band for several years and they have travelled extensively. The trip to Victoria is a kind of reward for the senior class students who are in this special group. They enjoy the scenery and stores of the capital city.

A concert is also scheduled for Seventh-day Adventist Church, Resthaven Drive, Sidney, May 13 at 9 a.m.

Service of worship aids students' visit

Religion Roundup

DOAKTOWN, N.B. (CP) — Doaktown United Church conducted a Sunday worship service partly in French to mark the visit to the community of two French-speaking exchange students from Quebec.

Hymns, psalms and gospel lessons were sung and read in both languages.

Rev. Malcolm T. Cogswell said barriers between French- and English-speaking Canadians will be broken down "not by either giving up its identity but by both appreciating the richness of our differences."

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — John Lantham, 41, recently left the retail business to become an ordained minister of the Anglican Church.

Rev. Bill Craven of St. John's Anglican Church, where the ordination ceremony took place, said being a minister was a late vocation for Latham, who had been in both the shoe and paint businesses.

"He wanted to help people and he felt the spiritual way was the best," said Craven.

Latham graduated from the University of Western Ontario in London, Ont., with a bachelor of theology.

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Peter Jones, president of the Canadian Council of Christian and Jews, says the world will be in trouble if people do not learn to respect the differences between people.

Speaking at a high school seminar, he said Canada could play a major role in learning to respect each other's differences.

"We live in a huge, beautiful hunk of geography," he said. "We should be citizens of the earth and not just Canadians."

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer, says raising the legal drinking age in Ontario to 20 from 18 would do little to solve the province's alcohol problem.

The editor wrote in the recent issue of the magazine that the problem is mainly an adult one.

He said the laws which forbid an 18-year-old from drinking, but allow him to vote, marry and defend his country seem hypocritical.

"Until we who are older make a sincere attempt to clean up this act, we doubt that there will be value in passing laws to keep young adults from doing what old adults have no intention of doing without."

Padre chairs church council justice study

The Victoria Council of Churches is sponsoring a public study of the criminal-justice system and the alternatives program. President Alf Johnson this week announced that Padre H. Gordon Walker is the chairman.

The first meeting for all interested people is slated for Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in St. John's Old Rectory, behind the church at Mason and Quadra. The proposed program will be discussed and follow-up meetings arranged at this initial meeting.

The program intends to show what prison is and what it does to people. It involves understanding what awaits the convicted offender, what the criminal-justice system ought to do, and how it may be made more humane and effective. The program will deal with crime and reconciliation, community involvement with the offender, citizen participation, parole, community correction centres and the return of the inmate to the community. Proposed alternatives such as diversion will be investigated.

Interested members of the general public, school officials, church people, social workers and people such as staff, former inmates, politicians and lawmakers involved with the criminal-justice system should be especially interested in attending.

Those who choose to come to the meeting will be expected to share their experiences, concepts, and insights; to ask questions and to listen and to learn from each other.

Rev. Gordon, the chairman, has had experience conducting group meetings similar to this one. He was padre at Wilkinson Road Institution in the 1960s and for the past several years has served at William Head Institution and the Pandora CC Centre.

Paper ads help to swell order

OTTAWA (CP) — The Missionaries of the Holy Family, less known than other Roman Catholic communities, is using newspaper advertisements to recruit priests and brothers to the order.

Rev. Danny Hawkins, sent to Ottawa from the United States a number of years ago to start a Canadian congregation, said 20 men have been recruited in the last few years and 10 still are in the order.

The ad is important because the order is not as well-known as the Jesuits, Franciscans and the Dominicans, he said.

Appearing in papers across Canada, the ad shows a sketch of Christ with the words: "Wanted, men to serve this man in developing man and his society."

The order was founded in 1895 and has 2,000 members worldwide. To be accepted one must have a college degree or the ability to gain one, and take vows of chastity, obedience and poverty.

Failed as hood, he joins ministry team

The Church of the Way has a new minister. Pastor Bill Johns announced that Brian Ruud officially joined the ministering team of the church May 1.

A few years ago Ruud was a man obsessed with crime. He was not much more than a pill-popping hoodlum. It was in solitary confinement that Ruud was converted. He had tried to take his life and failed at that. His story is told in a popular book entitled Son of a Preacher Man.

Now Ruud is a crusading minister who speaks to thousands of high school young people and families every year in high school auditoriums and city-wide crusades.

He relates to people where it's really at with LSD, "speed," and marijuana. Ruud has lectured in Chicago, New York and Las Vegas and it is not unusual to see thousands of people at his crusades.

Ruud, his wife Gayle and their two children now reside in Victoria. The Church of the Way is excited about the possibilities of crusades by their new minister in Victoria and on Vancouver Island. In fact, a crusade is now being planned for October in Victoria.

'Politics' Charge On Rail Decision

Premier Bennett was accused Friday of playing politics in the controversy over the B.C. Rail extension to Fort Nelson.

Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) said in the legislature Bennett was quick to follow the royal commission recommendation to close the NDP government-initiated Railwest car-building plant at Squamish but is waffling on the commission recommendation to close the northern rail extension because it was a Social Credit project in Social Credit country.

Lauk also said Bennett should set up a special inquiry into the Squamish closure.

Bennett has said he wants to review the evidence which led to the recommendation that the 400-kilometre extension to Fort Nelson be abandoned. And he is also waiting for government studies into the same issue to provide him with more information.

He said closure of the Railwest plant was a terrible mistake based on wrong evidence and contradictory testimony.

He said Railwest was closed for "petty political revenge and vindictiveness."

Lauk predicted that the government will not close the Fort Nelson extension.

He said Bennett is attempting to create a political smokescreen by suggesting that negotiations are under way with Ottawa about the extension, and said it is "absolute hogwash" for the premier to delay a decision while he is developing an over-all transportation strategy.

"It is sheer theatre," said Lauk. "There is no chance of getting more money from Ottawa.

"The government is going to reverse the royal commission recommendations — everybody knows that."

Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) said that Bennett is a one-man band which he is conducting improperly.

He said that in the final analysis the government will keep the Fort Nelson line open "and if the premier was not in a panic, he would make that decision now instead of waiting for a politically-opportune time."

Opposition leader Dave Barrett said Bennett has shown the first signs that he will renege on his promise to make a final decision on the Fort Nelson line within the six weeks from his trip to the northern community.

Barrett said that he understood, as did everyone in Fort Nelson, that the premier would definitely make his announcement within six weeks.

But now Barrett claims Bennett has put two riders on the timing of the decision — if negotiations for financial help from Ottawa are completed and if the internal studies on the Fort Nelson line are finished in time.

"My guess is the people of Fort Nelson will be left dangling for months and months while the premier hopes the problem will go away."

Bennett said outside the house he made it clear in his speech in Fort Nelson that he hoped he would be able to make the decision in six weeks, and that he is certain everyone understood that.

"My statement was clear. I don't need him (Barrett) to play Perry Mason with what I said."

ECOLOGICAL RESERVES

Establishment of two new ecological reserves, increasing the total in British Columbia to 91, was announced Friday by Environment Minister Jim Nielsen.

He said one reserve is on 69 hectares of a floodplain island of the Skagit River and was set up to protect a stand of black cottonwood. The second reserve is 3.4 hectares and was established to protect a rare type of fern west of Port Alberni.

FALL VOTE HINTED BY SEN. PERRAULT

Government Senate leader Ray Perrault said here Friday the federal government may wait for improved economic conditions in the fall before holding a general election.

Perrault said at an informal news conference that recent positive economic trends in the United States, including a reduction in the unemployment rate, may have a positive effect on Canada.

"We think there's going to be an improvement in the fall," he said.

Perrault said the federal government's primary concern is to get the country's economy turned around, and if that takes place when an election is held, so much the better.

On other matters, Perrault pledged to attempt to speed up the federal goverment's rebuilding of the Ogden Point dock which was destroyed by fire last year.

ALBERTA'S SWINGIN' SUMMER

It starts in early July, with the world's biggest rodeo — the Calgary Stampede. But it's more than a rodeo. Hang onto your Stetson while you ride ferris wheels and rocket rides, take in chuckwagon races, stage shows, casinos, comedians, singing and dancing acts, and carry on till all hours in nightspots. For ten days you can enjoy pancake breakfasts served from a chuckwagon, square dance in the streets, and songs like Home on the Range become singalong hits again.

It's wild. It's carefree. And a million people get caught up in the fun. You will too.

But that's only the beginning. Take a couple of days to catch your breath, then head to Edmonton for Klondike Days — a chance to relive the Gold Rush - Gay '90s era. Residents and visitors alike dress up in silk vests, top hats, cutaway coats, spats, or ostrich plumes, bustles, parasols. Overnight the city becomes populated with Klondike Kates, sourdoughs and riverboat gamblers. Crowds form around roulette tables in the casinos. Others take their chances at the horse races. And you can enjoy every part of it — the infamous raft and bathtub races, the midway, the nightly Coliseum of Stars, carnival and cabaret — even a promenade to show off your finery. It's another mammoth party. And you're invited. There isn't another celebration like it in North America. Three weeks of excitement, action and non-stop enjoyment packed into July. You can make it your entire vacation, or part of your holiday. Plan to join the dress-up crowd and get your outfit here. We suggest you reserve early. Calgary and Edmonton are alive for the Stampede and Klondike Days, and tickets and accommodations are in high demand.

See you at the party.

The Biggest Party in North America

$233,300 HOUSE GRANT

The provincial government has approved a $233,300 grant for construction of 27 self-contained senior citizen housing units at Oliver in the Okanagan.

A ministry of municipal affairs and housing news release issued Friday said the grant represents one-third of the capital construction cost of a project sponsored by the Oliver Kiwanis Senior Citizen Housing Society.

Losing $10,000 Yearly, Says MLA

Elwood Veitch (SC — Burnaby-Willingdon) said Friday he is losing $10,000 a year by being a member of the legislature.

"I don't think any member is being paid adequately for their jobs . . . they are simply locked in to working full-time on behalf of their constituents," said Veitch who is also chairman of the legislative committee on Crown corporations.

He said he accepts his job gladly but added that "there should be a fresh look at this whole business of parliamentary stipends."

Veitch made his remarks during taping of the television program Capital Comment for viewing Sunday.

At first he wasn't prepared to say what salary MLAs should be paid but after repeated questioning he suggested $35,000 a year including expenses would be adequate.

"I don't think any member should make anything on it — the process of being a member — but they shouldn't loose too much," he said. "They have a responsibility to the public and the public also has a responsibility to the members."

Veitch suggested that "perhaps someone other than politicians should be looking into this to determine really what the answer is — it has to be from outside."

MLAs get $16,000 in salary and $8,000 in expenses.

Nielsen Scoffs at Greenpeace

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen says the Greenpeace Foundation is more interested in show business than in solutions to the Eurasian milfoil problem in the Okanagan Lake system.

The foundation reiterated Wednesday that it is launching a full-scale campaign to fight the provincial government's plan to use the herbicide 2,4-D in the lakes this summer to control the weed.

Nielsen said in an interview Friday that Greenpeace's past anti-whaling and anti-sealing campaigns have only been good to get movie stars into the limelight.

"Who knows, maybe this summer we'll see Jane Fonda in the Okanagan," he said. "It might help the tourist industry."

Nielsen said he doubts the environmental organization has properly considered the lengthy government reports and studies backing 2,4-D, and if they have, "we'd like to see the results of their evaluation."

"I don't know what they (Greenpeace members) want, action or attention," he said.

Greenpeace spokesman Peter Chataway said Wednesday in Kelowna the foundation wants other means used to control the weed.

Premier Bill Bennett, MLA for the area, said he has no fear of the program, adding that he drinks water from Okanagan Lake and uses its water to irrigate his orchard.

WEST COAST HATCHERY SET

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — A $1.7 million salmon hatchery is planned for the west coast of Vancouver Island, Hugh Anderson, (L — Comox-Alberni) said Friday.

Anderson, parliamentary assistant to Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc, said the hatchery to be constructed at Tlupana Inlet in Nootka Sound, is expected to boost chum production by 315,000 fish a year and will increase chinook production by 25,000 fish.

Anderson said no date has yet been set for construction.

Mom Appeals for Return of Crippled Son's Go-Cart

COQUITLAM (CP) — The mother of a 13-year-old handicapped boy made an emotional plea Thursday to whoever took a go-cart specially-designed for her son from the carport of their home in this Vancouver suburb last week.

Olga Brugge, whose son Robert suffers from cerebral palsy, said the orange, pedal-operated, German-made vehicle was Robert's only means of freedom.

She said the vehicle, which her husband brought back from Holland four years ago, was better than a wheel chair. It opened up a whole new world for Robert, enabling him to manoeuvre and keep up with other youngsters his age.

Losses Triple

VANCOUVER, (CP) - Net operating losses for the city's three theatres nearly tripled in 1977 compared with 1976 mainly because the refurbished Orpheum theatre opened last year, says civic theatres manager Ian Dobbin.

b.c. briefs

The Queen Elizabeth Theatre, the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse and the Orpheum lost a combined total of $311,145, compared with a loss of $111,579 in 1976

Realty Charges

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Two persons have been charged with violations of the Real Estate Act following a year-long RCMP investigation.

Nechako Real Estate and Housing Corp. Ltd. was charged with agreeing to pay a city developer compensation for acting as a salesman and with paying the developer $19,000 for acting as the agent.

The charges name Marven John Graves as an officer of the company.

Signs Seized

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city has confiscated 30 to 35 sidewalk signs in the past month, David Rudberg, assistant city traffic engineer, said Friday.

City council ordered the crackdown on sidewalk signs, believing they are hazardous to the blind and handicapped and disrupt pedestrian traffic.

Stabber Guilty

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Christopher Cathcart, 24, was found guilty of manslaughter in the stabbing of David Allen Grafstrom, 23, last November.

Justice J. G. Gould said he would sentence Cathcart after receiving a report prepared by defence and prosecution lawyers.

Body Fished Out

RICHMOND (CP) — The body of Joseph Marie Salvador, 15, of Richmond, was recovered from the Fraser River Thursday night after a patrolling policeman spotted a light under water. It turned out to be the tail light of an overturned car in about 1½ metres of water.

Tentative Terms

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Cominco Co. Ltd. said Friday it has reached a tentative agreement with two unions representing more than 4,000 employees in Trail, Kimberley and Salmo in southeastern British Columbia. The agreement involves members of the United Steelworkers of America and the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees. It covers the wage rate for the second year of a two-year agreement.

Magazine Apology

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Harrison will get back at least one of the three magazines that Canada Customs seized last year and told him it had burned.

Vince Castonguay, of Canada Customs, said Friday the three magazines, seized from Harrison at Vancouver International Airport, were misfiled when they were sent to the regional customs office here.

The magazines were bought by Harrison while he was on vacation in London.

He was told when they were seized that they would be classified and he would be notified before they were destroyed. However, when went to the regional customs office some months later he was told they had been destroyed.

Castonguay said one of the magazines, Club International, is allowed into Canada, but the other two are prohibited. He said he is sending Harrison that magazine, along with an apology for the delay.

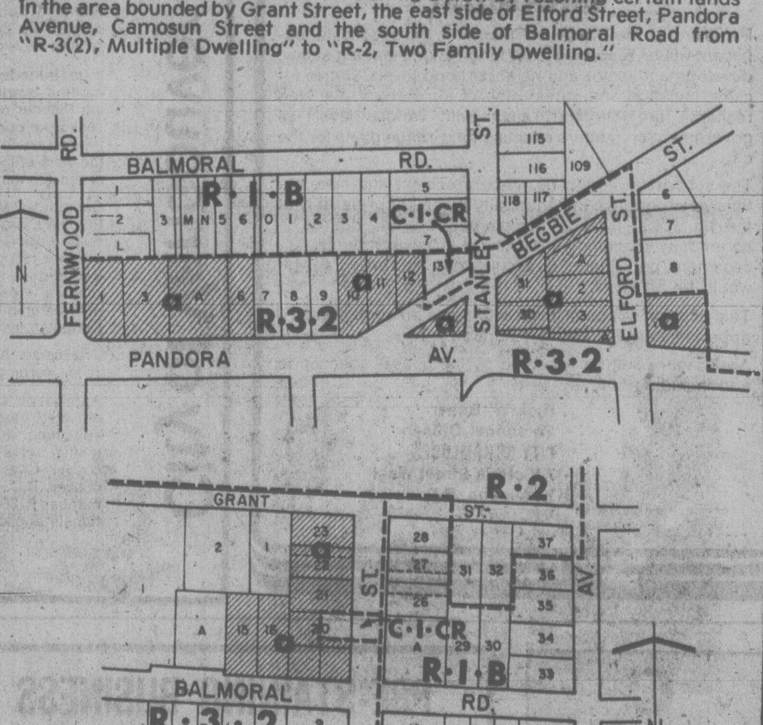
CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF VICTORIA

NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT all persons deeming their interest in the property affected by the following matters will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the City Council at a Public Hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, on THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1978 at 7:30 p.m.

Re: "REZONING BYLAW (NO. 12), 1978" (APC Study Case #214-118)

This bylaw provides to amend the Zoning Bylaw by rezoning certain lands in the area bounded by Grant Street, the east side of Elford Street, Pandora Avenue, Camosun Street and the south side of Balmoral Road from "R-3(2), Multiple Dwelling" to "R-2, Two Family Dwelling."



Copies of the draft bylaw may be inspected in the Douglas Street foyer, City Hall, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. any day the City Hall is open for business, prior to the hearing.

City Hall,
Victoria.

UFAWU LASHES OIL INDUSTRY, LIBERALS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 7,000-member United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAWU) Friday launched an attack on the oil industry and the Liberal government, calling the prospect of depleting energy resources a hoax and accusing the government of being duped by "one of the biggest con games" in Canadian history.

In a 45-page brief to be submitted later this month to the National Energy Board (NEB) during hearings in Calgary on the oil question, the UFAWU called for nationalization of Canada's petroleum industry and an end to government financial concessions to oil companies.

ZONING PLANNER

City of Vancouver

Planning Department

The ZONING PLANNER, as the Head of the Zoning Division with a staff of eighteen, is responsible for the professional and technical work of the Zoning Division which consists of a varied and complex program concerned with the guidance and control of development in the City. In the absence of the Director of Planning, the Zoning Planner is the Advisor to City Council and Consultant to Boards, Planning Commission and the public on matters concerning Zoning Subdivision, Strata Titling and related development control matters.

It is intended to provide approximately four months' overlap prior to the retirement of the Zoning Planner on January 31, 1979, to give the successor an opportunity to become familiarised with the responsibilities, organisation and complexity of the work of the Zoning Division and other Divisions of the Planning Department.

Candidates will be University graduates in one of Planning, Architecture, Engineering, Law, or other related discipline and have a post graduate degree or other recognised diploma in Community Planning. Experience in Zoning and Land Use Control matters is essential. Membership or eligibility for membership in the Planning Institute of B.C. or the Canadian Institute of Planners is desirable.

The salary for this position will be attractive to those earning over $27,000 per annum.

Application forms should be obtained from and returned, together with a detailed resume of education and experience and salary requirements, to the Director of Personnel Services, Vancouver City Hall, 453 West 12th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C., V5Y 1V4. Please quote competition number R-2640. The position is open to male and female applicants.

Drug Sale Spotted?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city police officer testified Friday that while on surveillance duty last year he spotted a possible drug sale to a young woman shortly before a Surrey couple was spotted by police nearby and later searched for drugs.

Sgt. Dennis Lannon was testifying at a British Columbia Supreme Court damage suit by the couple, Gerald and Sharon Schuck, who claim they were assaulted by police July 13, 1977 while in their car at a city drive-in.

Named as defendants in the false arrest and assault suit are the City of Vancouver, city police detective John Edwards and RCMP constables Hugh Stewart, David Moll and Gary Kirkpatrick.

The couple testified earlier that they thought they were being mugged by hoodlums when police, who they said did not identify themselves until later, flung open their car doors and roughed them up. They said they were assaulted, dragged from their car and handcuffed.

Police found no drugs on the couple, who are seeking damages for physical injuries, shock, loss of employment and medical expenses.

Lannon told the court that he was in a downtown hotel room and using binoculars to observe drug sales in a cafe across the street.

He said he watched a woman leave the cafe and walk towards a parking lot after a possible drug sale, and radioed her description to another part of the joint city police and RCMP drug squad working on the street nearby.

The officer said he described the woman as wearing a light brown leather jacket and a multi-colored T-shirt. Mrs. Schuck earlier testified that on the night of the incident she was wearing a red leather jacket and a white T-shirt with color on one side.

She said that she and her husband walked past the parking lot to their car before leaving for the drive-in. She said neither she nor her husband were ever involved with drugs.

Trustees Rap McGeer's ICBC Role

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer should hold only one cabinet portfolio and should not also be responsible for the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia, the president of the B.C. School Trustees Association said Friday.

Cliff Adkins told about 350 delegates to the annual BCSTA convention that the $1 billion provincial education budget warranted full-time attention.

"He probably spends 95 per cent of his time on education," said Adkins in an interview after his speech.

"But with the publicity he gets for ICBC, it looks like 50 per cent of his time goes for ICBC, and this gets to people."

A motion to make McGeer an honorary member of BCSTA passed, but it was opposed by about 50 delegates, with one person requesting a recount of the vote.

Adkins interpreted the opposition as a sign of dissatisfaction with McGeer having two portfolios.

The education minister was scheduled to address the convention today.

In his speech to delegates, Adkins said the "ghosts" of centralization and excessive bureaucratic control were some of the phantoms from the past year that could haunt the future if not controlled.

The direction the BCSTA should take in dealing with provincial education matters is expected to highlight the annual meeting.

Langley school district's full slate of candidates with their get-tough attitude will present the most interesting challenge to the old guard for leadership of the association.

Their "school trustee power" platform seeks to make the BCSTA the strongest voice in provincial education matters.

Langley is the only school district in the province to cut school taxes this year and the only one to automatically put teachers on probation when hired.

The election of officers will take place Sunday morning in the Civic Centre.

GRANT FOR HALL

The community of Nanoose Bay north of Nanaimo has been awarded a grant of $19,535 to help with construction costs of the community hall portion of its library centre, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Friday.

Bawlf said the grant is one of the first to be awarded under the recreation and facilities assistance program, which provides for grants of one-third of capital construction costs up to $400,000.

Transit Study Grant Made

WASHINGTON (AP), — Kansas City has received a $75,000 U.S. government grant to develop the country's first comprehensive transportation energy contingency plan. The Urban Mass Transportation Administration, which made the award, said the plan will evaluate the current transportation system in Kansas City with respect to energy needs and patterns.

Rape Victims' Past Important - Basford

OTTAWA (CP) — Eliminating all queries about the past sexual conduct of rape victims might jeopardize the defendant's right to a fair trial, Justice Minister Ron Basford said today.

New Criminal Code amendments will reduce the sexual nature of rape, but won't alter the rules of evidence regarding consent and the past sexual conduct of the victim, Basford said in an interview with Standard Broadcast News.

The amendments, introduced in the Commons last week, would remove the word rape from the Code and treat the act as a form of indecent assault, with a maximum penalty of 14 years in jail. Victim and accused could be of either sex and the act could include any sexual contact, eliminating the need to prove vaginal penetration.

But many women's groups have also demanded that a victim's past sexual conduct no longer be required for court evidence.

Basford said changes to the right of cross-examination made in 1975 were sufficient to "limit the fact that in some trials, the victim is on trial and not the accused."

But in some cases the conduct of the complainant is relevant, and necessary to constructing the best defence. Any interference with the right to a full and fair trial would contravene the Bill of Rights, he said.

The issue of whether or not the victim consented is also an important issue. If there was consent, there is no offence, Basford said.

Some women's groups are advising women not to resist an attack for the sake of their own physical safety. They are concerned that lack of resistance will be interpreted as consent, he said.

But as long as there was violence feared or threatened, it wasn't consent, he added, and the courts will recognize that fact.

Computer Smashing Probe Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A request by a deported West Indian to appear before a federal commission on RCMP wrongdoing has been forwarded to the head of the commission by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Roosevelt Douglas, 36, served 18 months in a Canadian jail for his part in the destruction of computer equipment at Sir George Williams University in Montreal in 1969.

Douglas said he wants the McDonald commission to investigate because he suspects RCMP agents instigated the computer smashing.

Closer Caribbean Ties Vetoed

OTTAWA (CP) — For the 13th and last time in 13 sessions of Parliament, Progressive Conservative Heath Macquarrie (Hillsborough) failed Friday to get Commons approval of his dream of closer ties between Canada and the Caribbean.

"They're very important neighbors . . . if we can't get along with them, who can we get along with?" Macquarrie asked sadly after Liberal MPs talked so long his motion couldn't be voted upon.

Macquarrie had wanted the committee to investigate the possibility of improving shipping and Atlantic ports to improve commercial relations with the West Indies.

"My ancestors lived in the Maritimes in the golden age of wooden ships and iron men. When this country was founded, living on the Atlantic seaboard was an advantage. The ocean was a corridor of commerce. Now it's the last and most costly station on the CNR line."

He admits he has other reasons for being so fond of the West Indies: "The best rum in the world comes from the West Indies."

8 Railway Unions Sign Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — Shop-craft unions representing 20,000 rail workers signed a national contract Friday, overriding the opposition of two unions in their group which have been campaigning against the agreement.

The eight shop-craft unions form an association called Division 4. Shop-craft executives authorized association president John Asprey earlier Friday to sign on their behalf, which he did.

Asprey had stayed away from a contract-signing ceremony April 28 after the International Association of Machinists (IAM) and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) — representing 7,500 rail workers between them — threatened legal action if he signed.

According to Division 4 regulations, Asprey's signature is binding on all eight unions. Individual shop-craft unions may sign the contract as a courtesy, but even if they don't, their members are covered by it.

IAM negotiator Val Bourgeois said the union won't sign. But he said it will not contest the signing any further because that could have serious implications for IAM members.

"They would be subject to unbearable pressure from other rail workers" for holding up pay increases with a legal challenge, he said in an interview.

The contract was negotiated last February by the Associated Railway Unions (ARU) — an umbrella organization of 17 unions including the eight in Division 4 — and the country's major railways.

Results of a national ratification vote had about 52 per cent of all rail workers ratifying the one-year agreement, which provided a six-percent wage increase for 95,000 workers retroactive to last Jan. 1

CNR Aid Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Private truckers are worried that government legislation to wipe out $808 million in Canadian National Railways debt will put them out of business, Progressive Conservative MPs said Friday.

Fred McCain (Carleton-Charlotte) told the Commons it is unfair to channel millions of tax dollars into a Crown corporation with subsidiaries in the trucking, hotel, and telecommunications fields.

The New Brunswick transportation critic said the CNR plans to channel $50 million into improving its truck fleet over the next five years, while most private truckers will never see that much money in their lives.

Their Money's Okay

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau says he sees nothing wrong with South African banks providing money to bolster the troubled Canadian dollar, even though it is government policy to discourage commercial dealings with the white-minority regime.

In the Commons Friday, Trudeau rejected a Conservative charge that the government has adopted a double standard toward South Africa — one for itself and another for private Canadian companies.

Trudeau explained that any South African money would not be loaned directly to Canada but to CitiBank in New York, which is raising a $3 billion stand-by credit for the government.

"It seems to me that in the nature of a commercial operation, you borrow money from a respectable lender and that should settle the matter as far as I am concened."

However, the he said he is awaiting the comments of Finance minister Jean Chretien, who told the House Friday that he is looking is the South African connection.

MP Jim Gillies, a Tory finance critic, said he "could not follow" Trudeau's "reasoning." He said there is "a direct contradiction" in government policy.

Charting Ups and Downs

For some people it's fact; for others it's fiction. But for most Times' readers it should be fun.

We're talking about biorythms, the new para-science that is supposed to warn people about the peak, poop or normal days ahead.

Starting Monday in the Times' Family section you'll be able to chart your own biorythms with Biodex, a new daily feature which purportedly will tell you when you're in a low, or negative cycle and plans could be slated to go awry; when you're in neutral and have to work just a little harder; or when you're in high, in a positive cycle, and you've got the world by the tail.

"Biorythms is more fun than astrology and not as messy as reading chicken entrails," Time magazine reported recently. Millions of people follow biorythm charts in North America, and one firm even sells 10,000 electronic biorythm calculators a month.

The biorythm theory states that people can chart their ups and down by their month of birth, on the basis that everyone goes through three fixed cycles starting at the moment of their birth: a 23-day physical cycle, a 28-day emotional cycle and a 33-day intellectual cycle. When the three are all up, people supposedly perform well. When they're all down, performance will be at its worst.

The Times offers Biodex to its readers on the same terms as the horoscope column — no guarantees stated or implied — just for fun.

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your intellectual, emotional and physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official government statistics.

Clothes Come First

PARIS — Now that fashion is tilting towards show biz, conversations after the finale tend to focus more on the production than the clothes. Kenzo's circus theme was deemed the most spectacular, Lagerfeld's prison-bar backdrop the most sinister and Marc Bohan's soundtrack first rate with its rhythmic swing-time revival.

In the case of Yves Saint Laurent, the clothes are the message. Equilibrium has been restored. No backdrops. No memorable tunes. Just a collection of good clothes, the kind woman want to wear, clothes that put a lot of the shenanigans of the ready-to-wear collections in the right perspective.

By the time the first models appeared — a woman in a plaid jacket, her escort in a black leather coat — attention was diverted to the runway where Saint Laurent makes order out of chaos. It is clear that he is broadening the shoulders and narrowing the skirts, but he is not doing it in such a way to alarm anybody. There are, for example, full skirts in the collection, for those who cling to them.

As the evening scene began, a short red two-tiered minidress provided fodder for those determined to find fashion alarming. Before the show was over, a few other above-the-knee chemise-like styles appeared, but most of them were glimpsed under sheer, spangled skirts that tied on over them. And there were sheer, spangled coats, too. That is how the short skirts will probably make their public debut — as slip-like affairs under a mass of glitter.

There were other signs that Saint Laurent considers hemlines in a transition stage, namely the dresses with uneven skirts that dipped to the back and those constructed somewhat like sandwich boards, short in the front, but longer in the back.

They were obviously trial baloons to test the reaction of the public. But there are a number of styles that will have an immediate impact. They include:

—The narrow, wrapped skirts, with a double belt that wraps twice around the waist, and is accompanied either by a plaid boxy jacket or a bloused one. Dark stockings and high heel shoes or wrapped calf-high boots complete this look.

—Double coats, in poplin, consisting of a sleeveless jacket over a regular-length one. This gives double protection from the rain, and the jacket can double as a vest over any one of the plaid suits.

—Bloused jackets or tailored ones in hand-tooled leather, the kind that is used for cowboy boots. Like many Saint Laurent styles, the tooled leather works equally well for day or evening.

Not Dumb, Just Scared

CHICAGO (UPI) — Poor grades in science might not mean you're dumb — just scared.

That's the opinion of J.V. Mallow of Loyola University's physics department. He has started a clinic at Loyola to combat the problem.

"The idea occurred to me when I found that many students seeking help because of poor performance in physics were industrious and intelligent," Mallow said in a paper presented to the American Physical Society meeting in Washington.

"But (they) were so anxious about the very idea of doing science that they were unable to learn."

The science-anxiety clinic at Loyola, begun last spring, consists of small groups of students meeting once a week with a scientist and psychologist, he said.

The scientist breaks down the scientific process into components and describes each part to the students to make them familiar and comfortable with it. The psychologist discusses anxiety and how to recognize it and cope with it.

"Out interactions with science-anxious students have revealed to us numerous contributing factors to science anxiety," he said.

"Among them are science teachers who are themselves science-anxious, sex and ethnic group discrimination, family and career pressures, and society's distorted image of the scientist as a technocrat rather than as a creative artist."

Doing Their Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two employment and immigration officials who broke up a business seminar earlier this week were only doing their job, Jack McKinstry, regional immigration director, said Friday.

The officials appeared Wednesday at a two-day seminar in management techniques and informed its leader, Henry Calero of the United States, that he would have to stop the seminar because he did not have a work permit.

Self Control Answer To Dietary Traps

VANCOUVER (CP) — Food companies have some responsibility for nutritional problems, especially obesity, says a United States biochemist and nutrition expert.

Individuals, however, should use self-control, adds Aaron Altschul, director of the division of nutrition at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.

"I don't use the term junk food," Altschul said in an interview Thursday.

"I don't like emotional words—I work with the companies and try to slowly push them back."

Altschul was working with General Foods, as a featured speaker at day-long nutrition seminar Thursday sponsored by the company.

The seminar—approved by the College of Family Physicians of Canada for five hours of continuing education credits—attracted about 200 physicians and other interested health personnel.

Altschul acknowledged that food companies have some responsibility for nutritional problems, especially obesity.

"Sooner or later the food industry is going to have to provide options with less sugar, for putting on one's own sugar, with less fat with more options for counting calories (and) structured diets," he told the audience.

In an interview, however, he stressed individual responsibility.

"It's a mistake to blame it all on the food companies," he said. "They're not blameless, but they're no more to blame than consumers or physicians.

"Why don't people quit buying it—in our family, we don't allow children to eat this kind of thing," he said, pointing to the box of Sugar Crisps, which listed sugar, corn syrup and honey as the second, third and fourth principal ingredients. Sugar Crips is produced by General Foods.

Government should require more than a list of ingredients, he said. Percentages of ingredients like sugar should be given, as well as a breakdown of the types of fats, and people then would know better which foods offer lots of calories but little else in the way of nutrients.

FOOD POLICY 'A HOAX'

OTTAWA (CP) — A deliberate hoax is being perpetrated on the country in the guise of a federal food policy, Ruth Lotzkar, president of the Consumers Association of Canada, said Friday.

Almost a year has passed since Ottawa released its discussion paper on a national food policy.

"In all that time nothing has been done to check any of the gross deficiencies in our food system," she charged. "In place of positive action, the government has relied on public relations to convince us of its sincerity in food policy."

Since the spring of 1977, food prices have climbed 16 per cent but little has been done to make consumers think the food system is responsive to their needs.

Although government promised consultation before any policy changes, the new dairy policy was not discussed with consumer group representatives prior to its announcement last month, she said.

Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

BURP!

Bial

DEAR DR. MILLER: My hamster gets bloated a lot. Is this because he overeats? Would baking soda help? If so, how much? — W.A.

DEAR W.A.: Since hamsters are not notorious overeaters, it's likely yours has indigestion from another source. It could be the wrong food rather than too much. If the diet is correct but bloating continues, a dose of professional advice, not baking soda would be more appropriate.

DEAR DR. MILLER: For how long is it safe to leave a muzzle on my dog? He barks a lot. — W.G.

DEAR W.G.: To reduce barking, remove the dog from the stimulus causing it or, better yet, take the trouble to train him to be an occasional, selective barker only. A muzzle cannot safely be used as an anti-bark device. Some dogs bite a muzzle so frantically that if it is not immediately removed they may literally choke to death. Even a loosely applied muzzle prevents a dog from drinking. Remember, the warmer the weather, the more panting a dog is required to do in order to remove heat from the body. A snug muzzle eliminates panting so that, within minutes, the dog's temperature may climb several degrees and a fatal heat stroke can quickly follow. A snug muzzle, then, can be safely applied only for a couple of minutes and only in the presence of the owner.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Black Dan, my cat, has this lump on his leg that's growing. Our veterinarian says it should come off. I guess he's right except that B.D. is an old cat and the doctor admits there is some danger in the operation. I'm in a quandry as to whether or not to take his advice and risk the surgery or just let things go as they are. I'd really appreciate your advice on this. — A.F.

DEAR A.F.: Undoubtedly your veterinarian has checked Black Dan over thoroughly, probably including laboratory tests, before making his final recomendation. His assessment is that the risk involved in removing the growth, whatever it may be, is less than the risk involved in leaving it. On that basis, I'd recommend going along with his opinion. If you are still hesitant, however, by all means get the opinion of a second veterinarian. Should they both agree, obviously the surgery should be done and without further delay.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Peter, my parakeet, is a dear little bird but he is exasperating because he is picky, picky, picky. In the three years I have had him, he has eaten hardly anything but millet seed. Everything else I give him, he either leaves alone or throws on the bottom of his cage. Over the years, he has wasted a lot of seed and money. I can handle that but I worry about whether that millet seed has everything in it he needs. — H.K.

DEAR H.K.: Unfortunately, you have good cause to worry. Millet seed doesn't make it as a complete food for your bird. Picky Peter Parakeet has to be suffering from nutritional deficiencies, particularly protein and some minerals. Peter's problem is particularly perplexing because of his firmly entrenched eating pattern. Odds are at least 20 to one that he will not eat other seed or other new food offered him. A local bird-oriented veterinarian, after examining Peter, might suggest an oral supplement or, possibly, a series of appetite-stimulating injections.

BUDGIE TOO PUDGIE?

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) —Too many bird owners let their feathered pets nosh their way into obesity, says Veterinarian Theodore Lafeber

Dr. Lafeber, here for an American Animal Hospital Association convention, maintains a Chicago-area practice and is author of Tender Loving Care for Pet Birds.

Lafeber said there is a boom in pet birds, with about 20 million persons in the United States sharing their homes with everything from finches to Amazon parrots.

Although birds are highly social creatures that can form strong bonds with humans, Lafeber said many cage dwellers are not happy. He blames much of their misery on poor feeding habits.

Most owners keep the seed dish heavy and let Tweety stuff his craw any time he wants. Not good, says Lafeber. "With them eating only seed, you get a fat bird with malnutrition."

Better to feed the bird twice a day and make the meal a smorgasbord, he said, noting that birds can eat almost anything, be it seed mix, fruit, vegetables, bacon and eggs or rum balls.

"What do you think they used to feed birds 100 years ago when they lived to be 80 years old?" asked Lafeber. "Those pirates were feeding those birds booze and everything else."

Bird owners should talk to their pets, provide them toys, and a cage where they have space but can feel secure.

"The biggest problem of a bird in captivity is fear," Lafeber said. A bird in the wild reacts to danger by fleeing. "When you put him in a cage and he can't fly away, he gets emotional problems."

To counter that, he said birds should have a place to hide — a box or even a piece of dark cloth.

Overweight Is a Threat

By L. L. COLEMAN M.D.

My husband has high blood pressure for which he is being treated. The thing that worries me most is that he weighs about 30 lbs. more than he should. I know that this is a bad combination. Can you explain just why this is so important? He reads your column. — Mrs. R.R.

Dear Mrs. R.:

Not all people with high blood pressure are overweight. Not all people who are overweight have high blood pressure. Yet physicians everywhere agree that there is a close association between obesity, high blood pressure and trouble.

There generally is a greater tendency for high blood pressure to develop in the obese person than in one with normal weight. It has also been noted that overweight people with high blood pressure have a greater risk of developing coronary artery disease of the heart.

It has further been shown that the mortality rates are higher when there is a combination of obesity and hypertension than when either problem exists alone.

A number of attempts have been made to explain this. It is thought that people who are heavy are eating more than they should and thus are taking in more salt. And salt is a troublemaker. In addition, the extra weight and the high blood pressure undoubtedly puts an additional burden on the heart and the lungs.

Unusual stress and anxiety may make some people overeat compulsively.

Today's existing opinion is that obesity, hypertension and stress are a combination that must be avoided or modified, if years of good health are to be anticipated.

With all the fancy, gimmicky diets available there still is no variation from this simple truth. Eat less, move more and weigh less. Any good diet plan starts out with the simple rule of restricting the number of calories that are consumed. If, in addition to that, there is a sensible program of exercise to tone up the muscles and even use up some calories, weight reduction and fitness are inevitable. It is on this kind of regime that the obese person will gradually "burn up" some of his fat, reduce his cholesterol and triglyceride levels in the blood, and in general, feel much better.

You did not mention whether your husband smokes. If he does, he is faced with another important hazard to his health. It is undeniable that two of the major dangers of cigarette smoking are the inhalation of carbon monoxide and the absorption of nicotine and tars. If your husband smokes, he is living with a triple threat. In this case, he should do more than read the column; he should believe it.

Advertising Helps Sell Those Handicraft Articles

By MAY E. MacLEAN

KNIT AND CHAT

So many readers write and ask how they can earn a little extra money at home by knitting, crochet and making novelties. They seem to have trouble selling their finished work.

Until you get well known, you will have to do some advertising. Sometimes the local wool shop will let you put a little notice in their shop, and in some instances they will employ knitters to make samples for display purposes.

You can always use the local paper, especialy the weeklies, to place a small advert offering your services for knitting and crochet to order, or for describing the various items you make and have for sale. I have often seen small adverts too in the local food store where they have a "Community Board." There are numerous ways without too much expense.

There is one lady in our neighborhood, and I think I have mentioned this before in my column, who knits doll clothes through the entire year. To my knowledge she has never advertised, word has simply got around among her friends and neighbors. These she sells, beginning the first week in December, and as you can imagine, she is quickly sold out.

She makes the doll clothes up in sets, and tacks them to colored paper so that they look most attractive. It is not that she needs the money, but she does have a lot of time on her hands. Last year she bought herself a dishwasher with the money she earned. Other years I believe it has gone towards a vacation.

Church groups and women's institutes have their bazaars at various times of the year, usually to raise money for a specific purpose. I think my catalogue for these groups would be very useful with ideas on what to make. It is 25 cents, plus a stamped return envelope.

If you are working on your own, why not make Christmas decorations for next year. Since the New Year I have been filling an awful lot of the Christmas theme patterns, which rather leads me to believe that there are many people who knit and crochet these ideas all year.

For those of you that have made larger items like quilts and afghans and wish to raise money for certain charities, I suggest that you contact the charity that you would like to receive the money, and ask them if they will undertake to either raffle or auction off the item at their annual event.

This week's pattern is a fast and easy crochet design for the new enthusiasts. The tray cloth is an heirloom item revived for today's demands in entertaining. It will also double as a place mat, and this lacey pattern will provide endless demands for it's use.

To order Leaflet No. 7855, send 75 cents PLUS a stamped self-addressed envelope, long one if possible. If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to: May E. MacLean "KNIT & CHAT," c/o 486 Montford Dr., Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, P.Q.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped return envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normal delivery. All back numbers in my series are available, price 75 cents. Catalogue of Gift & Bazaar items, 25 cents; Quilting by the Square, $2.50. All orders must be accompanied with a stamped self addressed envelope, or an extra 25 cents for handling.

SMOKE DETECTORS HOLD LITTLE RISK

TORONTO (CP) — Ionization-type smoke detectors for homes pose a minimal health risk through radioactivity, says a spokesman for the Ontario ministry of consumer and commercial relations.

Sharon Paul said Monday the Underwriters Laboratories of Canada recently concluded that radioactivity emitted by the detectors is less than that from the average color television set.

Michael Davison, NDP member of the legislature for Hamilton Centre, had said in the legislature that there was significant evidence showing the smoke detectors pose a risk to health.

Davison asked Larry Gorssman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, to consider amending the Ontario Building Code to prohibit use of the ionization-type detectors in new buildings.

The ministry spokesman said the ionization-type detector contains a small radioactive chamber in which air ionizes and produces a small electric current. Smoke particles in the air set off the alarm.

The photo-electric type of detector contains no radioactive chamber and is triggered when smoke disrupts a light beam.

Hummingbird Car Unveiled in U.S.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Another attempt at a practical electric car was unveiled Thursday—the Hummingbird, which has solar cells on the roof, no trunk space, a Volkswagen Rabbit body and a $7,900 price tag.

Leo Hassell, sales director for JMJ Electronics, said his firm, working with Electric Passenger Car Inc., will have the Hummingbird on the market within 90 days.

He said the car can be operated for about a penny 1.6 kilometres. Its motor is powered electrically, but accessories are run by solar energy.

The car can reach 104 kilometres an hour, Hassell said, but has to be recharged every 80 kilometres or so, although a recharger—gasoline-powered—can be used while the car is running.

Hassell said Hummingbirds will cost $7,900 each until demand makes mass production feasible.

Heather: Lazy Gardener's Friend

GARDENING
jack beastall

Heathers have long been known as the Lazy Gardener's Friends, for they flourish with the minimum of attention, and a small collection provides flowers for every month of the year.

Such a collection would include two genera and possibly three. The true heathers are in the genus Calluna, native to Europe and Asia Minor, blooming profusely in summer.

Better known to many gardeners are the heaths, or ling, in the genus Erica, native to Western Europe and the Mediterranean region. Included in many collections will be the Irish Heath, one species of heath-like subshrubs forming the genus Dabeocia (dabo-ee-see-a).

All belong in the large family Ericaceae (eri-kay-see-ee) comprising 67 genera with more than 1400 species, including plants with such widely different outward appearance as Gaultheria, Vaccinium, Kalmia, Andromeda, Pieris, Leucothoe, Arctostaphylos, Kalmiopsis, Rhododendron (including the Azalea group), Menziesia, Pernettya, the Madrona and the Strawberry-tree in the genus Arbutus.

One thing all these plants have is a love for an acid soil, and a dislike for any free lime, making them perfectly happy together in a carefully planned one-lot garden.

Once established, heathers (using the name collectively to cover three genera) will spread into dense mats needing little upkeep since their dense foliage prevents weed growth. Weed eradication is essential until the planting has completely covered the soil.

The only regular attention needed is the cutting back of the flowered shoots as the blossoms fade; those blooming during winter are trimmed in early spring. Small plants are trimmed with hand secateurs, large established plants with hedge shears.

Cutting is done just below the flowered portion of the stem. Lack of regular trimming results in long bare stems trailing on the ground fully exposed to frost which splits the stems and kills the plants.

Each fall dampened peat moss is worked into the stems at soil level with the fingers to prevent frost damage over winter. Once the plants have spread and interlaced, only those on the outer edge need this treatment.

Soil conditions around Victoria are, in general, well suited to heathers. Heavy soils are improved with the addition of well dampened peat moss, rotted wood, compost, and leafmold, well mixed.

The same mixture added to a sandy soil will increase its water holding capacity. Neither animal manures nor artificial fertilizers are tolerated by these plants.

Heaths and heathers do best in an open sunny location. They will grow in a small amount of shade but will not flower freely, tending to spread growth which leaves the centres open to frost damage.

Good drainage is essential. On the moors of England and Scotland, areas of heavy rainfall, the heaths are found only on the well drained portions.

Not all the plants in a collection require the same amount of moisture for good growth. Eria carna, the winter flowering heath from central Europe and Italy, can tolerate far less moisture than Erica ciliaris, the Dorset-heath from southern England.

For this reason a natural sloping area is preferred, those species needing less moisture being planted on higher ground, and those tolerating more moisture on the lower ground. On level ground it pays to build a sloping bed. Knowing the approximate areas to which the plants are native (from a plant encyclopedia) assists in correct placement.

In the hot rainless summers of southern Vancouver Island all newly planted heathers must be well watered once every ten days in a correctly prepared soil, and this continues until the plants meet and interlace.

Heathers are best planted in irregular drifts composed of a sufficient number of the same plants to avoid spotty appearances, one species or variety forming a foil to the next and eventually interlacing with it to completely cover the soil.

When peat moss is used, either in the preparation of the bed or in each planting hole, it must be thoroughly saturated with water before being mixed with the soil. If dry peat moss is used there will be dead plants in a month or so, and when lifted the peat moss will still be dry even after a rainy winter.

Gardeners not acquainted with these plants are surprised to find a root system three times as large as the top growth.

These roots require a large planting hole and it must be deep enough for the stems to lie flat on the soil, with a little soil pushed among the stems with the fingers.

If the suggested additions are not mixed into the entire bed before planting, they should be put into the large hole and thoroughly mixed with the soil, then a sufficient quantity is removed to accommodate the root ball, the removed soil pressed firmly around the roots with the hands and worked among the stems. Water is then added to exclude all air from around the roots.

Many heathers have beautiful year around foliage. These are especially useful as a border around the bed.

Calluna vulgaris aurea has almost orange foliage: aureafolia is truly golden; argentea has green foliage edged with silver; "Mrs. Pat' has vivid crimson tips; cuprea is a dull copper; minima 'Smith's Variety' turns red in the fall; Erica cinerea 'Golden Hue' has winter foliage of bright gold; Eria tetralix, the cross-leaved heath, has white flowers over gray leaves.

From a list of fifty species and varieties, here are a few suitable for a beginner's collection, grouped according to their approximate time of flowering. The figures indicate normal height in their native habitat, although properly pruned plants will be more compact and a little lower.

Flowering time December to March: Erica carnea 'King George', bright rosy red, 6 to 9; E. hybrida darleyensis, pink, 12 to 14: Erica C. 'Springwood' in both white and pink forms, 6 to 9.

March to May: Erica mediterranea 'Brightness' bright red, 20 to 24; and the white variety 'W. T. Rackliffe', 18; E.m. superba, pink tree heather, to 60; E. arborea alpina, white tree heather, to 60. The tree heathers need a sheltered winter spot but are useful to add height to a planting.

June to September: Erica cinerea 'Mrs. Dill', rich pink, 4; 'C.D. Eason', brilliant deep pink, 9; alba, white, 6 to 9; vulgaris serlii, white, 18; 'H.E.Beale', double rose, 20; E,. vagans 'Mrs D. F. Maxwell' deep glowing cerise, 15.

October to December: Erica vulgaris Jonsonii, lavender pink, to 20; E.v.aureafolia, yellow foliage, white flowers, 12.

Heaths and heathers are sold in containers and can be planted at any time of year excepting in frosty periods or excessive heat.

Once established, the gardener can sit back, trim as the flowers fade, apply sufficient moisture in summer; a minimum of labor for such a mass of beauty.

But don't spare care or labor in preparing the bed and planting, trimming and fall mulching while young, and between plant weeding during their early years, for this is a sound investment for a care-free future.

WEEK'S WORK

Plant balcony and sundeck planters with geraniums and fuchsias earlier than ground level but protect from strong winds. The soil must contain humus, drainage, and be watered before the planters dry out.

Prepare balcony tubs for vegetable sowing and planting. Grow Buttercrunch lettuce, white turnip for green tops, spaghetti squash, radish, these are all high in price to buy this year.

In open garden sow curly endive, corn-salad, New Zealand spinach, a few beets, more peas, and plant a few potatoes.

Don't neglect watering if rain is still scarce. Topsoil dries quickly in sun and wind; this is only time sprinkling is useful — to dampen the surface where seedlings are coming through. This also prevents loss of moisture in lower soil where the roots will later penetrate.

JUST 'FIT' TO BE TRIED

VERONA, Italy (AP) — An Italian alpine soldier who "jumped with joy" at the news that former premier Aldo Moro had been kidnapped was given a seven-month suspended sentence Wednesday by a military tribunal. Alessandro Cero, 21, from Udine, testified he reacted from "a fit of hysterics."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, May 7

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Go slow where money is concerned. Examine various aspects, be aware of commitments, potential, expenses, promises that could represent financial drain. Cancer, Taurus and Capricorn figure in scenario. Collect data, build for future security.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pressures are lifted; you have greater opportunity for self-expression, art, travel, entertaining and being entertained. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius figure prominently. Cycle is high — what appears to be an obstacle is actually a healthy challenge which lends impetus to progress.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be discreet — maintain aura of mystery and glamor. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons figure in scenario. What seemed destined for distant future is practically upon you. Know it and outline priorities. You'll be asked to "name the game."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Gemini message for valid hint. Be analytical. Don't be satisfied merely to know something occurred. Find out why it happened — and do something about it. Members of opposite sex figures in picture. New friend appears on horizon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Adjustment on domestic front indicated — be adaptable, diplomatic. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Accent on pride, honor, reputation, recognition from superior. You will have more responsibility, but reward factor will more than make up for it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 2): Get at truth, even if it means some pet illusions must crumble. Long-range view is essential. What has immediate appeal could lack staying power. Know it and get reinforcements. Take time to be sure of basic material.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar aspects point to mixing money and friendship. It could be precarious, but you land on your feet. Bring priorities into focus — and know that a relationship is binding. If not prepared to be "serious," get to stepping!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put finishing touches on project after checking legal aspects. Take time to correct minor flaws. Permit partner or mate to express views. Prestige is on the line. If attentive, you gain clues which aid in overcoming obstacles. Aries, Libra figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Highlight independence of thought, action. Emphasis on dependents, nutrition, taking care of yourself, refusing to be intimidated by one who "sings the blues." Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario. Stick with number 1.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Luxury items, soft apparel, cozy corners are featured. Individuals born under your sign — and Cancer — figure prominently. Member of opposite sex is drawn to you and doesn't care who knows it. Place curb on extravagance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get chance to prove a point. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Key is to make inquiries, to test and verify. The number 3 turns up more times than might be considered a coincidence. Be confident, flexible and willing to laugh at your own foibles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Paths that had been smooth may now have obstacles. However, argument or apparent setback is going to boomerang in your favor. Relatives, neighbors and "teachers" crowd your personal scenario. Frank discussion of your aspirations could bring desired results.

IF MAY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensual, romantic, sensitive and psychic. You can be alone without being lonely. July could be your most significant month of 1978, a year featuring added independence, new starts, creativity and love. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You are a stubborn, courageous, affectionate, loyal person.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, May 8

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on ability to work with available material. Brother, sister or other close relative talks about expansion, social event, vacation travel. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Be flexible; maintain balance and sense of humor. Leave fine points, details for another time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cash may be temporarily "tied up." Key is to outline plans, procedures. Create format, get it on paper and protect it. Emphasis on valuables, personal possessions. Member of opposite sex could play significant role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Make a positive move. Refuse to be intimindated, silenced or painted into corner. Another Gemini — and a Sagittarian — figure in scenario. Stick with number 5. Take a chance on your own abilities. Cycle indicates you will be where you should be — at right time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be diplomatic, maintain moderate pace, adhere to recent resolutions concerning work, health and nutrition. Taurus, Libra persons figure in scenario. Visit to "special home" or hospital is on agenda. Family member makes important concession.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friendship could blossom into romance. Mystery, glamor combine with wish fulfillment. Your powers of persuasion are heightened. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently — and so does the number 7. Pay attention to extrasensory perception. You could strike pay dirt!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 2): Highlight career, honor, reputation, ability to assume added responsibility. Older individual is in your corner and could prove helpful in savings or investment program. You get important backing — you'll have chance to verify a major contention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Reach beyond apparent limitations. Your work, talents receive attention. You can culminate transaction which results in a better display-distribution arrangement. Aries figures prominently — and so does another Libran.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get appointment aimed at providing information concerning lease, rental, finances in relation to partner or mate. Make new start in new direction. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Back now is vulnerable; avoid unnecessary lifting of heavy objects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on legalities, red tape, commitments, partnership, joint efforts, marriage. Collect data, go slow, lie low, play cards close to chest. Cancer, Capricorn figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stick with number 2.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get together with those who share basic purposes, goals. Spotlight on pets, dependents. Gemini, Sagittarius figure in picture. Accent on relatives in transit, rough road which can lead to riches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good Moon aspect coincides now with creativity, changes, children, speculation, "falling in love." You locate escape hatch; you shake off trap, restrictions. Travel, experimentation, variety, your own style — these are featured.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Place that seemed dull, that you took for granted could "suddenly" bristle with life. Gemini, Virgo — and another Piscean — could be part of scenario. Walls of restriction come tubling down. You're going to display abilities, test theories and make valuable contacts.

IF MAY 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an organizer, very practical where money is concerned, vulnerable in connection with opposite sex, a hard driver, determined, willing to make sacrifices to achieve goal. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. June could be your most significant month of 1978, a year which highlights security, a home, domestic life, marriage.

N.Z. Sailors Given Break

In the interest of Commonwealth relations, the Crown agreed Friday to stay proceedings against two New Zealand sailors charged here Thursday with taking an auto without the owner's consent.

However, a charge of impaired driving was allowed to stand against one of the pair, Bruce Roger Rae, 19.

Rae, an electrician's helper aboard the HMNZS Waikato, pleaded guilty and was fined $200.

The charge stemmed from an incident Thursday night when a stolen taxi rammed a city police motorcycle on Store Street. The taxi had been taken from in front of the Stardust Cabaret, 860 Yates.

Judge Harold Alder ordered Rae to pay $100 compensation to Island Taxi, owners of the cab, and $140 to city police for damage done to the motorcycle.

Crown counsel Nick Lang said the decision to stay the car theft charge laid against Rae and Maurice Peter Kennett, 19, was made "in the interests of Commonwealth relations."

He said if the charge had been proceeded with the two youths would undoubtedly have been dismissed from the navy.

New Icebreakers

MOSCOW (AFP) — The use of hovercraft as icebreakers, something Canada has done for a few years, has been tried by Soviet engineers in the White Sea, the official Tass news agency reported Friday. It said the hovercraft deforms and breaks up ice, allowing movement of ships having no special protective hulls. It said the engineers feel the method might be useful for releasing ships in frozen harbors.

Anglican Prelate On Island

Anglican Archbishop T.D. Somerville will preach for the first time on Vancouver Island at St. Paul's Church, Nanaimo, at 7.30 p.m., Sunday.

Consecrated bishop of New Westminster Diocese in 1971 and elected archbishop in 1975 for the province of British Columbia and the Yukon, he is a former executive officer of the Anglican Church of Canada and a professor of the Anglican Theological College.

Make Mother's day...
pot luck.

Surprise Mom with flowers but be sure she gets exactly what you ordered. See your United florist. He has a special "Tender Love" arrangement that's been created just for Mother's Day.

It's a tender bouquet of pink and white daisy mums, pink carnations, baby's breath and a few sprigs of heather for luck.

Your United florist can deliver it for you, around the corner or around the world.

Prices may vary, depending on the 'keepsake' bowl you choose and the local price and availability of flowers, at the point of delivery, but you can be a good kid for something between $17.50 and $24.00.

Do something beautiful today.

Weddings

Conway — Godfrey

Large floral arrangements of orange gladioli, yellow mums, white carnations and greenery formed a beautiful setting in Gordon Head United Church at 6 p.m. on February 11, 1978, for the wedding ceremony uniting Aileen Belle, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Godfrey, 4470 Tyndall Ave., and the late Richard W. J. Godfrey, and Dr. Barry Paul Conway, Victoria, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Conway, Fox Point, Nova Scotia. Rev. Frank Patterson and Rev. Russ Vickers officiated at the double-ring ceremony. During the signing of the Register, "Wedding Song" was sung by Miss Kathy Kendall and Miss Cindy Westaway, with guitar accompaniment.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Douglas Godfrey, the bride was radiant in a lovely gown of Crystal Charm over tafetta, fashioned with picture neckline, bordered with Swiss Guipure lace in petal and leaf design, extending over the empire waistline and adorning the sleeves above the dainty bell cuffs. The bouffant skirt entrain, swept to a deep flounce held by a band of lace. A single fingertip veil of fine silk illusion misted from her hair, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white button carnations and white heather. The bride was attended by her sister Mrs. Ann Comeau, bridesmaids: Miss Tina Hunter and Miss Shirley Page. They chose attractive long green gowns and white picture hats. Their bouquets were of white daisies, yellow and orange mums and white baby's breath. The groom was handsome in a champagne tone tuxedo and yellow boutonniere. His best man Dr. Fenwick Charters and ushers Mike Templeman and Phil Comeau chose dark brown tuxedos.

The newlyweds will reside in Victoria.

Kristiansen — McLeod

St. Aidan's Church, Victoria, B.C., was the place of a double ring ceremony on Saturday, April 15, 1978, when Heather Lynn, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McLeod and Dag Arne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Kristiansen, became husband and wife.

The bride wore a long white gown with empire waistline and enhanced with wide white lace and long train. Her fingertip veil was also trimmed with wide lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, heather, fern and baby's breath. The bride was attended by maid of honour Wendy White and bridesmaid Carolyn Pace. They wore long blue spring flowered dresses, and carried bouquets of white daisies. The groom wore a three-piece beige suit and a yellow rose. Best man was his brother Roy Kristiansen and the two ushers were Ed Neil and Ray McDougall.

The reception was held at the White Eagle Hall. The happy couple plan to make their home in Victoria.

de Bourcier 50th

On April 23, 1928, Elsie Florence Gavey and Edward Reginald (Ted) de Bourcier, were married on the Island of Jersey in the Channel Islands. After 25 years they emigrated to Canada with their three children, David, John and Jose. Until he retired, Ted was employed with the B.C. Government in the grounds and greenhouses at Government House.

This year, family and friends gathered in Victoria to honour Elsie and Ted on the occasion of their Golden Wedding Jubilee! About 100 guests offered congratulations at an informal reception on April 22nd in the Fellowship Hall of Douglas St. Baptist Church. Of special interest was a display of the original wedding pictures, the bride's dress and the groom's suit. Mr. and Mrs. de Bourcier were further honoured at a dinner for the family; and, on April 23, by a presentation from the members and friends of Douglas St. Baptist Church.

Stacey 60th

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stacey of 884 Cunningham Road, Esquimalt, will celebrate their Diamond Anniversary on May 11th. They were married in the Village Church of Steeple, Langford, Salisbury, Wilshire, England. Mr. Stacey went overseas with the 103rd Vancouver Island Timberwolves Regiment, and was at the Battle of Vimy Ridge. The celebration will be an extra happy one as Mrs. Stacey's brother and wife will arrive from Toora, Victoria State, Australia that day, and a sister also will arrive from England.

A quiet family dinner will be held on Sunday, May 14th, with their two daughters Mrs. Joyce Milliken and Mrs. Norma Watts and their families.

YOUR CITY WATCHDOG REPORT NUMBER 55
Congratulations to His Worship Mayor Young in making a number of presentations of the Quarter Century Award to Civic Employees on Tuesday, May 2, 1978. Your City's Watchdog feels that the City of Victoria, which has a 45 million dollar budget, can surely afford to pay for not only the employee's meal but also the wife or husband's meal. Your City's Watchdog feels that a cost of $15. for two meals is a small price to pay for an employee who has worked for the city for 25 years or more. Let's hope at the next presentations of the QUARTER CENTURY AWARDS, Alderman Larry Ryan and his committee will see to it to pay for the cost of the meals. Further to last weeks ad regarding the Tall Ships coming into the Inner Harbour, Your City's Watchdog understands there are two classes of sailing ships, Class A (Tall Ships) which will be on view at Ogden Point docks and Class B the size of H.M.C.S. ORIOLE, which will be coming into the Inner Harbour. Your Watchdog wishes to thank Mr. Steele for his telephone call but after checking with the bicentennial committee's office feels that the TALL SHIPS (Class A) will not be coming into the Inner Harbour. Taxpaying Homeowners should attend the next City council meeting on Thursday May 11th at 7:30 p.m. when the 1978 budget will be discussed at the evening meeting. This will be the first time for years that Victoria Residents will have the opportunity to hear where their tax dollars are binig spent. Please continue to phone 383-6259 C. Joe Richards, Your City's Watchdog for information on City matters. P.S. Watch Cable 10 for a possible interview of Your City's Watchdog.

FIRST MATE WANTED
Professional business executive, independently wealthy, author, aviator, banker, corporate president, lecturer and new to Victoria seeks a sharing lady who would like to join in a wonderful life. Lady sought after should now have a strong sense of personal accomplishment and identity plus a track record that plainly indicates she does not need a "rescuer". A sense of humor helps and the ideal age group would probably be 37-47. Your letter should be interesting enough to prompt an exciting dinner invitation and discussion of mutual interests and objectives. Finally, it would help if you were pretty, both inwardly and otherwise. Victoria Press Box 752.

TO DOUGLAS JOHNNY:
Take notice that a hearing will take place at the provincial court (Family Division) a 1321 Granville St., Port Hardy, B.C. on Tuesday, June 6th, 1978 at 9:30 a.m. The purpose of this hearing is to determine whether your child Crystal Laura Lynn Walkus, born March 20, 1978 requires the protection of the Superindendent of Child Welfare under the protection of Children Act. For further information contact the Ministry of Human Resources, Port Hardy, B.C. 949-7500.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc. for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most importan

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate

308A CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the Ambulance men, Doctors and Nurses in the Intensive Care Unit in Victoria General Hospital for their great help and care. To my many friends for their kind words and many cards during the suddend death of my wife Edith, Monday, May 1st, 1978. Many thanks, Jack Kenworthy.

We acknowledge with heartfelt thanks all the many beautiful cards and messages of sympathy, the many acts of kindness by friends and neighbors, in the loss of our dear husband, father and grandfather Robert Walker.
Many thanks too, to those who so generously donated to the Heart Foundation in his memory. A very special thank you to Rev. Ree Allen of St. Aidans United Church for his wonderful words of comfort.
Sally Walker and Family.

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends for their expressions of sympathy in the recent loss of our mother and grandmother Eva Snobelen. Very special thanks to Dr. Barnard and the entire staff at Homer 2, Memorial Pavilion for their tender care of "Eva" over the past 3 years. — Sincerely Don and Sam Snobelen and their families.

Flegal
I am at a loss to adequately express my thanks to all of Jessie's friends who cheered and comforted her while she was in hospital. You were wonderful. And now I am very grateful for the expressions of sympathy I have received during the following memorial service. Thank you very much.
Lawrence Flegal

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to the many dear friends and neighbours who were so thoughtful and kind in the recent loss of our beloved husband, father and grandfather, George A. Reid. For the many prayers, messages of sympathy, donations to the Cancer Society, beautiful floral tributes and other acts of kindness and comfort, we are so grateful. Thanks to all his doctors and the nursing staff of the Jubilee Hospital for their many acts of kindness, and a very special thanks to Dr. G. M. Arnott for his care and faithfulness through this travail. — Muriel Reid and family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

LUNT — In memory of my father, Albert James, May 8, 1977.
"That Man Is A Success"
who has lived well, laughed often and loved much,
who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of children; who has filled his niche
and accomplished his task;
who leaves the world better than he found it
whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem
or a rescued soul;
who never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it;
who looked for the best in others and gave the best he had.
—Dearly remembered by his wife, family and friends.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Low Marks for Third Department Store

The downtown Victoria task force requested by Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has been established — but his campaign for a third department store has been given a low priority.

A straw poll of pro tem chairman Tom Denny and other committee members showed the topics on the agenda, in order of urgency, will be:

1. Parking.
2. Transporation into the downtown core.
3. Improving the exteriors of existing downtown buildings.
4. Obtaining a civic—convention centre.
5. Luring a third department store into the downtown area.

The committee's views were best summed up by Victoria Chamber of Commerce director Bob Siddall who said: "If we solve parking and transportation problems the other things will follow. We also must make an effort to revitalize the buildings.

"Victoria suffers because of an accident of geography," Siddall said.

"It is at the end of a peninsula. It is the lead in the pencil. Access into the downtown area is difficult, not like Regina where you can approach the city from 360 degrees.

"The question of transportation routes is more important for Victoria than for many other cities. Parking is also a key issue."

Other committee members also put parking and transportation at the top of their lists but you could get a pretty good argument going on the relative importance of the last three items.

Committee member Bev Highton of Victoria Real Estate Board put the emphasis on "parking, transportation and a convention centre" while the priorities of Ted Balderson, president of the Visitors Information Centre, were almost identical. Balderson added that if Eaton's and The Bay both favored a third department store downtown he would give the proposal full support.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president John Ansell, who is represented on the committee by Siddall, earlier listed revitalization of downtown buildings in third place after parking and transportation.

But while there is a slight disagreement about priorities, all committee members expressed enthusiasm about the committee.

"This project is long overdue," said Jack Lacterman, president of the Victoria Downtown Business Association, who is a committee member.

"We might not agree on priorities but we all recognize the need to get on with the job of improving the downtown shopping area."

Philip Holmes, another committee member, put a higher priority than some other members on the need for a third department store downtown. He said he fully supported Bawlf's view that the downtown core needed a third major shopping centre.

Denny said the committee's first meeting will be within a week and the first tasks will be to outline terms of reference and to begin gathering data.

Who else would bring you a car that does all this and doesn't use gasoline?

Here are a few hints.

The same people that some 25 odd years ago brought out a small car that stood the automotive world on its ear.

The same people that revolutionized the industry just a few years ago with the introduction of the most highly acclaimed and advanced auto of the last decade.

Yup, you guessed it. Who else but Volkswagen?

First the Beetle, then the Rabbit, and now the amazing VW Rabbit with an optional diesel engine.

And while there's nothing terribly new about the concept of a diesel powered passenger car, there are some things that are quite remarkable about the Rabbit Diesel.

First, it does everything that diesels are famous for. Like delivering spectacular fuel economy. (Transport Canada has rated the Rabbit Diesel as the very best car you can buy in the country for fuel economy.)

And since the diesel engine doesn't have a carburetor, or spark plugs, or a distributor, or points, or condenser, it never needs a major tune-up. Ever.

But on top of that, the Rabbit Diesel does something that diesels are famous for not being able to do. Like go from 0 to 80 km/h in a mere 11.5 seconds. In fact, the Rabbit Diesel has set 31 world records for 1500 cc diesels.

The price is very un-diesel-like, too. (Until the Rabbit Diesel came along, diesel passenger cars were a very expensive proposition.)

And then on top of all that, since the Rabbit Diesel is, after all, still a VW Rabbit it does all the things that a Rabbit is famous for. So you get sports car handling, rack and pinion steering, a unique "independent stabilizer rear axle", more than enough room to seat four adults comfortably, and more trunk space than a Cadillac Seville. Not to mention innovative standard safety features, some of which are not even available on most other cars as options.

This hard-to-believe car is now available at the only place you'd expect to find this kind of car. Your nearest Volkswagen dealership.

Where else?

The Rabbit Diesel.
Don't settle for less.

New Tests Locate Cancerous Agents

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three new tests to check for possible cancer-causing substances have been developed at separate University of California laboratories, the university said Friday.

"The three different tests share a common advantage: they are among the first to measure the effects of such chemicals directly on human or animal cells," the university said.

It said that in the past the most widely-used laboratory tests for carcinogens — chemicals that cause cancer — have measured their genetic effects on bacteria.

However, the new tests uncover changes in the DNA of animal cells, it said.

In the May 5 issue of the journal Science, cell biologists Sheldon Wolff and Brita Rodin report that pure saccharin alters the DNA — the basic material in chromosomes of the cell nucleus — from humans and Chinese hamsters. They said this provides new evidence that the artificial sweetener may be a carcinogen.

Wolff said his test also can be used to test the effects of chemicals on the chromosomes of humans who are exposed to them.

He said researchers in Sweden are using it to look for differences between the chromosomes of smokers and those of non-smokers. In Norway it is being used to monitor workers who come into contact with vinyl chloride, a carcinogen.

This second test was reported last weekend by University of California geneticist Philip Coffino, who worked with aflatoxin B-1, a substance sometimes found on moldy peanuts and corn that is the most powerful carcinogen known.

At the San Francisco meeting of the American Society for Clinical Investigation, Coffino reported that studies with mouse cells have determined the specific kind of mutation that the substance causes in animal cells.

The third test was developed by University of California microbiologist Robert Painter and the human cell results were said to generally agree with Ames method results.

Painter said the more mutations a chemical causes in bacteria, the more DNA damage he observed in human cells. He said it is good evidence that the widely-used bacteria test should be relevant to human cancer.

3 CHARGED IN DEATH OF CHILEAN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Federal authorities charged three more persons Friday with conspiring to murder former Chilean ambassador Orlando Letelier, and are now confident they can trace the assassination from its origins in Chile to the actual placing and detonating of a car bomb here.

The charges against the three men bring to six the number of persons identified by investigators thus far as being part of the murder plot. One of the three men charged Friday was arrested in New Jersey, and the other two are fugitives, authorities said.

Additional charges are expected to be filed in the case.

The Times Threatens Closure

LONDON (AP) — Times Newspapers Ltd. has told printers unions it will shut down The Times and The Sunday Times within two months if wildcat strikes continue, a company spokesman said today.

He reported labor disputes in the printing plant cost the two newspapers a total of 8 million copies — 20 per cent of their output — in the first three months of this year and £1.98 million ($3.64 million) in profits.

Company sources said management wants new agreements by November, covering dispute procedures, wages, technology and staffing.

Unions are concerned new machines will displace scores of workers, the sources said.

Carter Scalds MD Lobbies

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — President Carter Friday extended his attack on lawyers to doctors as well, saying medical organizations often serve the interests of doctors and not patients.

Holding a street-corner news conference in Portland, Ore, before travelling to Spokane, last stop on his western tour, Carter stood his ground on the scathing critique he levelled against lawyers in a speech to the Los Angeles County Bar Association Thursday — and said the same goes for doctors.

"There is no doubt in my mind that lawyers care genuinely about their own clients," he said, "but quite often, when they organize into a bar association, the bar association is primarily concerned about the welfare of lawyers and not the welfare of clients.

"The same thing applies to other people like medical doctors.

"I think doctors care very deeply about their patients, but when they organize into the American Medical Association, their responsiblity is to the welfare of doctors. Quite often, those lobbying groups are the only ones that are heard in the state capitals and in the capital of our country."

Carter talked with reporters outside the Portland home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olson in Portland, Ore., where he stayed overnight.

Then he waded into a crowd of about 100 neighborhood residents for some campaign-style handshaking and jovial small talk, plus a friendly encounter th a small, orderly group of anti-neutron bomb demonstrators.

The Spokane stop, including another of the "town meeting" appearances Carter favors, closed out his three-day swing through four western states. About 3,000 persons greeted him at Spokane's airport, including many uniformed servicemen from nearby Fairchild Air Force Base.

In Portland, Carter made his comments on doctors when a reporter noted his remarks to the Los Angeles bar group had drawn defensive replies from some lawyers.

In Los Angeles, the president said the United States is "over lawyered" and has many high-priced attorneys who ensure justice for the rich, but not the poor. Asked whether he were equally concerned about the nation's doctors, Carter replied:

"Yes, I am. When I was governor (of Georgia), my concern about doctors was even more vivid than my concern about lawyers. I am sure I will find an occasion in the future to address the problems in medicine."

MUM ON QUE.

SPOKANE, Wash. (Reuter) — President Carter refused on Friday to become involved in the controversy over the secessionist movement in Quebec.

Carter maintained his neutrality when asked by a Spokane citizen at a town meeting if the United States would consider granting statehood to other Canadian provinces if Quebec broke away.

Amidst laughter and applause, he said he always made it a practice to avoid answering at least one question — and that was the question Friday.

"I'll let the Canadian people decide about the future of their great country," he said.

"When they make a decision, I'll abide by it."

Roger Bacon was right, back in 1267

"Mathematics," he wrote, "is the gate and the key to the sciences."

No matter how interested youngsters become in school science projects — in rocks or rockets, airplanes, butterflies or stars — they'll never become scientists if they are not well grounded in maths.

That's one reason why, next to reading and writing, maths is the most important subject taught in school. And one reason, too, why maths is emphasized at St. Michaels University School (S.M.U. stood 16th among 1032 schools across Canada competing in the 1978 University of Waterloo National Mathematics Contest and first among all B.C. Independent Schools.)

Judgment Monday On Farm Laborer

Judgment will be given Monday in a county court case where a Central Saanich farm laborer is accused of having sexual intercourse with an under-age girl and wilfully killing the girl's Highland bull.

Judge Leslie Cashman said he had "no difficulty" regarding the accusation that Donald Harry Schultz, 39, had sexual intercourse with a girl aged between 14 and 16 in Central Saanich between July 1 and Aug. 31, 1977.

But he wanted to read some of the case law cited to him and a "novel point" made by defence counsel Terry Dalton on the charge of wilfully killing the bull March 5, 1978, in Central Saanich which gave him "some difficulty."

Dalton said his research into Canadian and British law cases disclosed no case where an accused person can be found criminally responsible for the conduct of an animal.

Crown counsel Donald Laughton argued that this would not be a rule of law or of good sense.

He pointed to part of the Criminal Code, defining the word "wilfully" in a property section, as "everyone who causes the occurrence of an event by doing an act or by omitting to do an act that it is his duty to do, knowing that the act or omission will probably cause the occurrence of the event and being reckless whether the event occurs or not, shall be deemed, for the purposes of this part, wilfully to have caused the occurrence of the event."

The Crown has alleged that a vicious dog at the farm was at large and Schultz tethered the bull in the yard, then left with others returning to find the bull dead, one day after the girl told Schultz she wasn't going back to work on the farm.

Prisoner Threatens Guards

NANAIMO (CP) — An RCMP constable was able to talk a prisoner into surrendering Thursday after a standoff between the prisoner and provincial sheriff's deputies backed by RCMP.

Sheriff's deputy Gib Perry said the prisoner had walked in off the street to appear in court on an indecent assault charge.

Perry said the man was sentenced to three months in jail and while being searched afterwards asked if he was going to jail.

He said that when the prisoner was told that was the case, he replied: "Somebody is going to get killed."

As the prisoner took off his belt he took a folding knife from a pouch on the belt, opened it and threatened the two guards.

RCMP Constable Ron Dobysh managed to talk the prisoner into placing the knife on a table and surrendering.

Darryl Stead, 20, of Nanaimo, was later charged with assaulting a police officer and common assault.

MP Defends Questionnaire

Allan McKinnon, Conservative MP for Victoria, said Friday he worded a question on the right-to-work issue in a recent questionnaire as objectively as he could.

He said in an interview he tried to avoid loading the question by keeping it as simple as possible and just asking "Do you favor the right to work movement."

The Victoria Labor Council is being hypersensitive in condemning him for his handling of the matter, McKinnon added, but agreed many of those who answered the question could have mistakenly understood the term right to work to mean the right to a job.

He said he issued an invitation Friday to council president John Shields, suggesting organized labor draft the question, and was told his offer would be taken up with the executive.

"I thought he would have jumped at the chance," said McKinnon.

Council delegates voted Wednesday night to write McKinnon deploring the fact that he didn't explain the term and taking issue with his comments which accompanied the results.

A total of 75 per cent of those who answered the question said they were in favor of the movement.

Supporters of the right to work movement are opposed to compulsory unionism and believe an employee should have the choice as to whether to belong to a union or not.

McKinnon said the Conservative Party supports the Rand formula concept whereby all employees of a union company must pay union dues but they need not be union members.

He said he put the right-to-work question as simply as he did because he felt if he spelled it out any more the question would become biased.

McKinnon said he has been thinking about putting out a more detailed question on the right to work issue at some later date.

First Building

Construction of the first new building in New Westminster's downtown and waterfront redevelopment project will begin in mid-June, the B.C. Buildings Corporation said Friday.

The Crown corporation said the $16.5 million courthouse, to be built one block north of the present courthouse, is scheduled for completion by September, 1980.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 13-year-old boy who led two police forces on a car chase through Saanich Peninsula Tuesday morning has been remanded in custody until next Tuesday so that appropriate counselling and community involvement agencies can be called into the case.

The boy, whose name cannot be published because he is of juvenile age, appeared before Judge Fred Giles in Victoria provincial court's family division Friday morning but was remanded after an application for more time from Crown counsel John Higginbotham.

The Central Saanich youth was pursued by Central Saanich police and Sidney RCMP for 10 kilometres before the stolen vehicle went out of control and crashed through a fence at Pat Bay Airport. Found in the car were a .22 calibre rifle with a cartridge in the chamber, 14 more cartridge shells in a magazine, 85 rounds stuffed in the youth's pockets and 400 rounds lying about the vehicle.

He was charged with taking an auto without owner Thomas Goan's consent, dangerous driving, obstructing a peace officer, carrying a concealed weapon, possession of a firearm, and driving without a valid driver's licence.

Defence lawyer Ted Hanman objected to a proposed one-week remand in custody at the Juvenile Detention Home but agreed to the shorter remand period.

A 38-year-old man with an obvious taste for lobster was given a 14-day, intermittent jail term in provincial court by Judge Harold Alder.

Keith Hartlen, of Franklin River, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $200.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court Hartlen was at the Fairways Market on April 20 and bought $28.88 worth of groceries but failed to pay for two tins of lobster spread and two tins of lobsters valued at $9.80.

Lang said Hartlen had a previous criminal history which included convictions for theft on Jan. 24, 1958, and Nov. 4, 1970.

A father and his son elected trial by judge and jury on a joint charge of robbery with threats of violence.

Angus Nelson Townsend, 42, of 2683 Blanshard, and Michael Nelson Townsend, 22, of 3140 Washington, were charged in the April 28 holdup of Ron's Chevron Service, 2200 Quadra.

Their preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 27.

Alder handed out a 30-day, intermittent sentence to a 47-year-old man after learning it was his third conviction for a drinking-driving offence in less than four years.

Henry Washington, 3835 Saul, pleaded guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 April 13.

Lang said Washington was spotted by Saanich police at 9 p.m. heading south on Elk Lake Road and was noticed straddling the centre line at one stage and swerving into oncoming traffic on another occasion. Subsequent breath test readings of .25 were obtained, Lang said.

His previous convictions were both for impaired driving, on Sept. 20, 1974, when he was fined $375, and on Nov. 12, 1975, when he was jailed for 14 days.

Defence lawyer Alan Bigelow said his client asked a friend to phone for a taxi at the Royal Oak Inn earlier but none came.

"Congratulations, sir," Alder said to Washington, "You're still alive."

Fined for drinking-driving were Muriel Colli, 56, of 1104 Hilda, $500; and Stephen Edward O'Hanlon, 22, of 1639 Hampshire, $400. O'Hanlon was also fined $100 after pleading guilty to driving while under suspension.

Twin, 100, Dies

NORTHBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A service was held Wednesday for Emmanuel Lussier, who with his brother formed what was believed to be one of the oldest sets of twins in the world. Lussier died Sunday. He and his brother Samuel of Cumberland, R.I., celebrated their 100th birthday last Aug. 11.

Machine Sold Teens

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — One in four teen-agers will quit smoking after seeing that it makes their hands tremble and their hearts beat faster, a New Hampshire Lung Association study shows.

The study, released today, reports the results of a program which pioneered the use of biofeedback machines in smoking education, said Valery Mitchell of the association.

The study indicates that 61 per cent of 249 junior and senior high school students who smoked either quit or reduced their smoking. The students were surveyed two months after the biofeedback machines recorded their responses. Twenty-five per cent quit and 36 per cent reduced the amount they smoked.

Another 19 per cent switched to a brand of cigarettes lower in tar and nicotine.

One of the tests required students to exhale through a tube into a plastic bag. A device called an ecolyzer then showed the carbon monoxide content—comparable to the blood content of the gas—on a meter.

In the hand-steadiness test, students tried to keep a metal probe centred in a small hole. The number of "hits" on the sides of the hole were recorded electronically before and after a student smoked a cigarette.

Ms. Mitchell said the results of the program were "phenomenally high" for an educational program. As a result, lung associations and anti-smoking groups around the U.S. probably will adopt it, she said.

She said hundreds of groups and state lung associations already have expressed interest.

"It's not only effective," she said. "It's an attention-getting thing. It's not the same old showing movies and slides of damaged lungs."

THE MYSTERIOUS CHESS TOURNAMENT

A short while ago, the British Broadcasting Corporation staged a unique chess tournament. Its uniqueness lay in the fact that all those who participated were pledged to secrecy as to where and when it was held, and no games were supposed to be released. The event was won by World Champion Anatoly Karpov, whose desire to keep his games secret from the challenger, Viktor Korchnoi, was the reason for all the secrecy.

I myself do not know where or when — but this is an age of "leaks", and I have managed to unearth a Karpov game from The Mystery Tournament.

IN THE MATTER OF KNIGHTS AND PAWNS

It is a sad fact, and a frustrating one, for the Knight that he can never make a move and continue to attack the square he was attacking before his move. Coupled with his comparative slowness, this makes his battle against advanced pawns very difficult and complex. In the following ending, played at the 1978 Rohnert Park, California, Open, White seemed to have good drawing chances. However, Knights are not good pieces with which to stop pawns. White is J. C. Evans; Black is Peter Prochaska.

Position: WHITE has his King on QB5; Knight on QR3; pawn on KR5 (three pieces). BLACK has his King on KR2; Knight on QR4; pawns on QN6 and Kn2 (four pieces). Play continued:

1.	. . .	P-N7
2.	K-N4(a)	K-R3!
3.	KxN(b)	KxP
4.	K-N4(c)	P-N4
5.	K-N3	P-N5
6.	KxP	P-N6
7.	Resigns

(a) Not 2.K-N5? N-N6 when White will have to give up his Knight.

(b) With 3. K-B3, KxP; 4.KxP, White can draw the game.

(c) As the Knight is immobilized, essentially we have a King and pawn ending with an outside passed pawn. Mikhael Botvinnik once observed: "Knight endings are like pawn endings."

The solution to the problem above is: 1. Q-R3, PxP; 2. Q-QB3 mate; or 1 . . . R-N7ch; 2. BxR mate; or 1 . . . PxN; 2. B-N5 mate, etc.

Our Peugeot 504 Diesel has no carburetor. And no distributor. It dosen't have a choke, a condenser, points, coils or resistors. And there isn't a spark plug to be found anywhere.

This means you don't have to bring the car into our service department every few thousand miles to replace things, gap things or adjust things. You just change the oil and filter by the book and follow simple check-ups.

What's more, our Peugeot Diesel Wagon is the only car in America that is built from the ground up as a diesel wagon. The Peugeot 504 Diesel. You don't tune it. You drive it.

Sun Traps Toured Sunday

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Catching the sun to heat houses and bathwater on Saanich Peninsula will be demonstrated to some 60 amateur conservationists Sunday.

A busload of Victoria members of Solar Energy Society of Canada Inc. will take a Cook's tour Sunday of typical solar heating units for domestic hot water. Others interested in using solar radiation to cut heating costs also will make the trip.

The group will start at 9:30 a.m. from Carnarvon Park and will be out until 4 p.m., making the most of Sun Day, designated by solar energy enthusiasts the world over.

They will see four experimental units, including a wall-mounted collection system built by a 78-year-old Victoria man; a homemade preheater for a hot water boiler built by a retired Central Saanich doctor; a wall-mounted commercial collector made in Israel and operating in Saanich, and a roof-mounted solar-assisted heat pump for heating an Ardmore house.

Architect Darryl Jensen said the local chapter of the Solar Energy Society intends to repeat the tour once or twice a year to keep up with developments.

Out of respect for owners of the homes, he said, it was desireable to confine tours to about 50 persons each time.

For those unable to make the tour, the society hopes to describe the various systems in a brochure and in a slide presentation to be made at a June 5 meeting at Carnarvon Park.

Solar engergy enthusiasts tend to be do-it-yourselfers, but there are an increasing number of factory-built converters available in Canada, including the Miromit, Israeli-made and selling for about $1,700 ($2,200 installed) in Victoria.

Michael Bancroft, 4416 Torquay, has two on the south wall of his Gordon Head home mounted at exactly 60 degrees to get optimum benefit of the sun's rays. By manufacturer's recommendation it is connected by black iron pipe to a 66-gallon (U.S.) domestic hot water tank with heat exchanger coil.

Bancroft said he had found that copper piping would be just as satisfactory as cast iron, easier to handle and probably cheaper.

A conventional electric hot water backup is connected to the system to keep a minimum of 20 gallons of water available when the sun is obscured.

There are pressure relief valves to protect the system when temperatures rise much beyond 100 degrees C.

The owner has had the system working only since January and could give no estimate of the year-round saving, but he knows it has worked well since daylight saving time started.

The pensioner who built a system to his own design, using library books and information from the society, said that if he can do it anyone can. Henry Schalge, 1044 Davie, spent $1,928 on his hot water and space heating system for a 1,600-square-foot home. He expects to save that much in oil and electricity bills in about 10 years.

Heroin Plans Defended

Health Minister Bob McClelland has again defended the B.C. government's compulsory treatment proposal for heroin addicts.

McClelland said Friday in a news release that a study done by the Alcohol and Drug Commission shows that a widely-supported alternative to compulsory treatment doesn't work.

The study, entitled the British Experience with Narcotic Dependency, says Britain's heroin maintenance program has been a failure.

"The report stated it was clear that the British treatment program had failed to attract a majority of the addicts," McClelland said. "Of the estimated 10,000 heroin users in Britain, only 20 per cent are registered.

"In 1976, only 250 addicts were on a heroin maintenance program. And the policy now is not to place any new addicts on maintenance.

"In Britain the black market for heroin continues to thrive and law enforcement appears to remain a necessary, costly and complex control measure.

"It would be a mistake to consider such an approach in B.C. when it is obvious that British authorities are having to come to grips with a worsening situation there."

McClelland said earlier he intends to introduce legislation within 10 days setting up the compulsory treatment program.

Essays Judged In U.K.

Twelve Greater Victoria area students achieved honors in the provincial judging of the Royal Commonwealth Essay Competition and will have their papers sent to London, Eng., for further judging.

The students will compete with other pupils from all parts of the Commonwealth.

Two Glenlyon grade 9 students, Andrew Harmsworth and John Mullin, received second and third place respectively in their age category of the competition.

Harmsworth, of 1959 Beach, won $70 and Mullin, of 35 Welliongton, received $50 for their wins.

Commendations were awarded to Laura Downs, Dunsmuir Secondary; Daniel Stevens, Glenlyon; James Duffus, Glenlyon; Scott Farlowe, Glenlyon; Janice Butler, Quadra Elementary and Brian Charlesworth, Glenlyon.

Honorable mentions were awarded to Mark Logan, Tybring Hemphill and Phillip Spencer of Glenlyon and Larry Kubek, North Saanich.

Winkler Ties The Knot

NEW YORK — Actor Henry Winkler, who plays television's leather-jacketed, soft-hearted thug The Fonz, was married in private ceremonies Friday to Stacey Weitzman, the woman with whom he has lived for two years.

Winkler, 31, and his 30-year-old red-haired bride, held a news conference at a Manhattan hotel immediately after family-only ceremonies at Congregation Habonim, the Manhattan synagogue where Winkler said he was bar mitzvahed in 1958.

Winkler said his best man was Mrs. Winkler's six-year-old son, Jed. The new Mrs. Winkler's first marriage ended in divorce. She is a native of Los Angeles.

"We had a terrific thing going, and now it will be better," said Winkler, a New York native who had not been married before.

He said he proposed marriage two months ago by dropping a daffodil into the bathtub as his bride bathed at the home they shared in California.

Winkler said he asked her to marry him and "she said, 'Oh, Henry!'"

Winkler has played the popular drop-out Fonzie on ABC's top-rated Happy Days comedy since the series debuted in 1973. He said Friday he does not believe his marriage will damage his popularity with teen-agers who swoon over The Fonz.

A LONG WAY TO ROW . . .

SAN DIEGO — Patrick Satterlee has his girlfriend's admiration, his mother's incredulity and a long way to go.

Satterlee plans to take a row in the ocean Sunday.

To Australia.

"He's been too big for years for me to tell him what to do. I still think he's kind of crazy," said his mother, Joan Cornett.

Satterlee, 26, says he is doing it "for kicks."

He had planned to leave today but postponed the trip 24 hours to make last minute arrangements.

A commercial fisherman and ex-Marine, he is using the 35-foot rowboat Britannia II, loaned to him by John Fairfax, an Englishman who rowed it from San Francisco to Australia in 1971 accompanied by Sylvia Cook.

If Satterlee completes the trip, which he expects will take between nine months and a year, he will become the first to row the distance solo, Fairfax said.

It Was Too Much For Words

SAGINAW, Mich. — It's so embarrassing Police Chief John Scoberth won't even talk about it. But he confirms that it happened.

A motorist was stopped Thursday and arrested for carrying a concealed weapon when a policeman found a pistol in the car.

He was released Friday after a check of the serial number on the weapon showed it belonged to the arresting officer.

Police said it appeared the officer was searching inside the car after he stopped the motorist, lost his own gun and found it again.

Pay For Shame

MIAMI — Richard Nixon should donate any profits from his memoirs to those who suffered shame and financial loss because of the Watergate scandal, says convicted Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt.

"I think it would be very well received by the American public were Mr. Nixon to use his enormous book and TV profits to alleviate the financial distress of those who suffered shame, imprisonment and loss of employment because of him," Hunt said.

"At the same time, I think it would be unrealistic to expect him to do so."

THE SUN HID

NEW YORK — Robert Redford spoke out Friday night against those who criticize the practicality of solar energy.

"The cynics only show the photo of the one cloudy day during Solar Week," the film star told a "Sun Day" program at Manhattan's Cathedral of St. John the Divine. A persistent rain hit the New York metropolitan area Friday.

U.N. Forces Can't Halt Guerrilla Flood

The Guardian

TYRE — Palestinian guerrillas are returning in substantial numbers to areas of southern Lebanon evacuated by the Israeli army. United Nations peacekeeping forces — under-strength, under-equipped and demoralized by unclear orders from New York — are unable and unwilling to stop them.

The main area of infiltration is the coastal plain south of Tyre, from which the Israeli army withdrew last week. A sub-tropical undergrowth and orange and lemon groves furnish excellent cover.

French and Senegalese troops are attempting to patrol the area, the French on the outskirts of Tyre, the Senegalese between them and the northernmost Israeli lines.

Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, met Friday with the U.N. commander General Emmanuel Erskine. He no doubt reiterated that, in the PLO view, there is nothing in U.N. resolution 425, which authorized the peacekeeping force, to prohibit the guerrillas from returning to their old positions. At the same time, however, angered by last week's Palestinian attacks on U.N. troops, Arafat is very anxious — for the sake of his reputation both in the world at large and among the war-weary inhabitants of southern Lebanon — to achieve this with a minimum of bloodshed.

The original order to U.N. troops was to stop all infiltration. This was how Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim interpreted his mandate. But in practice — and with reluctant acquiescence from above — the troops are bowing to actions which, if unchecked, will ultimately make nonsense of that order. It is a classical case of the international community rushing in to solve a problem without furnishing the coherent political will or the physical muscle to do it.

A company of 40 or 50 guerrillas were taking their siesta in the undergrowth a mere 300 or 400 metres from a Senegalese road block. They had apparently filtered through the French lines in ones and twos. They had brought their small arms with them, or unearthed those that they had hidden as they retreated before the Israeli advance. They had then regrouped in such strength that the thinly spread U.N. troops could not, without suicidal risk, order them to withdraw.

The pattern is apparently being repeated — due allowance made for differences in terrain and the depth of Israeli withdrawal — along much of the front.

What Crashes? - Lang

OTTAWA (FP) — A Conservative MP has been told by Transport minister Otto Lang to stop asking questions about northern air safety because the inquiries "simply cause worry to people."

Lang told the Commons Friday that the air safety record in northern Canada "compares favorably" to similar areas in other countries.

The minister admonished MP Dan McKenzie (Winnipeg South Centre) for reminding the Commons that there had been 24 deaths in northern Ontario aircraft accidents between 1975 and mid-1977.

McKenzie, along with NDP MP Cyril Symes (Sault St. Marie), has been pressing the government for months to set up an inquiry into air safety in the north.

Perfect Banana Republic . . . But for the Weather

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canada has become a submissive colony of the United States, both economically and politically, and Canadian governments rule with the "advice and consent" of Americans, says the lead article in the June issue of Penthouse magazine.

"Only the weather prevents us from being a perfect banana republic," according to Toronto writer Walter Stewart, former managing editor of Maclean's who is described by Penthouse as a "journalist-patriot."

In his bleak assessment of the Canadian condition, Stewart says that Canada has lost its sovereignty to the "attache-bearing brigades" of U.S. businessmen with their stock options, expense accounts and dry martinis.

Canadian foreign policy is largely determined in Washington, he argues, and Canadian nationalists have become pariahs in their own nation.

Stewart cites examples, none of them new, of American parent firms barring their subsidaries in Canada from trading with Cuba; of U.S. labor union leaders ordering a ruinous strike by Toronto newspaper printers, and the cut-rate sale of Canadian natural gas to the U.S. in long-term contracts.

Referring to the U.S. stranglehold on the Canadian economy, he says that $616,000 in Canadian funds is drained off every hour of every day to pay foreign investors.

As for the $10 billion Alaska pipeline deal signed last month, Stewart insists that it will do nothing for Canada but damage its environment, upset its native peoples, and distort its capital markets.

Canadians are accused of "cupidity and stupidity" in handing over control of the country to Americans.

The article, titled Say Uncle! The American Colonization of Canada, comes at a time when Canada-U.S. relations are being seen here as better than ever before, and when Americans are reading more and more about their neighbors to the north.

Stewart writes only briefly about the possible separation of Quebec. He makes the point that French-Canadians are turning against Ottawa because "they are unwilling to leave the defence of their language and culture to a country that is manifestly unable to defend itself."

This argument, however, ignores the lavish attention that the Parti Quebecois government itself is pouring on Americans, with ministerial visits, wooing for U.S. investment, and the expansion of the network of Quebec tourist and trade offices throughout the U.S..

A-G STUMBLES ON BAT VAN

Oak Bay police have tripped up Attorney-General Garde Gardom who has been insisting there are enough policemen to operate the province's BATmobiles.

On Friday the A-G wasn't going along with complaints from police spokesmen in Vancouver and on Vancouver Island that the vans often sit idle because of manpower shortages.

He said he isn't aware of any instance in which the vans aren't used.

The BATmobile was assigned to Oak Bay this weekend, but didn't nab a single impaired driver. Didn't even come up with a 24-hour roadside suspension.

The reason?

It never left the police yard because there weren't enough policemen to man the unit.

Tanker Split In North Sea

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (Reuter) — A Greek tanker, Eleni V, split in two today in the North Sea after being in a collision with a French bulk carrier, Roseline, which reported much oil pollution in the area.

Thirty-five of the 39 crewmen from the 12,600-ton Eleni V were transferred to the 16,000-ton Roseline and the remaining four men were ready to be picked up, messages received by Lloyds Shipping Agency reveal.

The tanker was loaded with heavy fuel oil and British coast guard and government officials were trying to estimate the amount of spillage from the sunken fore section. The stern section was being towed out to sea.

Lifeboat workers from nearby Gorleston said there was a slick measuring 200 by 100 metres six miles off the eastern England coast.

The British trade department said it had chartered two oil-spraying ships for dispersing the slick. Tides and a slight wind were believed to be pushing the slick away from the English coast.

Ipswich, Rangers Win Cups

LONDON (Reuter) — A goal by midfield man Roger Osborne 13 minutes from the end earned the English Football Association (FA) Cup for Ipswich in its first appearance in the final at Wembley today.

Ipswich's 1-0 win over favored Arsenal, playing in its ninth final, was the result of composed football which won control of the midfield and kept its London opponent struggling throughout.

Paul Mariner hit the Arsenal bar as early as the 12th minute and twice in the second half John Wark thumped drives against the lefthand post with goalkeeper Pat Jennings helpless.

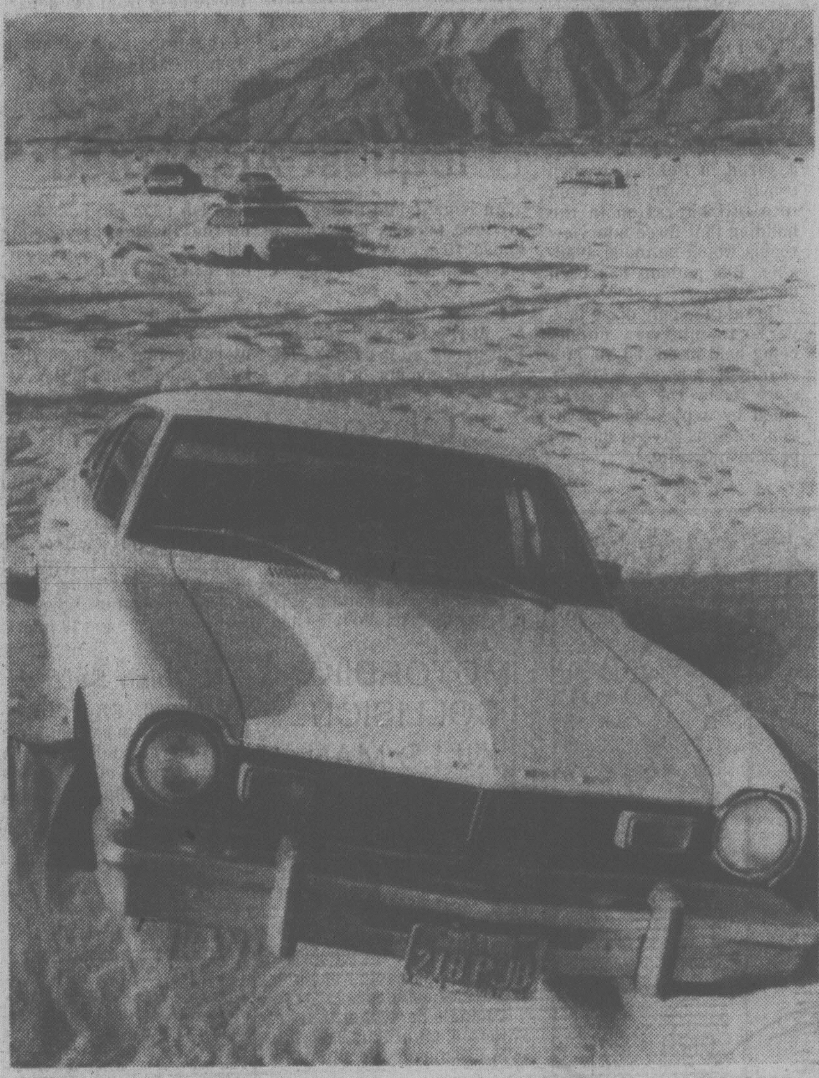
Though there was still no score, the Arsenal end of the 100,000 crowd, fell ominously silent until Osborne's goal

In Glasgow today, Rangers survived a hesitant start to score a 2-1 victory over Aberdeen in the Scottish Football Association Cup final.

It was the second time in three seasons that Rangers have completed a clean sweep in Scotland.

Volcano Spews

MANILA (Reuter) — Thousands of people were being evacuated today from the foot of one of the Philippines most-active volcanoes which has been spewing red hot lava since Thursday.



ABANDONED CARS lie outside city limits of Palm Springs, Calif., after being sandblasted Friday evening by winds of up to 130 km/h. The violent storm made driving so difficult and dangerous that 14 motorists had to be rescued by the highway patrol. Highway was at points almost obliterated by sand.

No Pullout - Angola

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Angola charged in the Security Council late Friday that South African troops which raided its territory Thursday still are there and are being reinforced.

Angolan Ambassador Elisio De Figueiredo told the council, called into session to consider charges by his government of South African "aggression," that the claim the troops were withdrawn after a limited action is a myth.

The troops show no sign of withdrawing, the latest information received from Angola shows, Figueireido said.

"South African troops are still inside Angola, giving the lie to the myth of a limited action by the racist, fascist government of Pretoria," he said. "Reinforcements are still being brought in, even now, and the troops show no sign of withdrawing. The bombardment has been extended."

However, South Africa said in a message to the western members of the council late Friday that its troops struck at guerrilla bases in Angola in response to urgent appeals for protection by Namibia, or South-West Africa, leaders.

The message said that border violations by "terrorists" increased dangerously despite South African efforts to obtain a peaceful solution to the Namibian question.

A draft resolution proposing that the council strongly condemn "this latest armed invasion perpetrated by the South African racist regime" was circulated as the council met. The draft, prepared by non-aligned states, also would warn South Africa that the council would have to consider applying sanctions in case of a repetition of the attack on Angola.

Figueireido urged the council to approve the resolution and adopt the economic sanctions — including an oil embargo — against South Africa that were recommended by the General Assembly last Wednesday.

Sam Nujoma, president of the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), also called for sanctions. South Africa said its target in the raid Thursday was SWAPO guerrilla bases.

He promised that SWAPO will intensify its political and armed struggle until the South Africans are forced to end their occupation.

S. KOREAN DEFECTS?

TORONTO (CP) — A South Korean diplomatic official is in hiding after defecting and exposing Korean Central Intellience Agency activities in Toronto, according to the Toronto Star.

The newspaper says Yungman Yang, vice-consul at the South Korean consulate here, has applied to Canada's employment and immigration department for refugee status for himself, his wife and three children.

Moro Search Frantic

ROME (UPI) — Anti-terrorist squads threw a vast dragnet over central Italy today, breaking into hundreds of abandoned homes, throwing up new roadblocks and detaining at least 25 persons in a desperate hunt for kidnapped ex-premier Aldo Moro.

Moro's family refused to confirm reports they had received a handwritten letter from the five-time premier bidding them an emotional farewell.

Police and army troops broke down the doors of hundreds of homes and set up dozens of new roadblocks around Rome in an eleventh hour search for Moro and his Red Brigades kidnappers, who announced Friday they were "executing" him because their demands for the release of 13 jailed terrorists had been rejected.

Army helicopters and coast guard speed boats scoured the inlets and countryside around the coastal town of Terracina, where an anonymous telephone tip said Moro could be found.

At least 25 persons, most members of ultra-leftwing student groups, were detained for questioning but there were no new arrests.

Patient Deterrent Fee Urged for Medicare

VANCOUVER (CP) — Patients should pay a deterrent fee before they see a doctor in order to cut unnecessary use of the medical system, Dr. Eddison Sinanan, president of the British Columbia Society of Eyes, Ears, Nose and Throat Specialists, said Friday.

Sinanan said in an interview that although medicare provides an outwardly free public service it is supported by taxes and is inefficient.

People go to doctors with trivial complaints, so doctors are overworked and have insufficient time to provide proper care for those in need, he said.

Sinanan was attending the annual meeting of the B.C. Oto-Ophthalmological Society.

The meeting was told doctors should pay more attention to the human needs of dying patients.

"Death is not the enemy of the physician; death is a phenomenon of living. But what is the quality of life for an incurable cancer patient," said Dr. Daniel Miller, chief of head and neck oncology clinic at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute, Boston, Mass.

Miller, who is also consultant surgeon at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary and associate clinical professor at Harvard University, said only recently are medical schools beginning to teach students how to care for the dying.

Older physicians may shun the dying patient because of a feeling of shame and guilt at their own professional helplessness, said Miller.

U.S. Court Bans Canadian Fishboats

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has issued a temporary injunction that forbids Canadian boats from fishing within coastal waters off the western United States.

U.S. federal authorities argued that the order would strain relations between the two countries.

Judge Donald Voor hees issued the temporary injunction Friday, ordering the U.S. federal government to stop Canadian vessels from salmon fishing off the West Coast.

Judge Voorhees stayed his order for seven days to allow time for an appeal.

Edward Evans, northwest regional counsel for the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, said the U.S. government plans to ask the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for an emergency hearing on the decision.

Canadian fishing boat have been allowed to fish within U.S. waters since the early 1970s by reciprocal agreement between the executive branches of both governments, Evans said.

An agreement has been drafted between the two governments, Evans said, but has not yet been ratified by Congress.

The suit was brought against the commerce and the U.S. state department by the Washington Trollers Association and the Quileute Indian Tribe.

The groups argued that Canadians were violating U.S. statutes by fishing within the 200-mile limit. The statutes could only be overturned, the plaintiffs argued, by congressional action.

The U.S. government argued that although congressional approval of the treaty was required, the government retained its right to use discretion in enforcing the law, Evans said.

"It ill-behooves the federal government to come in here and enforce treaties, which it has done, and not enforce statutes," Voorhees said in his decision Friday.

The federal government argued that the decision would hurt other negotiations between the two countries such as talks about off-shore drilling on both coasts.

The agreement could allow Canadian boats to fish further down the Washington coast than in previous years, Evans said.

If ratified, the Canadians could fish the Washington Coast down to Copalis Beach—about 100 kilometres north of the Oregon border—if the Canadian government cordoned off an area south of Vancouver Island and did not fish it.
